Old Linsley House Fire Takes Lives Of Two Men In Early Morning Blaze

Robert Barker And Timothy Foley In Critical Condition In Grace Hospital Following Fire In 80 Year Old Rooming House In Meadow Street.

Volunteer firemen rescued 12 persons Sunday morning just before 5 o'clock after they had been trapped by smoke and flame in their rooms on the second and third floors of the 80 year old Linsley House.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Torelli, tenants, dismissed a caller Slegfried Lund shortly before midnight.

The origin of the fire is not known but it is believed that Lund re-entered the front room, fell asleep on the couch and in some way started the fire. The Torellis were in the habit of locking the rear door but leaving the front door unlocked.

It is thought that Lund awoke, discovered the blaze and attempted to spread the alarm. He died Monday in Grace Hospital from third degree burns.

Three firemen were injured. John Skalonski sprained his ankle, Albert Skalonski received cuts from glass and George Izkovic sustained leg injuries in a fall from the ladder.

Harry Foote Bradley, a roomer died at 12:09 p. m. Monday from smoke inhalation.

Chief Roy Enquist and Assistant Chief Charles Terhune discovered Bradley fully dressed on his bed about a half hour after the alarm was given. The man became hysterical and it was necessary to trust him before he could be removed to a point of safety.

Robert Barker is in a serious condition in Grace Hospital. He was found partially dressed on the third floor. He was badly burned and overcome by smoke.

Timothy Foley is also reported in a critical condition.

Warning of the blaze was given by a prolonged blast of a train whistle which in turn attracted the attention of the men in the railroad Signal House who telephoned the Torelli family by telephone before notifying the fire department which awakened the residents.

Walter and Joseph Rutovich, brothers, slept on the second floor, were first awakened by smoke for their room was directly over the origin of the fire. They were rescued by the firemen.

Fred Moore was taken from the third floor.

The injured were taken to the home of Louis Sansone where Dr. Charles Gaylord and Dr. Arthur McQueen rendered first aid and sent the serious cases to Grace Hospital.

Two alarms were rung, the first 4:45 a. m. and the other shortly after. Firemen from Headquarters Co., No. 8, Hook and Ladder No. 1, M. P. Rice Hose Co., No. 2, the Short Beach Hose, Hook and Ladder Co., and Riverside Fire Co. responded.

When they arrived they found that the stairway had been cut off. Ladders were immediately raised to the ledges and rear exit roof and the occupants of the boarding house brought to safety as quickly as possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Torelli and three children were taken from the second floor to the home of friends in Montwese Street.

Chief Enquist ordered his men from the roof because of its unsafe condition.

The huge building was not razed, but the interior was wrecked and the remainder will probably have to be torn down. Firemen were unable to save the place as when they arrived the entire front of the structure was a mass of flames, and they directed their immediate efforts to rescuing the occupants and preventing the spread to a cluster of nearby sheds and garages.

The loss, estimated at $7,000 was covered by insurance.

SILVER JUBILEE

Postmaster Joseph Driscoll has been notified of the coming observance of National Parcel Post Month during November with fitting and appropriate celebrations of the 25th anniversary of the origin of the American parcel post system.

Tree Warden Gives Credit To Mr. Hammer

Three Warden Irwin W. Morton has expressed gratitude to the late Valdemar T. Hammer for his systematic tree plantings on Branford Green.

Throughout the hurricane area village greens have been swept of long standing shade trees. Branford green was no exception.

Due to Mr. Hammer's foresight many young trees have been planted from time to time so that the older trees would be replaced when their usefulness no longer existed.

Mr. Hammer considered that Main Street might some day be widened, so he planted a row in back of the old ones fronting the main highway.

Mr. Morton also says that several of the trees had been doctored and the town would have lost them before many years.

Traces Of Storm Deminishing At Branford Point

Evidences of the hurricane are being removed from Branford Point. The new roof on the Branford Yacht Club is completed, and work on the stone porch has begun. Considerable remains to be done before the damage caused of the storm is completely repaired.

Dr. W. E. Thompson's new two story dwelling in the course of construction replaces the demolished home. The roof boards are now on.

In the Parker Memorial Park nothing has been attempted and work there will not be started until more urgent town work is finished.

The road to the public dock is open to traffic but is very rough, bordered by crushed sidewalks and railings.

Several boats and yachts remain in the harbor and a pile of new boat stakes indicate that those lost will be replaced.

Averill's store has not been repaired but the Averill houses at the point are being reconditioned and freshly painted.

