Chamberlain's Celebrate 100th Anniversary

Chamberlain Co., Inc., celebrates its 100th Anniversary this year, taking the date of February 21st, 1835, as the time of its founding.

In its 100 years of faithful service, Chamberlain's has weathered all storms and stands as one of the oldest business enterprises in New England.

Since the time when Abel C. Chamberlain came from Woodstock, Connecticut, and started in the furniture business in New Haven in 1832, this concern has gradually grown in pace with the city and today is one of the largest, most reliable and progressive furniture houses in Connecticut.

On June 23, 1935, the business called for enlarged quarters, which was carried on under Lines & Chamberlain.

In 1838, Mr. Lines retired from the business. Mr. A. C. Chamberlain continued the business and later took in with him, his two sons, George R. and James H. P. Chamberlain. In 1886, William M. Parsons of Northampton, Massachusetts, brother of Mrs. George R. Chamberlain, became a partner in the business. A. C. Chamberlain died in 1885. Jim Chamberlain died in 1895. George Chamberlain died in 1910. William Parsons retired from the business in 1915.

Robert R. Chamberlain entered the business in January, 1903, and in 1915, with a former Yale classmate, purchased the business when William Parsons retired. In 1922, Mr. Robert E. Hyman purchased half interest in the concern and since this time the "Two Bobs", as they are called, have continued to uphold the reputation of reliability associated with this old concern.

Robert R. Chamberlain, the president of the company, is a graduate of Taft School and of Yale and later spent two years studying under Frank Alvah Parsons, President of The New York School of Fine and Applied Arts. Mr. Chamberlain is recognized as an authority on the interior.

Robert E. Hyman, the treasurer of the company, is connected with many local organizations and was for seventeen years connected with The New Haven Register.

The Chamberlain Company has occupied its present location on the corner of Orange and Crown Streets since May 15th, 1883, and is a regular advertiser of the CITIZEN.

Water Main Hearing Due August 23

The hearing for the Water Main to be laid in Laurel Street, by the New Haven Water Company, has been called by Mr. C. T. Warner, Town Clerk, for Monday, August 23, to be held in the Town Hall.

A survey has been completed by Mr. Charles H. Miller, which re-establishes the lines in that portion of Laurel Street lying between Mr. Joseph Adams house and the Town Line. This survey is now complete and may be examined at the Town Clerk's office.

TOWN BRIEFS

Darrell Morehouse, of Silver Sands Road, is attending Camp Hadley, C. C. Camp, at Madison, Conn.

A building permit has been issued to Mrs. Irene Blake for a four-room house to be built in High Street, at a cost of $2,500. Mr. Roy Blake will be the builder.

Charles Hobro of East Haven, and soprano soloist of the Junior Choir of Trinity Church, New Haven, will sing at Christ Episcopal Church, here, this Sunday, August 8 at the 11 a. m. service. He will sing "Great Peace Have They Which Love The Lord."

The Board of Finance is now working on the town budget, which is expected to be complete sometime in September.

Local teachers finished their courses at Yale Summer School on Wednesday.

Fifty men and 18 women from the local Post turned out for the Convention Parade on Saturday. It is rumored that both the Legion and Auxiliary won prizes for the biggest turnout in uniforms.

Aided Smithsonian Institution
More than a century ago the United States government filed suit in the English courts for the $500,000 bequeathed by James Smithsonian, on the death, without issue, of his nephew, Henry Hungerford. The money was used in establishing the Smithsonian Institution.

Legion Outing Set For Sunday

On Sunday, August 8, all roads will lead to the Clinton Country Club, in Clinton, Conn., where the Harry R. Barlett, Post 89, American Legion will hold their annual outing.

Golfing, baseball, swimming and cards will predominate as the leading pastimes of the day, and a chicken dinner will be served at 5 p. m.

Those planning to attend who are unfamiliar with the way, may take the Boston Post Road, Route 1, east to Clinton Center, then take the first right after passing the traffic light.

The committee in charge of the outing are: Mr. Everett Hanley, chairman; First Selectman Girard W. Freer, Mr. John Slattery and Mr. Ernest L. Pemberton.

