East Haven Bather Saved Off Silver Sands Beach By Nurse's Prompt Action

New Haven Youth, Visiting Alexander's Grove, Fully Recovers Before Arriving At Grace Hospital—Dr. Slater and Police Assist With Resuscitation.

Richard Behrend, nine-year-old son of Mrs. Ruby Behrend of 326 Whalley Avenue, New Haven, was rescued from drowning in the waters off Alexander's Beach at Silver Sands Tuesday afternoon through the prompt action of Miss Shirley Groden of 840 Howard Avenue, who kept the child alive by means of first aid until the police inhalator arrived at the scene.

The youngster who was a guest at a camp nearby, was with a group of other children at the camp when he was overcome. Taken to the beach a crowd of excited bathers gathered around him while Miss Groden, a New Haven Hospital graduate registered nurse and daughter of a New Haven physician, pushed forward and began the first aid treatments.

She worked over the child for about 15 minutes when Policemen Smith and Hefferman arrived from headquarters with the town inhalator. Dr. Morris Slater of 1109 Dixwell Avenue, Hamden, who was at a nearby beach also aided in the resuscitation work while an ambulance came from Grace Hospital. The child had so far recovered by the time he reached the hospital that he was discharged.

The police, Dr. Slater and hospital attaches joined in their commendation of the first aid ministrations by Miss Groden.

Many Nations Represented In Theatre

This week at the Flying Point Hotel, is a regular international week with the flags of many nations flying high. Of course the American flag is way out in front, but other nationalities are well represented—Swedish, English, Austrian, Polish, French, Canadian, and Irish.

Particularly there are flags for: Lotte Stavisky, charming young Viennese refugee-actress who will make her American theatre stage debut during the week of August 10th at the Stony Creek Theatre in "Letters to Lucerne"—she plays the part of a German girl, Ella Schmidt; for Lydia Pacwa, a Polish girl, who plays the part of a Polish girl, Olga Kirinsky, in the same play; for Patricia Lennon, English girl who plays the part of Marlon Corwood, an English girl; and for Mrs. Hammond, the director's wife Swedish by birth, who generally does everything no one else can or has time to do—from being a dietitian to designing covers for stage furniture.

The emergency wagon will be used to transport needed Red Cross material to and from various Red Cross units in and out of Branford, and to convey officers of the Red Cross to meetings and conferences when necessary. In an emergency it can also be used as an ambulance, and later it may be needed to carry air observers.

The Branford Red Cross will store this wagon in the Central Garage, trained Motor Corps drivers will operate it, and it will be no expense to the town.

Contributions may be sent to any of the following members: Charles N. Baxter, Mrs. James J. Walworth, Mrs. T. F. Hammer, Mrs. Rudolph F. Bailey and John E. Donnelly.

Small Town South On Sale Tuesday

Sam Byrd Constructed His Outlines And Planned Chapters While Playing Last Season at Stony Creek Theatre.

Small Town South is a collection of some fifty complete one-act plays, comedy and tragedy. That isn't strictly true for when Sam Byrd sorted notes at his waterfront cottage at Stony Creek last summer he probably hadn't the faintest idea that his Life-in-America prize book would develop into anything but a simple diary-like sketch of a lonesome, homesick boy's return from Broadway.

But Byrd, though he does not write in play form nevertheless is a playwright at heart.

Settings he places "where the only sounds were the murmurings of the pines and coursing of the yellow river." Or too, where shiny white houses set in palm groves. To make realistic another short act he sets the scene amid broken down houses by the side of a plantation road." And later the background "a house with a storybook roof."

Characters are taken from life, taken from life seen in visits with Mark Cherry, men and women he know, talked with and about, an endurance rocker, town bully community mid-wife and the boy who married little Jenny Bowden.

Not pleasant is all the action. Viewing the remains of a Negro who had been lynched is neither pleasant nor amusing but it is the South. He writes of Belle whose great desire was to work in Harlem. Takes a ride on a golden sunbeam but returns for shade for "if you stay too long in the sun it will dry you up." No final curtain drops when the story ends, climax passed and close accomplished. As the author knows it, the show is over but the actors are real, honest-to-goodness people living off the strawberry and celery fields and their existence goes on from barbecue to barbecue with no time out for applause.

