Basketball Team To See New Eng. "A" Tourney

With the Connecticut Class "M" Championship in their pocket, fifteen East Haven High basketball players left by train for Boston today to "cop" an inter-state title. Enjoying their victory over Gilbert High on Monday night, the Yellow Jackets will meet the champ Class M team of Massachusetts, Winchester High School, in a non-tournament bout on the floor of the Boston Garden at 7:30 Saturday night.

Of the fifteen team members, ten will "dress" for the contest, according to regulations, Coach Frank Crisafi, said this week. The entire 15 will be on hand for the entire Class A New England tournament which opens tonight.

First Selectman Frank Clancy, who had pledged his efforts to raise a fund of some $1,500 to finance the expedition at a tumultuous reception of the new Connecticut champs in the Town Hall Monday night, announced a five-hour canvass of organizations, businessmen and other individuals brought in $1,561. Today 25 of the 15 players was presented with $10 apiece in spending money for their three-day stay in Boston.

The Yellow-Jackets, who are accompanied by Crisafi, assistant Principal Thomas Murray, Principal Carl Garvin, and John McPartland, head of the English department, will return here Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. While in Boston they will stay at the Bayview Hotel.

Just before the Easties left for the New Haven train terminal this morning, they were given a grand send-off by High School students and faculty members in the form of a pep rally staged in the school auditorium.

Members of the team who will make the trip are: Anthony Massari, team captain, Paul Wisninski, Joseph "Red" O'Mara, Henry Hefernan, Ted Sullivan, Michael Pao, Lillo, Henry Luzzi, James Narracci, Thomas Bowden, Robert Davidson, Ralph Castellon, Joel Gustafson, Richard Ezold, James Stretto and Joseph Melillo.

Also making the trip will be the team managers, Anthony Giannotti, Dan Mautte and Len Sandacata.

Cancer Fund To Make Town Drive Next Month

At a meeting in his home on Tuesday night, Thomas Webster, newly appointed chairman of the Cancer Fund Drive in East Haven, announced plans for a town-wide collection during the month of April. Assisting in arrangements is Mrs. Frank Barker, vice chairman. "Stressing the fact that 'every house will be visited' by volunteers, Webster named the following captains, who will supervise collections: Foxon area, John McMaughin; Momauguin, Mrs. Jane Thompson; Center district, Mrs. Grace Webster, and West End, Mrs. Emily Ruotolo.

Intensive coverage of every household, with repeat visits if necessary should result in achievement of East Haven's quota, Webster explained. There will be a Tag Day collection on April 30, conducted by the East Haven Women's Club under the leadership of Mrs. Esther Hendricks and Mrs. Margaret Walker, co-chairmen. No other projects are planned to raise funds, Webster revealed, and the success of the campaign will depend entirely on solicitation by volunteers.

Alfred Bowden is serving as treasurer of the drive, and Mrs. Phyllis Flood is handling publicity. Also present at Tuesday's meeting was Mrs. Henry F. Johnson from the New Haven headquarters, who explained that in addition to collections, the drive is planned for educational purposes. Leaflets will be distributed at every house visited, giving information on current progress in treating this dread illness.

Webster announced that another meeting will be held at an early date to distribute campaign supplies. Names of additional workers will be released shortly.

Hayes said that the course of 20 hours will be given for the next 10 consecutive Mondays. Each session will start at 8 p. m. Hayes said, and the department regulars were expected to be joined by a number of men from the volunteer companies. The fire chief asked that interested personnel register with the captains of the several fire companies before Saturday of this week.

Polrot of 249 Tyler St. The story referred to was an account of the happenings at a public hearing conducted last week by the Board of Selectmen. The editor regrets the error and extends his apologies to both men.

An organizational meeting of the Republican town committee to elect officers for the coming year will be held Monday in Party headquarters on High St. at 8 p.m., Mathew Anastasio, chairman, announces. Officers to be elected are chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer. Present officers are Anastasio, Charlotte Miller, Ruth Barker and Bill Jaspers. A single ballot for an unopposed Republican Town Committee slate of 53 candidates will be cast at a primary to be held tonight in the Town Hall between 2 and 8 p.m. The slate, which went unopposed at the time of the primary filing deadline Sunday, represents an increase of 12 over the retiring town committee of 41. Thirty-seven of the retiring town committee will be re-elected.