Mr. Ernest L. Pemberton states that the sale of tickets for the outing will cease at 6 p. m. this evening.

Tax Returns Still On Increase

Tax collections, here, are entering the Tax Office quite fluently, and according to Tax Collector Thomas F. Reynolds, the collections for the month of July are as follows: current, $14,562.48; back taxes, $3,329.25; interests and liens, $413.53; and Old Age Assistance taxes; $19.00, making a total of 18,324.26.

In comparing these figures with those of July, 1935, which came to $17,336.50, there leaves an increase of $987.76 for the year 1936.

It was made known by the State, recently, that bids for the new bridge to be constructed across Farm River, at the end of Sanford Street, are now open at Hartford and will be until the 16th of August.

For a long time the people of East Haven have been curious to know just when the bridge would be started but according to the present notification, it should get underway by the end of this month.

It is assumed that the bridge will be of standard type concrete construction similar to those that have been constructed over small rivers, about the State.

It was also learned through Mr. Martin Olson, owner of the property on the other side of the river, to be known as Saltonstall Manor, that he intends to build ten new houses following the completion of the bridge.

RECOGNIZE THE ADVERTISER

It is a known fact that newspapers cannot survive unless it has sufficient advertising, and if the advertisers do not receive certain benefits from it, they will not advertise.

The advertiser likes to know that his advertisement is getting across to the public, and it is a hard thing to realize unless he is told so.

East Haven needs a local newspaper, but without proper advertising it cannot have one, unless the advertisers are properly recognized, and so if the public would be kind enough to mention the local publication to the advertisers upon purchasing from their establishments it would be greatly appreciated by the newspaper as well as the merchant.

In doing so, the public itself, can feel that they are aiding in the progression of the Town, helping the local newspaper to survive, and the advertiser to prosper, simply by RECOGNIZING THE ADVERTISER.

Song to the Evening Star
Star that bringest home the bee,
And sett'st the weary laborer free!
If any star shed peace, 'tis thou
That send'st it from above,
Appearing when Heaven's breath
Are sweet as hers we love.

Come to the luxuriant skies,
Whilst the landscape's odors rise,
Whilst far-off lowing herds are heard
And songs when toil is done,
From cottages whose smoke un-
stirred,
Curls yellow in the sun.

Star of love's soft interviews,
Parted lovers on these mused;
Their remembrance in Heaven
Of thrilling vows thou art,
Too delicious to be given
By absence from the heart.

A little girl, attending church for the first time, was amazed to see all the people suddenly kneel, and asked her mother why they were doing it. "Hush," the mother replied, "they're going to say their prayers."

"What! With all their clothes on?"

Old Colored Mammy: "I wants a ticket for Magnolia."

Ticket Agent (after ten minutes of weary thumbing over railroad guides): "Where is Magnolia?"

Old Colored Mammy: She's settin' over dar on de bench."

Old Uncle Amos had been very much occupied all by himself over in a corner near the fireplace. He was working industriously with a piece of paper. Suddenly he looked up happily.

"Doggone!" he exclaimed, "if Ah ain't learned to write."

Aunty got up and looked over the scrawled lines across the paper.

"What do hit say?" she asked.

"Ah don't know," replied Uncle Amos puzzled. "Ah ain't learned to read yet."

The track supervisor received the following note from one of his foremen:
"I'm sending in the accident report on Casey's foot, which he struck with the spike maul. Now, under 'Remarks,' do you want mine or Casey's?"

What's What In BUILDING CONSTRUCTION

An open forum for the discussion and explanation of construction and material problems
By Walter R. Shiner
Reg. Architect, State of Conn.

SUPERVISING SMALL HOME CONSTRUCTION

When the concrete forms are removed, examine the walls for voids and see that they are filled and any rough edges and humps that appear where they will show on the inside should be removed. If any concrete work is to be finished with a finish coat such as porch step buttresses, steps, etc., they should be finished while the concrete is green (new), otherwise the finish will peel off later.