Fallen trees have been quite satisfactorily cleared at Harbor Street, Inman's, Goodsell Road and Maple Streets and many homes boast a neat wood pile in the yard.

Yesterday the Connecticut Company was making repairs in Harbor Street.

Selectmen Call Special Town Meeting Tuesday

Expected To Be Formality To Meet Legal Requirements On Revised Estimates On East Haven Board of Finance.

Selectmen James J. Sullivan, Harold Hall, and Abel Jacobs of East Haven yesterday gave notice of a special town meeting in the town hall auditorium Tuesday at 8 p. m. for the purpose of acting upon the revised estimates of the Board of Finance and the setting of the tax rate for the coming year.

Under the revision as approved at the annual town meeting a $50,000 not borrowed in anticipation of taxes is eliminated from the budget making possible a reduction of two mills in the tax rate as originally proposed. The meeting is expected to be a mere formality to meet legal requirements and there is no other business scheduled.

The Board of Assessors which sent in a grand list, estimated at the annual town meeting, is now at work on a revision to provide for property losses along the shore due to the hurricane and tidal wave of Sept. 21 which came just 10 days ahead of the annual town meeting. Property owners who suffered losses are now being heard by the assessors who are making fair reappraisals of damaged property. In a few cases actual land losses have been reported—where holdings have been partially or wholly washed away.

Stage Coaches Once Stopped At Linsley House

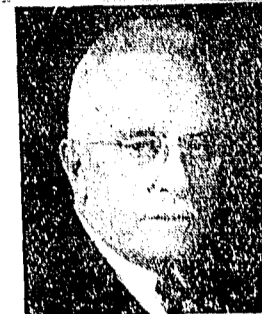

Stage coaches found a pleasant resting place at the Linsley House, 80 or more years ago when Roger's Street was the important street of the village. Later the Pastime Athletic Club occupied the building and at various times it was a boarding house or inn, housing a shoe shop, barber shop, or small store.

Thirty or more years ago the huge three story building was located where the mail pouch now is at the railroad tracks. About that time it was moved to its present location.

Charles Blackstone has a splendid collection of snapshots of the hurricane damage done to his home and 150 year old barn.

Pawson Tribe will continue holding socials every Thursday evening in Red Men's Hall starting at 8:30.

DOES WAGE LAW OUT JOBS

One of the first visible effects of the new wage and hour law in the United States is a small wave of factory shut-downs turning some thousands of persons at least temporarily out of work.
We say temporarily because there is a question as to just how serious some of these shut-downs are. Even last week Elmer F. Andrews, the Administrator, commented in connection with such reports that "these suspensions of operations seem to have been brought about in an effort to be come into compliance with the law in a more orderly way than in cases where they would have been imposed, and that in some cases inventories had been built up beforehand, or there would have been seasonal closings anyway, or certain employees were miffed at not being allowed to get around the law by technicalities.

HOW CO-OPS WORK
Several people have asked, "What are co-ops?" "How do they work?"
"Are they any good?"
The fact is that many people think cooperation is a recent development, that as early as 1870, a community was started by Thomas Firmin, a London innkeeper, who "erected a building in London for the storage of corn (wheat) for the poor, in hard times, at cost price."

HOT TIP FOR THE WEEK:

"Dracula" which is now creating a sensation at the Loew Poli College Theatre, tells a story of vampires—those strange "undead" creatures with terrible, abnormal appetites, who rise from their graves at night and reduce their unsuspecting victims to madness or death, but it is a tale of horror and sudden death, but it is said to constitute one of the most remarkable photoplays in the annals of film-dom.

Bela Lugosi portrays "Dracula", while Dald Manners, Helen Chandler, Dwight Frye, and Edward Van Sloan are in the supporting roles. Boris Karloff, who plays the murderous monster of "Frankenstein" which is also featured with "Dracula" on one program, is more than six feet in height and weighs more than 200 pounds. Karloff's make-up, guarded religiously by Universal's employees, during the making of the film, lest the public receive an inkling of the picture's odd mystery character, is said to be the most unusual and terrifying that the screen has ever seen. Theatre patrons whose nerves are supposed to be jumpy, are warned not to see it. The theatre going public can take it for granted that Karloff can take up the mantle of Lon Chaney.

Collin Clive, Mao Clarke, John Boles, Dwight Frye, Edward Van Sloan and Frederic Kerr head the cast with Karloff. "Dracula" and "Frankenstein" are at the Loew Poli College Theatre both on one program.

