Every person who owns or rents a plot of ground should begin now while the roots are small to pull it up, or if unable to pull it up cut it down before it begins to pollinate about the 15th of August.

Prof. Penniman Explains Both 1944 Platforms

The Women's Democratic Club of Branford held an open meeting for its members July 27th in the Community House. Mrs. Leonard Farmer, chairman of the club opened the meeting. She explained the organizational work done so far by the executive board. Mrs. Farmer also explained the objectives and purpose of the club and the political importance it would hold in the coming national election. As a future organization, the chairman mentioned the constructive work that can be carried on locally.

The speakers of the evening were Attorney David McCoy, chairman of the Democratic Town Committee in New Haven, and Professor Penniman of Yale University. Mr. McCoy gave many important suggestions on organization, bringing out valuable facts which would help to further develop and strengthen the group. Professor Penniman told of the many differences between the Democratic and Republican platforms. He showed the discrepancies in the Republican platform and in the work and thinking of its candidates, also stated the advantages of a Roosevelt renomination as opposed to a Dewey victory.

The following officers of the club have been elected to serve this term: Mrs. Leonard Farmer, chairman; Mrs. Frank Albondi, secretary; Mrs. Betty Hinchey, treasurer; Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald, publicity; Mrs. Harold Mullen, Mrs. Anne Gordon, and Miss Mary Devlin, constitutional committee.

Kendall Estate Will Be Used As Restaurant

Edward Trejsner of Ye Olde Town Restaurant, was given permission yesterday by the Board of Zoning Appeals of New Haven to transform the "Old Castle" on the Kendall estate at 2 Fairmont Avenue, into a restaurant.

Trejsner, through his attorney, has promised the city from 10 to 12 feet of land, free of charge, to eliminate the Forbes Avenue curve, as well as land in Woodward Avenue should the city ever wish to widen that thoroughfare. Heirs to the Kendall estate still reside on the property, but it is known that they will be leaving shortly.

Trejsner in his petition said no outside changes would be made in the appearance of the property other than widening driveways and making a parking area. The inside will be transformed somewhat, however. Mr. Trejsner plans to reside on the upper floors.

Lumber Yards Can Only Sell Minimum Stock

Maximum For One Yard Averages 103 Board Feet Per Day—Applications For Materials From WPB Office.

The most drastic restriction ever to be placed on lumber went into effect Tuesday.

Lumber for repair and maintenance of homes, stores, clubs, churches and some factories—in fact lumber for practically all civilian use, are reduced to an unbelievable minimum. So small that no lumber yard, in any part of this country, will be able to sell an average of more than 103 board feet per day as the regulation now stands. The maximum for any one yard will be 8,000 feet for a three-month period divided among all non-rated and so-called MRO-AA-5 orders.

The War Production Board has made many attempts to control the uses of lumber; however the production has been insufficient to meet the demand; this order on effective date virtually "freezes" the lumber dealer's inventory, and such further stocks that he may receive, also controls sales of same.

Billions of feet of lumber are being used in the manufacturing and crating of vital-war materials; building of cantonments here and overseas; ships, docks, and thousands of other uses that are vital to the successful prosecution of our war efforts.

"There will be but a small quantity of lumber available for the so-called 'homeowner' in fact no lumber yard, no matter how large will be allowed to sell an average of 103-board-feet per day on 'unrated' orders, the home owner's order would be unrated unless his repairs or improvements are approved and assigned a rating by either the War Production Board or Federal Housing Administration.

"In case of emergency repairs, where a hazard has been created, loss by fire, etc., home owners should call the nearest WPB office or his lumber supplier for procedure in making application for material required.

"Any individual or manufacturing plant doing war work will be allowed to secure lumber under a rating.

"Farmers under this order are allowed 300 board feet each calendar quarter, such material must be used in accordance with rules of the War Food Administration; for additional lumber the farmer must make application to WFA for approval and rating.

"Lumber for farmers is allotted in quotas to each state, for Connecticut the quota is 8,400,000 feet for the quarter ending September 30, 1944.

Telephone Co. Given Honors For Services

In recognition of "excellent co-operation and patriotic service," The Southern New England Telephone Company received the Chief Signal Officer's Certificate of Appreciation awarded by Major General H. C. Ingles, Chief Signal Officer of the United States Army, today at noon in the Company headquarters in New Haven.

Colonel Alexander S. Edmonston, Chief Signal Officer of the First Service Command, made the presentation at a ceremony attended by employees. President Allerton F. Brooks in accepting the certificate on behalf of the Company, stated that "it is a great source of pride and satisfaction to us to know that telephone skill, ingenuity and efficiency are helping to win the victory. Of the 677 employees of The Southern New England Telephone Company who have entered military service, 156 are now in the Signal Corps."