Watch the brickwork when it is started and see that the brick are hard burned and that they are wet down with a hose before they are laid in the wall. This is standard practice except in freezing weather. A good mortar is composed of one part Portland cement, three parts of sharp sand and 10 per cent of hydrated lime. However, for brick-work above grade and where extra strength is not required as much as six parts of sand may be allowed.

After the cellar walls are completed, allow the contractor to fill in the earth after the walls have been inspected. They customarily fill in as they go along and the opportunity to check the exterior work of the walls below grade is thus lost. This is not done to avoid or cover up poor work but is done to allow the laborers to keep busy when not mixing or carrying mortar as they sometimes do on small jobs where it is inadvisable to use regular hod carriers. Co-operate with your contractor and arrange to inspect portions as they are built.

When the walls are up to proper height, it is time for the carpenter to lay the wood sills and first floor joists. They are usually in a hurry to get the frame going and unless the mason has put in his footings for the lally columns in the basement, the carpenter will as a rule, prop up the floor joists temporarily and let the mason put his columns in afterward. In this case, wood blocking must be used to get the floor joists level with resulting shrinkage or drop later on and cracked plaster. Brick piers may be used in the basement, or even wood posts, but iron lally columns or four inch pipe filled with concrete are better and more permanent. As soon as the sills and first floor joists are laid, the building is ready for the frame.

BLACK VELVET TURBANS
Black velvet, in millinery, is now being shown. Very often, the first showing of black after the white season is black velvet in some advanced style. This year it is the turban.

They are soft, pretty and most flattering. Some of them have a slight opening in the crown, but more are made without it. Some have the eye-brow drop headsize line with a tiny eye-brow veil, but most of them are the halo type with a heavy roll of velvet to fit across the top of the head from ear to ear.

A black velvet turban worn with a sheer dress is very attractive and very advanced.

Some, who feel they cannot wear a white halo hat, can wear a black velvet halo turban very easily.

Spices From the Tropics
Pepper grows in clusters of small round berries on a vine that is widely cultivated in the Netherlands East Indies as well as in India and other parts of Asia. The berries are picked before they are fully ripe and laid in the sun to dry. They become dark and black looking, as seen in cans of whole peppers. White pepper, which is popular for salads and other light foods where specks might be objectionable, is made from the same berry after the outside dark skin has been rubbed off. It is much milder than black pepper, because the chief flavoring oils are more predominant in the outer coating than in the inner berry.

Dickens Danced at Night
Charles Dickens liked to have his children dance and especially delighted in the polka step. Often he would practice it gravely in a corner by himself. One winter night he awoke with the horror that he had forgotten the step and leaping out of bed diligently rehearsed its "one, two, three, one, two, three," until he fell secure in the knowledge of the wonderful step.

On flew the train, past stretches of beautiful farm lands—on to where turns in the road brought suddenly in view, stretches of lonely rippling lakes and cool mysterious woods—on through huge rocks which threw off harsh flinty sounds, as the train rumbled over the rock-bed—on past rushing torrents, around sharp curves and over unsuspected bridges—on to the land which keeps us alert with its delightful uncertainties—on to the almost unknown and unexplored regions, where only the experienced venture out alone after dark—where darkness unchains the dwellers of the forest, which in our imagination, take on great or small forms and shapes, ever watching to pounce upon us—where the cry of some wild thing causes us to start nervously and hasten into the house!

When the 'King of Knights' ends his reign and the dews of morning sparkle in the lonely little patch of green grass near our only door, our confidence is restored in nature and ourselves and unhesitatingly we wander forth into the heart of the deep wood, or fish on the island-dotted-lake, where in deep dark pools the black bass wait for our bait.

It was a far more vicious and deadly enemy than that of our imagination which besieged us on the second evening after our arrival. The attack continued through the night and into the early part of the following morning. There were times when we felt the uselessness of struggling against so vast an army. As the lighted lamps seemed to give the enemy our range and the correct position of our encampment, "All lights out" was the order lest the enemy take us unawares. Alas for our hopes and confidence in the fortifications! The wire entanglements at the windows, proved but a simple device for so persistent and tireless a foe! Earlier in the evening, gases of smoke and oil had been resorted to and had to some degree been effectual in discouraging the enemy and causing their hasty retreat, but the pressure of new units from outside detachments, and the inefficiency of our wire entanglements, only proved that the precaution of "lights out" was disappointing and of little effect.