After tramping with "Tobacco Road" and "Of Mice and Men" Mrs. Byrd's little boy left the great White Way to forget for a spell dressing rooms and velvet curtains Actor that he is he could not leave the theatre to renew friendships, renew his faith in the South. He

THE POCKETBOOK OF KNOWLEDGE

SPEAKING OF HEALTH

Good health in old age, as well as long life, may well be dependent upon the health of the young.

Some Causes of Early Death

Three unfavorable factors that may shorten life and discourage good health in old age are insufficient or incorrect diet, infection, and overwork.

Overwork can cut down your years of life. The more rapid the rate of living, the shorter the time we last.

Infection must, of course, be guarded against. See your doctor at the first signs of infection or infectious diseases.

Correct diet is of paramount importance if we are to keep our human machine in good order all during the long run. Eat the "five fundamental foods" daily: (1) milk; (2) eggs or meat; (3) whole wheat or properly "enriched" breads and cereals; (4) green and yellow leafy vegetables; and (5) fresh fruits.

Adding Years to Your Life

Avoid overeating. Thin people live longer than fat people.

Get plenty of fresh air, sunshine, sleep, and moderate exercise in the middle years. They are necessary forerunners of good health in the evening of life.

If you don't want to grow old, it is better to die young. This is the teaching of modern medicine, and discarding those that are taking thought now.

You can do it by overhauling your habits, keeping those that conform to the teachings of modern medicine, and discarding those that are taking thought now.

Hospitals are no longer places to go to die; they are places to go to get well.

Health in Old Age

Longevity is a blessing only if it permits us to enjoy the richest part of our life for a longer time. Not many people really want to live to the 100 unless they can enjoy reasonably good physical and mental health.

There are some well-known physicians who think that the length of life depends upon inches high and about two inches thick. The miniature set has a crystal receiver which fits into a certain unfavorable factor met in

Solid Streams Extinguishes Incendiary

Acting to clear up wide-spread misunderstanding on the proper methods of fighting fire bombs, Colonel H. P. Fisher, Chief of the State Defense Council, issued a statement yesterday which outlines conditions under which a spray or a jet of water may be used most effectively against incendiary bombs.

Statements issued by the Office of Civilian Defense in Washington recently which recommend using a spray of water upon incendiary bombs have prompted hundreds of telephone calls and letters to the State Defense Council from local councils, air raid wardens and citizens who had been instructed in the use of the fine spray of water in connection with incendiary bombs.

Colonel Fisher prepared his statement with the counsel and advice of Michael T. Keena, former chief of the Hartford fire department who is now serving as director of fire protection for the State Defense Council; Hartford Fire Marshall Henry Thomas; and Thomas A. Marston of the Defense Council Staff.

The full statement is as follows: "The Office of Civilian Defense has recently recommended that a 'jet' or solid stream of water should be used to extinguish incendiary bombs."

In calling attention to this recommendation the Connecticut State Defense Council asks Civilian Defense workers to give the matter full consideration to let various techniques of extinguishing incendiary bombs and controlling fires with the aid of water be made effective new technique which can be developed also to the ability of our protective organizations to control one of the greatest dangers from air raids — fire.

The "jet" or stream should be used in the following manner: First, the surrounding incendiary material — flooring, furniture, etc., — should be wet down, to decrease the danger of fire, then the bomb should be attacked. When the bomb is struck by a stream, there will be a sudden flare up from the bomb which will scatter the incendiary stream. In a medium size room, such a flare up would not be unduly alarming, but in a large room it may well give the average person a good scare. Anyone using a stream on a bomb should be prepared for this flare up. The bomb is destroyed, and with a proper preliminary wetting down of the surrounding material, no fire should be feared. The stream is not a fire extinguisher, however. The minimum size of stream to be used should be a 1/2 inch stream at 35 lbs. pressure; a 3/4 inch stream at 35 lbs. pressure is safer. This implies the use of a garden hose with a considerable pressure behind it, as a 1/2 inch stream at 35 lbs. pressure means a discharge of 15 gallons per minute. The use of a garden hose in the attic of a three or four story building brings up several problems. In the average city, the water pressure may only give a trickle at the faucets in the upper stories. In addition, most plumbing systems are constructed of galvanized pipe which are often badly corroded. Further cutting down the pressure in the attic is not a good idea. In fact, it is possible a more effective use of stream technique when other conditions, such as quantity of water and nature of surroundings, make it advisable. Otherwise, the well tried spray technique is advised, especially for those who are inexperienced in fighting fires in narrow places.