Mrs. Mabel Potter of North Guilford has as her house guest her daughter, Miss Marlon Potter of Lynn Bari and June Lang in "Meet The Girls" starting Sunday at the Loew Poli Bijou. A $250,000.00 Movie Quiz Picture.

Running For Re-Election

Congressman James A. Shanley running for reelection for his third term, is said to be the foremost authority on foreign affairs in the House of Representatives by no less an authority than Professor Edwin Borchard of the Yale School, a student and professor of foreign affairs who has appeared before more congressional foreign affair committees than any other authority. Congressman Shanley was born, schooled, and employed in the third congressional district for the 42 yrs of his life and comes from a family who have always lived in this district. He has a profound knowledge of this district's problems; has worked successfully for a better use of federal resources in the matter of harbor deepening and shore erosion and during the summer before the hurricane had five different conferences with army engineers on harbor problems. He is also recognized as an authority on taxation and may obtain a coveted post on the highly important Ways and Means Committee. He comes endorsed by labor, by veterans organization, and the keenest economic minds in Yale University. He is also consulted as an aviation authority and because of this has been responsible for many aviation benefits to the state in manufacturing and in the air forces.

Small Industries Answer to Slumps In N. Hampshire

Concord, N. H.—There is a rising tide of people in New Hampshire who have resorted to home industry, or its equivalent, in order to work out their economic salvation. New Hampshire has long been known as a State of small industries, the majority employing less than 100 persons each. But this new development embraces the establishment of units employing anywhere from one to ten persons each. Edward Ashton Shute of Exeter, for instance, once a prosperous business man found himself working on road construction for a living. He hit on the idea that there was a lot going on his town that went unreported in the town's newspaper so he started a mimeographed paper which provides employment for him and his wife and gives them a living.

Prof. E. E. Austin, who retired about ten years ago from the faculty of Dartmouth College saw his savings wiped away by the stock market crash, started building an observation frames to satisfy the curiosity of some Hanover boys, and today has an ant. palace business which gives employment to quite a number of persons. The League of New Hampshire Arts and Crafts, with the aid of State and private funds, has done much to push the establishment of home industries. Through its annual fairs it has built up public interest in products of craftsmen and has promoted their market. Of course the large influx of tourists into New Hampshire has been a major factor in the development of home industries depending upon direct sale of their products.

Rural families have come to the realization that a new source of cash revenue may be possible through the sale of rugs, preserves, knit goods, or wood products, means the solution of their individual financial problem. The buying public, on the other hand, has taken kindly to the move and has provided the market, in many cases in excess of the supply.

 It carries about 80 airplanes of different types. The ship carries 800 men which is the capacity when the squadrons of airplanes are not on board. However when the airplanes are on board they take their mechanics and pilots with them which raises the number of men that the ship has to carry to about 1200 men.

It was the evening of July 3rd that the order was given for all of the Lexington squadrons to report back to the air base, which is located in San Diego, California. They had the word passed in all of the theatres and places of entertainment. We were to report back to the air base before 6 o'clock the following morning. This did not make us feel any too good because we had all of our plans made to celebrate the 4th of July. Of course we couldn't disregard an order so we went back.

"We went on the ship the next morning about seven o'clock and headed for Honolulu where the search was to begin. We reached Honolulu three days later, and from then on the search began in earnest. It was thought that the Earhart plane went down somewhere around the Howland Islands which are located somewhere between the Hawaiian Islands and the Equator.

"Soon after we left Honolulu they started sending the airplanes off the ship to start the search. We took off from the ship at 8 o'clock in the morning and returned in time for our noonday meal. We took off again at one o'clock and flew until five o'clock in the evening. This went on for about two weeks and we began to feel as though it was useless to continue the search. During the night all of the ships powerful searchlights were turned on sweeping the waters hoping to sight some part of the wreckage, even hoping to see them afloat and safe, but it was to no avail. Finally the order came in to give up the search and we all drew a sigh of relief because the weather was so hot that it was almost impossible to stand it, so we headed back for San Diego.

"During the trip we saw all sorts of mammals, rocks, reefs, etc. The trip took us over waters that had never been chartered by the government so we had to go very slow at times in order to take soundings to see whether or not the water was deep enough to travel. We were entertained, after our hard days work, by the ships orchestra and also by movies which we had every night. We finally arrived back in San Diego and we all agreed that it the hardest two weeks that we had ever encountered. Of course as you all know the search was unsuccessful and many different ideas have been given as to what fate Amelia Earhart and her navigator had come to. That is all there is to the story so I will close hoping that you have enjoyed it."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Isaacs and family are living in Wilford Avenue.