The award marks the participation of the telephone company in a plan under which highly skilled men were quickly recruited in the early days of the war as a nucleus for a greatly expanded military communications system.

Major General Ingles, in a letter announcing the award, states that "in sponsoring the activation of affiliated Signal Corps units of highly trained men at a time of national emergency, your company materially aided the Signal Corps in its gigantic task of furnishing to the United States Army the world's greatest military communications system."

Regulation Card System Relaxed

Coast Guard regulations pertaining to identification cards were partially relaxed in this area by an order issued from the Captain of the Port of New London. The order, released by Lieut. (j.g.) John K. Murphy, USCGR, assistant Captain of the Port of New London at New Haven, said:

"It is no longer required that Coast Guard Identification Cards be held by passengers on board pleasure craft in the unrestricted waters of this area, providing they carry some other suitable means of identification; the operator of the craft however is still required to have a Coast Guard Identification Card.

This change is announced in an order from the Captain of the Port of New London, which has been received by the Assistant Captain of the Port at New Haven. This relaxation of war-time requirements is effective in the Connecticut waters of Long Island Sound (and its tributaries), which lie to the westward of a line drawn from Black Point to Orient Point."

Tax Collector James Ogilvie spoke on tax liens, foreclosure and sale of property for non payment of taxes at the weekly meeting today of the East Haven Rotary Club.

Soldiers At Hospital In England Following Action At Battlefront

Parents Notified Of Injuries Received In France—Write Words Of Praise Of Red Cross—Trained Together In This Country—Tell Parents Not To Worry.

Parents of three members of the armed forces were notified this week that their sons, who left Branford together, have seen action during the invasion and are in a hospital in England following injuries received in Normandy.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fresco, 40 Chestnut Street received a letter from their son, Sgt. Edward Fresco today in which he writes that he is in a hospital in England where "it is hard to write. I am as good as can be expected... was slightly wounded in France," where he was fighting with a mortar unit.

Writes Fresco to his mother, "Whenever the Red Cross comes around give them all you can for they deserve it. They give all the boys everything that is possible. It is something wonderful what they are doing for the boys, including myself."

The extent of his injuries are not known, but he mentions attending Church services and says "slightly wounded."

Another boy, Pvt. Daniel Sudac, son of Mrs. Michael Sudac of Elm Street was injured while in action on the Normandy battlefront.

In a letter to his mother he stated that his injuries were nothing to worry about, and that he hopes to return to action soon.

Sgt. Raymond Orsene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rocco Orsene, has been wounded in action in Normandy, according to a letter received here from Sgt. Orsene, who is now in a hospital in England recovering from wounds in the arms and legs.

A few days previous to receiving this communication Sgt. Orsene wrote his parents while in a fox hole on the firing line that it was not much fun being in a muddy fox hole but that it was protection against being killed.

Sgt. Orsene is well known in town having played basketball and baseball under the tutelage of John E. Knecht, Jr., former Branford High coach.

A letter received today told his parents, who live at 78 Ivy Street not to worry that he was improving.

The young men trained together at Camp Atterbury, Ind., in Tennessee and Kentucky. In April they shipped to England.

LUMBER GOES TO WAR

Lumber has gone to war. So much lumber has been going to war that it has been necessary to curtail building even more than during the past few months.

After war will come peace and with peace comes the desire to build—to create. One of the most definite trends in planning for peace is evidenced by the great number of persons both in and out of the armed services who have indicated a strong desire to build new homes around a hobby or avocation.

Experts are confident that the 1944 corn crop will set a new record unless drought shrivels it in the fields. The government's July 1 estimate of two billion 880 million bushels was the largest of any July.

Some economists say that in view of the bumper wheat harvest, the War Food Administration should reduce its announced goal of 67 to 70 million acres of wheat in 1945. WPA officials believe, though, that while the war lasts, wheat in the bin is better than money in the bank.

Book-of-the-Month Club selection for August and heralded by Washington and London officials as the most important book yet on the diplomatic picture of this war, the book calls for "immediate action in establishing an international organization which is supported by free men throughout the world."

WAR CROPS FROM MIDDLE AMERICA

ABACA FULL SPEED AHEAD! Workers clear a Panama jungle for new crops. Above or Manila hemp is one of these much needed raw crops.

FAST-GROWING ABACA looks like the banana plant in three months—it is harvested in six to eight months.

STREAMLINED PRODUCTION, routes freshly harvested abaca stalks through shredding machines of Almirante, Panama.

ABACA OR MANILA HEMP is a new crop in Middle America. When Japan cut off our rope supplies from the Far East, the American tropics could supply only what was left from the experimental plantings started in 1925. Later the United Fruit Company expanded plantings to about 2,100 acres—only one source of the essential rope fiber. Then the U. S. Defense Supplies Corporation contracted with United Fruit, which has already planted 30,000 acres to meet the shortage.

