"DIME VS. POLIO"

The little coin, you call a dime,
And toss out for a beer,
Is out to fight a social crime,
That's more intense this year.

Some tiny tot, or kid you know,
Perhaps the child next door,
Has caught the germ of polio
And can't run any more.

Let's give the dimo a chance again
To beat this dreadful pest
And take away the source of pain,
Then God will do the rest.

HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER TELLS CLANCY THAT EAST HAVEN IS STATE'S NUMBER ONE PROJECT

A PROCLAMATION

First Selectman Frank S. Clancy today issued a proclamation calling on all residents of East Haven to join the 1950 March of Dimes of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis so that the organization "may draw renewed strength to continue its work of mercy for all whom infantile paralysis may menace."

The city's chief executive in his message revealed that the 1949 polio toll was upwards of 40,000 cases, and that the cost to the National Foundation for care of patients in 1949 alone will approximate $31,000,000. The two-week March of Dimes appeal opens Monday (Jan. 16).

Text of the proclamation follows:

WHEREAS, at no time before in the history of the United States has infantile paralysis placed so heavy a burden on community after community, striking down loved ones in a family and

WHEREAS, so severe were the epidemic outbreaks, that the toll for 1949 was upwards of 40,000 cases—most widespread of all time; and

WHEREAS, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in performing its heroic work of salvaging the stricken, expended $100,000 daily at the height of the epidemic to pay for and needed by polio patients and

WHEREAS, the bill for polio care of those attacked by this disease—for the year 1949 alone—will approximate $31,000,000, and

WHEREAS, the National Foundation's funds are now virtually depleted and the organization is dependent upon the 1950 March of Dimes, January 16-31, for sufficient money to carry on the fight against this enemy of our little ones,

BE IT HEREBY RESOLVED, that each and every one of us do all in his power to make the 1950 March of Dimes a fountain of financial aid from which the National Foundation may draw renewed strength to continue its works of mercy for all whom infantile paralysis may menace,

SO THEREFORE, I Frank S. Clancy First Selectman of East Haven, do proclaim and endorse January 16-31 as a time for every citizen of East Haven to contribute to the success of the 1950 March of Dimes, and the health and welfare of our children.
Signed Frank S. Clancy
Date January 12, 1950

A combined meeting of the zoning commission and the planning commission will be held this evening in the Town Hall where further action will be taken on changing the zoning laws of the town to allow more industrial sites with its limits.

The chairman of the zoning group, Charles Miller, has reported to the commission favorable to such action, within reason.

Frank S. Clancy, first selectman of East Haven, will sit in on tonight's session.

An invitation has been extended to Highway Commissioner, G. Albohy, of the State of Connecticut, to attend tonight's session since the town is awaiting a report on traffic conditions which he promised to supply. His promise was made last November.

In a letter received from Commissioner Hill by the First Selectman yesterday it was indicated that the report to the people of East Haven would be completed by February 1. He will seek an audience with Clancy then.

Hill's letter said that through Mr. Hooper, director of Highway Planning, Mr. Knicker, engineer of Location and Design, had reported that "the East Haven problem was priority, number one, in location planning and that the work was expected to be completed by the end of the month."

Commissioner Hill said that the information might be taken as authoritative.

The head of the Highway Department reported that he realizes the imperative character of the project from the East Haven point of view and that he is doing his utmost to expedite it.

"The Highway Department, must be sure that East Haven's problem is conscientiously treated with due respect to engineering and the department's responsibilities since they are charged with the investment of large amounts of taxpayer's funds," he said.

He further promised that he would let the First Selectman know as soon as possible, the date for a meeting with him.

"The town is interested in bringing modern, clean industry to East Haven," Clancy said, yesterday. "It will provide employment to its residents and increase the grand list."

"Because the zone for manufacturing and industry is so limited under the present restrictions of the town, a way must be found to increase the number of existing such firms to East Haven," Clancy said.