Warfare is not static. It may be that new types of bombs will be developed which require new techniques. These recommendations are based only on the knowledge of conditions at the moment. They may have to be changed at any time.

If there's a surplus of jeeps when the war is over, the little "bottle buggies" may find wide use on U. S. highways. These new jeeps, made by the Jeep has "great post-war possibilities," though its low gear is too fast for plowing and its chassis too low for some row-crop operations.

SAGAS OF THE SKIES

WAR-TIME, mine-infested seas have been responsible for the tragic destiny of many gallant ships and the stalwart souls who man them. Such was the fate of a small Canadian freighter recently in the Caribbean where, but for the consummate skill of the pilot of the United States Navy bomber and his courageous crew, the hungry waters would have claimed in addition four members of the ill-starred vessel.

It all happened in the twinkling of an eye—within thirty seconds after being struck the ship sank—not a chance to inhale a life belt; and so it was that twenty-two-year-old Peter Kovacs of Wheeling, West Virginia, a seaman found themselves awash amidst the swirling waves, and over which, in the unbelievably thin line of a half minute earlier, they had been sailing.

Managing to gather several floating covers which they fastened together into a raft, with the aid of their belts and shoe laces, Peter and his companions were able to hold the water holding for an hour. Then in the darkness they heard the roar of engines and the glow of red flares were dropped until the surface of the water was lit and the bomber's crew spotted the survivors. They found later that the bomber had flown out to search for them in response to an SOS sent by another ship in the vicinity.

In such darkness and on a sea so rough that it started the case of one person the plane landed, took the four men aboard, and then, despite the damaged pontoon, the engine and the motor, the pilot took off and flew safely to the U. S. Naval Hospital in Trinidad, April, 1941. "I was a 'Lucky' man," said Peter Kovacs, "and I am grateful to the U. S. Navy for saving my life."

use of sand and the use of mechanical suiflers. As a means of controlling the incendiary stream, the incendiary bomb is not effective, but the object of an incendiary bomb is to start a fire. The fire is the fundamental danger, the bomb is incidental. If the fire must be controlled, and only water can control it. As auxiliary agents to remove bombs, both incendiary and non-incendiary, but water is absolutely essential. As fire is the chief danger, it is also essential that every effort must be made to remove all highly combustible materials from attics and unused rooms in upper stories so that they cannot start easily. Attics must be cleaned out.

To summarize: The object of use of incendiary bombs is to start fires. By cleaning out attics and decreasing fire hazards, the immediate danger of fire is diminished. This practice will also make possible a more effective use of stream technique when other conditions, such as quantity of water and nature of surroundings, make it advisable. ## SUPERMEN OF THE U.S. ARMY

Red Stetson and wife Edna off on first "vacation" in years. He'll only do several benefit and army shows while visiting Louisville and Vincennes, Indiana, his home town.

With the sale of over a million dollars worth of war bonds to his credit, 10-year-old Johnny Sheffield returned home this week from his "Thanks for Yanks" bond-selling tour. Good trader Johnny paid his last engagements with a sprained ankle. He had to be carried into the stage.

Mechanical quirks of a 10-ton truck are being learned by Frank Chot Tuo. He has to drive one of the monsters in "Skyway to Glory."

Lionel Barrymore had to kiss the bride before a marriage. When Miss Diana Barrymore married Bramwell Fletcher, Barrymore, in attendance, was called to the studio to appear in "The Man on America's Conscience." He just had time to give the bride a brief smack and left before the ceremony commenced.

