Time was when the annual game between the Branford Laurels and the East Haven Townies was a looked-for Thanksgiving Day event. Fans from both towns jammed the side-lines in those days. Now we can look forward to a revival of the Branford-East Haven rivalries with their respective school teams noisily supported yea after year by increasing throngs of supporters and alumni.

A DESERVED HONOR

An event of numeral interest to East Haveners takes place next Sunday at the National Shrine at Catholic University in Washington. The Rt. Rev. Monsignor John J. Reilly will be formally installed there in the rank of Domestic Prelate at solemn investiture ceremonies. Monsignor Reilly, a native of New Haven, was formerly administrator of St. Ann's Parish in Highwood.

The date is that of the Feast of the Immaculate Conception a most holy feast day in the Catholic calendar. The ceremonies will be of the Saltonstall Civic Association of the Men's Club of the Stone followed by a solemn pontifical high mass at which the Most Rev. held Tuesday evening in the home church in the parish house next Amleto Giovanni the apostolic delegate from the Hely See to the of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jacobson in Tuesday evening. Dinner will United-States, will pontificate. The sermon will be proached by the Saitonstall Parkway. Steps were served at 6:30 by the Ever Ready Most Rev. John F. Noll, Bishop of Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Under the above caption the Editor of the New Era (Deep River) raises the question as to whether the town meeting is really surer respectively. a democratic instrument of government. He says he was talking to a man recently who had advanced the theory, heretical, he presumes, to many of his readers, that the town meeting is not democratic. This friend argued that town meetings are not democratic because the citizens, by and large, fail to take part in them, and generally speaking, only those with axes to grind participate. The mandates of a town meeting are therefore, according to this reasoning, the mandates of those with ulterior motives. He further contended that town meetings can be "packed!" altogether too easily. Furthermore, he thinks, all too often only one side of a question is presented at the average town meeting, and the people are swayed by oratory far too easily. Many citizens are timid about speaking out and fail to present their viewpoints, the meeting, therefore, tends to be dominated by their viewpoints, the meeting, therefore, tends to be dominated by the articulate, rather than the sound.

We want that town meeting is not democratic because that the vote of setting up a training program for was taken by Mrs. Martindale and the redeployment of supplies and Harry Ettar who were appointed as equipment, For his war work he was taken by Mrs. Martindale and Harry Ettar who were appointed as equipment, For his war work he was taken by Mrs. Martindale and Harry Ettar who were appointed as equipment, For his war work he was taken by Mrs. Martindale and the redeployment of supplies and Harry Ettar who were appointed as equipment, For his war work he was taken by Mrs. He redeployment of supplies and Harry Ettar who were appointed as equipment, For his war work he was taken by Mrs. He redeployment of supplies and Harry Ettar who were appointed as equipment, For his war work he was taken by Mrs. He redeployment of supplies and Harry Ettar who were appointed as equipment, For his war work he was taken by Mrs. He redeployment of supplies and Harry Ettar who were appointed as the redeployment of supplies and Harry Ettar who were appointed as the next meeting, Tuesday January 7 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pall H. We must say that we agree with this line of thinking from our business meetings lit has long been our oning the superiors based on local town meetings it has long been our oning business meeting with refreshments in the sound.

A Christmas party followed the pano, Mrs. H. Lewis, Mrs. H. are putting on their annual chicken business meeting with refreshments Schwart, Mrs. W. Braun, James ple supper and business meeting with refreshments in the sound. experience based on local town meetings. It has long been our opinion that most modern towns have outgrown the "town meeting stage". To be sure, in the old days town meetings were democracy in the purest form, That was when the number of voters were few was furnished by Oliver Johnson. Schwart, Mrs. W. Braun, James ple supper and bazaar at the Parish House on Meeting House Hill from Mrs. Harry Etter. Christmas music in the purest form, That was when the number of voters were few was furnished by Oliver Johnson. and all participated. Today when a town meeting is called there is usually only a handful of voters present, and then only those, as this editor's friend pointed out, with axes to grind.

In discussing this subject previously we have said we believe a study should be made of a more responsive form of town government. Milford and some other towns have a "Representative Town Meeting" to which a certain number of delegates are elected by the people every two years and these only can vote at the town meetings. East Hartford, on the other hand, has a town council whiel has replaced the town meeting. This council cleets a town manager and performs the town's business. Many towns have boroughs with Courts of Burgesses legislating for the people. We too would like to see this problem of the towns debated.

A READING & WRITING BY Edwin Seaver AND Robin M Kown

The Book-of-the-Month Club has a ruling that no book written by a member of its Editorial Board can be a Club selection. This applies to John P. Marquand, who, before he became one of the Club's judges—along with Dorothy Canfield, Clifton Fadiman, Henry Scidel Canby and Christopher Morley-had two books-of-the-month to his credit-"H. M. Pulham, Esq.," and His new book, "B. F.'s Daughter," is being hailed as "the best of Marquand's five novels of our American way of life." "B. F.'s Daughter" tells the story of Polly Fulton, who has money, glamour and intelligence, and who still cannot find a happy life for herself. It is also the story of the disruption on the civilian front that came as the backwash of the war.

The scene shifts from New York to Connecticut to the Pentagon Building in Washington.

Mr. Marquand is a skilful writer who knows how to tell a story. His hook holds your interest from the first page to the last. He knows his people. In fact, as one critic on the distaff side commented, he shows an derstanding of women that makes one downright uneasy.

Letitia Preston Osborne, author of "They Change Their Skies" and "Through Purple Glass," claims to be the only living lady novelist who is loved by an iguana. It seems that recently when she vacationed in the Honduras, an iguana, a dreamy, Latin type, kept watching her from a neighborhood tree. Finally one day he showed up in the family bathtut with a hopeful and admiring look on his lizard's face. He was removed by the hired man.

You don't find much conjugal happiness among the scorpions, relates Jean Henri-Fabre in "Animal Tales," an anthology edited by Ivan Sanderson. The courtship be-tween a male and female scorpion takes the restling match. To increase the lady's interest, the male stands on his head. Then they go for a walk, during which it is always he who decides which fresh turn the pair should take. But alas! his dominance does not last. When the courtship is over, she calmly devours him.