READY FOR WAR! Manila rope ready for use in United States shipping and industry.

THUMB-NAIL EXPERIMENT WITH CORN, TOMATO COLOR SHOW RIPENESS

One of the advantages and chief satisfactions of having a garden is being able to serve vegetables on the family table only a few hours after they have left the back-yard plot. And if the vegetables are of prime quality and at exactly the right maturity point, the satisfaction is even greater.

Many beginning gardeners, however, are in some doubt as to just how to tell when their backyard crops are in prime condition for picking. Corn and tomatoes, ripening now, are two of the vegetables with which amateurs have the most difficulty in the respect, according to Dr. Donald E. Jones of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station.

The "thumb-nail" test is the best means of determining when corn is ripe, he says. If the kernels of a thumb-nail, the corn is just right for eating. Corn is one vegetable which must be cooked very shortly after it has left the garden. Some epicures say that the water should be boiling in the pot before the gardener picks the ears. Although this may be a little exaggerated, it's best not to let more than four hours elapse between picking and eating.

Tomatoes should be ripened thoroughly on the vine before picking, but should not be allowed to remain in the garden after they have matured. As soon as they are an even red color over the entire fruit, it's time to pick them. Leave tillers on corn. Dr. Jones also gives a few timely hints on care of these two popular mid-season crops. Many questions come in to the Experiment Station as to whether tillers should be left on corn or should be pulled off.

Under normal conditions, tillers should not be cut off. Dr. Jones says. They fulfill a valuable function in that they help the main stalk to produce a larger ear. Removal of the tillers is apt to result in a decreased yield, as well as a drop in the average weight of the ears, and there will be no gain in earliness of ripening, as is commonly believed.

Gardeners will do well to take precautions now against the attack of the corn earworm which is likely to be troublesome on corn that matures in late August or early September. A few drops of colorless, medicinal-quality mineral oil, applied with an oil can or medicine dropper, into the silk channel three or four days after the silks appear will give satisfactory control.

Corn will not require much cultivation from now on. Most of it is high enough to shade the ground and there won't be much trouble with weeds except in the case of late plantings. Late corn will probably need some cultivation. This should be shallow so that the opinion, though, that the supply picture for either fuel or coal will be determined by a lot of factors just beginning to emerge or still hidden on the world battle fronts.

As a practical bit of advice, I can only say that anybody who bets all his chips on either coal or oil is making a mistake. There are occasional shortages of both commodities this winter, or there may not.

I am sure of this—a wave of reconversions either to coal or oil burning equipment can upset all balanced calculations and make matters a whole lot worse than they might be otherwise. So let's sit tight with the heating system we have. We've weathered two winters. I think we can weather another without too much inconvenience.

Since we're on the subject of reconversions of heating equipment, you will be interested to know that there are some circumstances under which you may convert a space heater or a furnace back to burning oil. These circumstances may be generally classified under "undue hardship." That is, if it is physically impossible for you or a member of your family to take care of coal burning equipment, you may apply to your local War Price and Rationing Board for permission to reconvert.

I eat my peas with honey I have done so all my life I know not why I do so, except I kept them on my knife.

July "Gardengraphs" have been placed on the Garden Center Table at the Library.

A convenient time table to hang in the kitchen, indicates all processing times for vegetables, fruits, meats, fish and soups. Also containing bulletin No. 242 is available Call Mrs. Grace Hunter, if you wish a copy sent you.

To the already long list of apple insects which are an annual headache to Connecticut growers, one more pest has been added. The new arrival is the European apple sawfly, which first appeared in the state this year, and according to Dr. Phillip Garman, entomologist at the Conn. Agricultural Experiment Station has been seen in apple orchards along the shore line from Guilford to Greenwich.

The following donated flowers from their gardens: Mrs. Winchester Bennett, Mrs. S. A. Griswold, Mrs. A. P. Tucker, Mrs. C. L. Farns, Mrs. M. D. Stanley, Mrs. A. E. The Garden Club will meet on Friday August 4th at 12:30 at the home of Mrs. Winchester Bennett. Box lunches. Subject "Bird and Bird Pictures". Speaker, Mr. Henry Townsend of New Haven.

STATE MAINTAINS CHECK ON SUMMER CAMP SANITATION The importance of sanitary inspections in recreational areas is the subject of Connecticut's summer camps was discussed in the weekly bulletin of the Connecticut State Department of Health.

DROWNING RECORDS SHOW FEMALE LESS DARING THAN MALE The July Bulletin of the State Department of Health presents a ten year study by William C. Welling, Director of the Bureau of Vital Statistics, on "Accidental Drownings in Connecticut."