"Many plants have inquired on the possibility of locating in East Haven during the past months," the First Selectman added, "and it is in the best interests of the town to provide for such establishments."

It is thought that the recent dredging of the channel of New Haven harbor is influencing such outside moves to locate here since transportation costs can be lowered considerably. In addition, the town has airport facilities, railroad freight terminals and is on a main trunk highway.

MY ARMY OCCUPATION

By James T. Reynolds
 When the President on June 12, 1948 signed the bill which became Public Law 825, he established the Women's Army Corps and Women in the Air Force. For the first time in history these organizations became regular parts of the Military Establishment.

The planning that made this significant action possible began 25 years ago. Although women had long been used in the Army as nurses, it was not until World War I that much constructive study was begun as to how women could be utilized in the over-all design for national defense. There were two good reasons why such a study was not made earlier. First, man had not learned to mechanize warfare to a point at which it demanded more manpower than the country could provide. Second, women were skilled in few duties which would have been useful to any branch of the Service.

There were a few cases, however, where women had formed small groups of relief workers—some of them in uniforms of their own devising—which in an army had become virtual auxiliaries. Such a group was the uniformed women telegraph operators of the Civil War. But there was a very clear distinction in the Army's and public's mind between emergency aid from these women and the incorporation into the Army of women with military duties and discipline. In the late 19th and early 20th centuries, however, the industrial revolution brought women into the office and the factory. To support the new industries, the conception of a nation's manpower was expanded to include its womanpower as well. Even then there remained from New Haven, Hartford, and Boston over the holidays.

The Ladies Sewing Society met last Wednesday in the chapel for a regular session. A picnic dinner was enjoyed at noon. Mrs. Frederick Harrison was the hostess.

Totoket Grange will meet on Tuesday night of next week. The suggestion box will be introduced by a program entitled, "What's On Your Mind?" The annual report will be given. Refreshments will be served by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barker, and Mrs. Stephen Rose.

The Confraternity of the Rosary will meet on Wednesday evening of this week in the town hall.

The March of Dimes Campaign will be held in North Branford between January 15 and 31. Residents are urged to be as generous as possible as the funds have been entirely depleted by the recent epidemic.

considerable doubt as to the value of women as military employees. The establishment of the Army Nurse Corps in 1901 was the United States Army's first experiment in enlisting the aid of women workers. Nursing had long been a field in which women admittedly excelled, but long and bitter struggles were required of the nurses in England and in the United States before public opinion yielded the point that reputable women would serve with the armies. Nearly half a century passed before the Military Services actually utilized women workers other than nurses and incorporated them in the Armed Forces with full military responsibilities and benefits.

The first step toward that end was made in 1917 when General Pershing requested 100 American women telephone operators who could speak French, and recommended that they be uniformed. This request was approved and the women were sent to France as civilian contract employees with privileges very similar to those of the Army nurses. Similar groups were sent overseas, under civilian contracts, by the Quartermaster Corps and the Ordnance and Medical Departments. At the same time, more than 5000 women were serving overseas in numerous civilian volunteer welfare groups.

During the year 1920 and 1921 we find the first traces of a concerted study of the utilization of women in the Military Service when the Army War College included studies in its curriculum on "The Conservation of Manpower by the Utilization of Womanpower."

Then came Pearl Harbor. The Nation was faced with a serious manpower problem, making extensive utilization of women a necessity. In May 1942 legislation providing for a Women's Auxiliary Army Corps was approved and in July the actual training began.

It took less than a year to prove that a corps of women working in the Army rather than with the Army could better reach its full effectiveness, and on July 1943, the President signed Public Law 110, 78th Congress, which established the Women's Army Corps and made it a part of the Army of the United States. It remained in the status until the passage of the recent legislation making women a part of the Regular Military Services.

The new law provides that during the next two years the number of women in the Regular Army and in the Regular Air Force may be:

Army 500 officers — 75 warrant officers — 7500 enlisted women.
 Air Force: 300 officers — 40 warrant officers — 4000 enlisted women.