Column after column arrived and took up positions outside the wire entanglements. This unexpected maneuver found us unprepared for so formidable an army. We were however able to defend ourselves by a counter attack with hastily acquired hand grenades of various colors, shapes and sizes. We are glad to report that notwithstanding the superiority in numbers of the enemy, and their heavy bombardments, we came out with nothing more serious than burning wounds.

From time to time throughout the night, aerial raids took place, but our anti-air-craft missiles were in many cases able to bring the enemy down. Thus we were somewhat relieved, although throughout the entire night, snipers were at work, and pillows were resorted to instead of sand bags.

It is not expected that these heavy engagements and battles, fought so valiantly, will figure in the history of our beautiful country, but the significance of the events, to the combatants of the defensive, will not be underrated by any who have fought in like warfare, for such violent encounters are indelibly recorded in individual history.

We are able to report that toward morning the enemy withdrew and entrenched themselves in the woods. Eye witnesses testify to the great battles fought, the enemies defeat and our decisive victory! When going over the scene of action, the enemy casualties proved to be several dozens of killed, wounded and disabled mosquitoes on the battlefield of the counterpane.

As the lighted lamps seemed to give the enemy our range and the correct position of our encampment, "All lights out" was the order lest the enemy take us unawares. A Tragic Anniversary

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Recently the world noted, with a sort of shocked surprise, that the war in Spain had entered upon its second year.

During those tragic twelve months, terrific losses in life have been suffered. During them, whatever freedom the people of Spain may have enjoyed has been grievously threatened.

For into the conflict have entered the rival influences and forces of the two great enemies of individual freedom—Communism and Dictatorship. And whichever of the two may win in the end, the people themselves will lose.

Both those political products of a distraught and frightened Europe are the enemies of that democracy which we of America revere. Both preach the subjection of the individual man and woman to a dominant state or dictator. Both are repugnant to the basic principle on which our own nation was founded.

And whichever side wins faces a hollow victory. America can prove that. So can those other nations where democracy stands secure, and, with it, government dedicated to freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of religion and freedom of opportunity.

While Europe endures the tragic conflict, America celebrates this summer the 150th anniversary of a Constitution which announced the principle that "We, the people," would control our government.

What that principle can mean is demonstrated in our established record of national achievement and individual well-being—a record which no Fascist or Communist state has even remotely approached.

Coins Long in Use

No one knows exactly how long coins have been used. It is thought they were invented in Lydia in Asia Minor about the Sixth century, B. C. Their value then depended on weight, but the value was not stamped on. Ancients determined how much a coin would purchase by weighing it. It was the Greeks who first stamped values on coins.

Captains Courageous To Play Capitol

Duty battles crooks and corruption in "Let Them Live", with John Howard, Nan Grey and Edward Ellis, which plays the Capitol Theatre to-day and to-morrow. The co-feature is "Speed To Spare", with Dorothy Wilson and Charles Quigley. Saturday is Bank Night.

Rudyard Kipling's famous novel "Captain's Courageous", will play here on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, starring little Freddie Bartholomew, Spencer Tracy and Lionel Barrymore. This picture was staged in the storm and majesty of the Atlantic Ocean. Edward Everett Horton will give you a good laugh in "Oh, Doctor", the co-feature of the program.

On Wednesday and Thursday, Dick Powell will star in his latest picture "The Singing Marine", with Doris Weston. Miss Weston is a protege of Major Bowes Amateur Hour. The second feature is "She's Dangerous", with Cesar Romero and Tala Birell. Ladies Gift Night is featured both evenings.

Tide Alters Beach Heat

There will be a sudden change of as much as 11 degrees centigrade in the sand on the surface of a beach as the tide comes in.

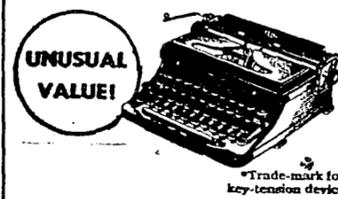

So Uncle Eben Says