The melancholy light in starlet Dorothy Morris' eyes is caused by the departure of her fiancé, Marvin Fulle. He's off for the Navy's preflight training school at St. Mary's college in California.

Edward Arnold is on his way back to Bohemian Grove, California, to complete a fishing trip he started before being called back to M-G-M for scenes in "The Sign of the Cross."

"Anything for a friend" is Charles Laughton's favorite saying — and he's proven it. While sidekick Frank Thomas is in the army, Laughton will care for his 150-pound dog — even to the feeding!

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

Plucky Laraine Day is working overtime to become one of Hollywood's first women pilots. Nights when she is through acting in MGM's "Journey for Margaret," she studies meteorology, aerodynamics and navigation preparatory to her actual flight training.

Honors for "Mrs. Miniver" are piling up too rapidly to be counted. Latest is an award as the motion picture industry's outstanding contribution to the war effort presented by Los Angeles city officials.

Incidentally, a print of the Greer Garson-Walter Pidgeon star has been buried beneath the foyer of Grauman's Chinese Theatre for the benefit of future generations of the retrograde.

Favorites Again Seen In Play By Drinkwater

The week of August 17th at the Stony Creek Theatre will be a revival of the international comedy "Bird in Hand" by John Drinkwater. It is the play that has enthralled audiences from London to New York and from New York to Stony Creek for more than a decade.

Ronald T. Hammond, who will again both direct and act in the play, has been associated with the production since it was first produced by Sir Barry Jackson's Birmingham Repertory Theatre in England. In London, the following year, he staged the production at the author's request, where the play ran for over a year. There then came the call of New York. Coming with the original company for his first trip to the United States, Mr. Hammond again directed the play with the result that it ran there for nearly two years. The initial successes of the play were sufficient for it to be played twice again in 1931 in New York under Mr. Lee Schubert's direction.

From Mr. Hammond's earlier associations with this play, the Stony Creek players will inherit a true understanding of and a devotion to its inimitable qualities as a joyous comedy of the mellow, heart-warming, the rescue at Dunkirk and the bombing of the village, emphasis is placed on the reactions of these everyday people going through the horrors of war in their own homes, rather than the tragic events themselves.

The Dunkirk sequence, for example, shows the non-combatant British men of the village collecting their fleet of tiny boats to rescue trapped fathers, sons and brothers across the turbulent and dangerous channel.

Now for the entertainment thrill of the year—see and hear those terrific "queens of the music machine" — the Andrews Sisters, America's Top Singing Trio and stars of stage, screen, radio and records, who will appear in Person on the stage of the Air-Conditioned State Theatre, Hartford, this coming Friday Saturday and Sunday only! Hear them sing the tunes of the day that sky-rocketed them to fame, in addition to an entirely new repertoire of songs as only the Andrews Sisters can swing them. Appearing

RIGHT OUT OF THE AIR

BETTY WINKLER, pictured here in "Letters to Lucerne," is the star of the play that has enthralled audiences from London to New York and from New York to Stony Creek for more than a decade.

American Debut Pleases Guests At Stony Creek

There's something honest in "Letters to Lucerne" to make even the most generous minded person squint under his genuine tears.

Fair weather friends become hostile when distorted world events at the time of the invasion of Poland, put a stamp of hatred, suspicion and quarrelsomeness on a girls' school where students from conflict-infused countries continue studies as if nothing had happened.

Can't draw the line, Director Hammond has made reviewing this season difficult. Fyrrne Hamden and Kathryn Cameron deserve some word of commendation.

The men, Albert Vess, Kevin Kemble, Thomas Craven and Donald Arbury complete the cast.

If you attend, and you miss a good show if you don't, you'll notice again the appropriate artistic settings done by Ann Williams, Branford girl.

On Thursday evening, August 13th, the American Tube Bending Company of New Haven will hold a summer party for the thirty-seven members of the office staff. They will have a shore dinner at the Indian Point Hotel in Stony Creek and then attend the Stony Creek Theatre to see "Letters to Lucerne."