Figures show July to be the most dangerous month at 187 or 21.5 per cent of the total 870 accidental drownings over the 10 year period occurred in July. However, the three vacation months, June, July and August, indicated a danger period with its total of 477 drownings or 54.8 per cent of the total.

Mr. Welling said that his figures reveal that many more males are drowned than females, the ratio being 60 to 1. This ratio was particularly noticeable in the month of May when figures showed a ratio 21 to 1 which Mr. Welling interpreted: "It seems evident that women are able to resist the urge for the early plunge of the season."

The December drownings show an increase over October and November due to early skaters who go out too soon on unmade ice. Then there is March when adventurous youths like to skate or slide swiftly over bending and buckling ice.

As to age, the 10-19 age group was the most critical, for 19.2 per cent of all accidental drownings occurred there. In the age group 30-39 about 16 males were drowned accidentally to each female.

BY SUSAN THAYER

BRINGING IN THE SCRAP Up to my door this morning came nine-year-old Peter. His little red wagon sagged with bundles of paper. Peter had collected I don't know how many loads of scrap for the war. And in the process, he'd grown up. A year ago he was too shy to speak to me on the street.

"I'm general in the J-Wardens now," he told me today, fatly bursting with pride. After we had tucked my bundle of fastened cartons in with the load, and Peter had unrolled it off, I got to thinking about these young scrap troopers.

No dictator tells Peter and his friends, Emily Lou and Roger, that Lucy've go to collect scrap. Their teacher suggests it, and they understand pretty well that they're helping big brother Jim and Uncle Fred and Gen. Eisenhower. And, true, there's the incentive of wear-

Each summer an inspector from the State Department of Health checks the sanitation of each organized camp in the state to see that the explicit rules of Regulation 102 of the state Sanitary Code are followed.

The water supply is checked as to location of the source, and methods of distribution. The supply must be of approved quality and of sufficient quantity to meet camp needs. Lake water used for bathing cannot be used for drinking or domestic purposes. In Connecticut drinking water sources are protected wells and springs.

General kitchen cleanliness, refrigeration, food handling and dishwashing methods are also covered by the inspection. Pasteurized milk is recommended as a healthiest bathing place and is investigated with reference to nearby sources of contamination. The type of medical and nursing service provided by the camp is also ascertained.

Such inspection work is done in cooperation with local health officers. Summaries of the inspection reports and sanitary ratings are furnished to local health officers and camp managements. Managers of summer camps are held directly responsible for proper equipment facilities and supervision of camp areas, and freedom from nuisances potentially dangerous to health.

Camps are centers of health building and recreation but unless the health aspects of camp life are cared for however, vacationists would do better to stay where public water supplies are supervised, sewage and wastes collected, and pasteurized milk and other sanitary safeguards of modern city life are available.

The Rev. A. W. Jones, minister of the First Baptist Church, has returned from a month's vacation at Chatham on Cape Cod. During the month of August he will be available to serve the members of both Congregational and Baptist parishes.

RAW MILK OR ITS PRODUCTS CAUSE OF BRUCELLOSIS

The weekly broadcast of the State Department of Health dealt with the problem of brucellosis, more commonly known as undulant fever, three members of the staff taking part in the discussion—Doctor Eugene E. Lamoureux, Epidemiologist; Elizabeth C. Ulickerson, Director of the Bureau of Public Health Instruction and Mrs. Robert Grosch.

It was brought out that the state epidemiologists are called in by the local health officer to assist him in locating the source of brucellosis when a case has been reported to him.

The source is invariably raw milk or milk products but occasionally from the handling of infected animals. When the milk from a given herd is located as the possible source of the disease, the first step is for the Dairy and Food Commissioner to confirm this by having all the milk tested at the State Department of Health Laboratories.

The dairyman is then requested to do one of two things—have his herd tested for Bang's disease and eliminate the infected animals, or to have all of his milk pasteurized. The test for Bang's disease is under the control of the Commissioner on Domestic Animals. The dairyman can be reimbursed for the infected cows that have to be eliminated. As a rule the dairyman meets both requests and has all the milk pasteurized.

As the public becomes aware of the danger of raw milk which can cause not only brucellosis, but other diseases the germs of which reach the milk through milk handlers, they will demand regulations for pasteurized milk in their community. Most of the larger cities now sell nothing but pasteurized milk.

JANE ARMY NURSE WRITES HER CO.

Dear Sir,
I've just received your letter and I'm so glad to hear from you. I'm still here and I'm well. I hope you're doing the same. I'll be on my way back soon. I'll be sure to write you again. I'll be sure to write you again. I'll be sure to write you again.

This letter certainly has given me a new lease on life. I have also seen some of the front fighters are in the line all the way; saving used cooking fats, among many other things in one of their great jobs.

Yours truly,
Jane