After two years the strength may be two percent of the authorized complement, warrant, and enlisted strength of the Regular Army and the Regular Air Force.

The limitations placed by law on the number of women to be accepted by the Army and the Air Force allow the key note policy of quality instead of quantity. They allow the forming of a nucleus of highly qualified women, and the offering to each of a career in the Military Services. The training and experience gained under career planning will be such as to enable these women to obtain an understanding and appreciation of both the rights and responsibilities of citizenship in our democracy, which, together with specialized training, will increase their value to their communities, whether they return to civilian life or continue that career with the Military Service. There is offered to every woman who meets the high character, physical, and mental standards necessary to qualify for membership in the organization, an opportunity and a challenge.

Age requirements vary with service. Women between the ages of 18 and 35 are eligible to apply for enlistment. Applicants who have not reached their 21st birthday will be required to furnish written consent of parent or guardian. Women who have had prior military service can apply for enlistment provided their age does not exceed 35 plus the number of years of WAC service since 1 July 1943. Women who have never been in the Service must be of high school graduate level, and must be unmarried at the time of enlistment.

A woman who is presently serving in the Women's Army Corps, Army of the United States, whose age is greater than 35 years plus the years of honorable active service in the WAC subsequent to 1 July 1943, may request a waiver, provided she is recommended by her detachment commanding officer and section chief as to character, skill, and the potential value of the applicant to the Service.

Women currently serving in the WAC, AUS, in enlisted status who apply for discharge for the purpose of enlistment or reenlistment the following day in the WAC or WAF will be enlisted in the grade held at the time of such discharge.

Enlisted women serving in an extended WAC, AUS, status, if separated prior to expiration of enlistment, may be enlisted in grade within 90 days after date of discharge.

Former enlisted women honorably discharged from the Women's Army Corps, AUS, subsequent to 12 May 1945, who apply for enlistment on or before 4 January 1949, may be enlisted in the grade held at the time of such discharge.

Women who qualify may enlist in the Army for two, three, four, five, or six years, and in the Air Force for three, four, five or six years.

All recruits are required to take basic training as follows: 10 weeks for the Army at Camp Lee, Va.; 11 weeks for the Air Force at the Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex.

Following basic training, women may be sent to school for specialized training in fields such as medical technician, communications, administration, finance, food service, radio, or photography. Women who wish to further their education may earn college credits by taking extension courses offered by the United States Armed Forces Institute.

Wacs and Wafs are entitled to the same rights, benefits, and privileges as male soldiers, with the exception of certain dependency benefits, and promotions follow the same pattern.

The opportunity for assignment to responsible and interesting duty is excellent. Personnel experts are studying the proper utilization of women—the serious scientific study to evaluate and analyze the skills and training of women so that those particular skills and acquired training can be properly utilized in the overall military picture.

There will be an opportunity for many qualified women who have advanced through the ranks to attain commissioned status. Women may apply for enlistment form civilian life for the specific purpose of attending Officer Candidate School, provided they will not have attained the age of 28 at the time of entrance into OCS. If accepted, they begin Officer Candidate training immediately upon successful completion of basic training.

Wacs are serving and will continue to serve in Europe and the Far East. During World War II, 18 percent of the Army's 100,000 Wacs served in Bermuda, Germany, England, France, Egypt, India, China, Ceylon, New Guinea, Australia, Hawaii, Labrador, British Columbia, and Yukon Territory, Leyte and Luzon in the Philippines, Japan, and Korea.

Besides travel opportunities, all the advantages of careers in the Army and in the Air Force are now open to women who enlist in the WAC or WAF, including retirement benefits, educational opportunities and chances for steady advancement.

The record of the Wacs during the recent war is one in which the Nation may take pride. Now the Wacs and the Wafs are looking to the future; embarking on a venture.