Re-Dredging Harbor Would Make Free Fill Available

A possible opportunity for the towns of East Haven and Branford to secure as fill, thousands of tons of sand dredged from the bottom of New Haven Harbor was cited by Arthur H. Gosselin, chairman of the Harbor Development Committee of the New Haven Chamber of Commerce last Thursday. Gosselin appeared as guest speaker before a joint meeting of the East Haven and Branford Chambers of Commerce at the Weeping Willows restaurant in East Haven.

Chamber Commerce To Name Five New Directors

The nominating committee of the East Haven Chamber of Commerce will meet Monday at 6:15 p.m. in the office of Metzko Brothers, at 330 Main St., Herman A. Scharf, secretary, announces. The committee will meet "to receive and hear suggestions from the membership regarding nominees for the Board of Directors to be voted at the Annual Meeting." The notice said that members of the Chamber may propose names for nominees at this meeting either by mail or in person. Five members of the board are due to retire next month and the vacancies will be filled at the annual meeting on Tuesday, April 13.

Re-Dredging Harbor Would Make Free Fill Available

18 years of work in promoting the idea of using the New Haven Harbor as a major port. He advised both Chambers of Commerce to study the possibilities of making room for additional industry which, he felt would be attracted by the harbor improvements. Gosselin said that New Haven alone, could not contain enough industry which would take up the full capacity of the port. He painted an optimistic picture of the future of the harbor. He said that water-transportation had helped hold the line on the prices of oil, lumber and other stock materials. He pointed out what he said was an imminent rise of 30 per cent in the cost of truck transportation between New York and New Haven.

Director Sees 'Deterrant'

Earlier this week the NEWS asked the director of placement at New Haven State Teachers' whether he had any information that the East Haven oath was a deterrant. Lowe replied that "I have no available statistical evidence that it does. However, on the basis of my personal observations I can say this: I have heard opinions expressed by both undergraduates and experienced teachers that the existence of a loyalty oath coupled with low salaries makes the situation (in East Haven) 'unattractive'."

Director Sees 'Deterrant'

Lowé, who handles the placement of teachers from the college, said that "of course," if East Haven had a sufficiently high salary to make a considerable differential between it and surrounding towns, "more people would be attracted."

He said that "it was a fact that there were many students and teachers who did not give the matter of the oath serious thought and had no objections. However, he said, he had heard expressions of objection from those who opposed the oath on the often-expressed ground that it unfairly

Give Melillo Town Garbage Contract, Says Anastasio

Give Pasquale Melillo the Town's garbage contract and, simultaneously, pass an ordinance prohibiting the bringing in of garbage from outside the Town, Republican Town Chairman Mathew Anastasio recommended this to the Board of Selectmen this week as an answer to the top-most controversy plaguing the Town administration.

The Board of Selectmen is slated to meet tonight to consider the whole problem of garbage disposal along with a proposed ordinance to ban outside garbage. It is feared that should East Haven take the latter step, it will be faced with retaliation which will prevent the exporting of garbage which is now being taken out of this town.

Anastasio told the NEWS that he had wanted to present his argument personally "as a taxpayer" before a public hearing held two weeks ago on a proposed ordinance to prohibit bringing in of garbage but, couldn't because he had to leave the meeting early for a party meeting.

The GOP town chairman flung a "Why don't you practice what you preach?" taunt at Democratic First Selectman Frank S. Clancy. He was referring to a Democratic campaign statement he had "dug up" from a 1949 issue of the "East Haven Democratic News" militating against Republican inaction on the garbage controversy. The article had scored the Sullivan administration for permitting use of East Haven as a "dumping ground" for out-of-town garbage.

Anastasio accused Clancy of not having any concern with Melillo's "livelihood" as a pig farmer in 1949 but of acquiring such a concern "in 1954." "If Clancy is not concerned about Pat Melillo's livelihood," he declared, "and I suggest this: pass the ordinance (prohibiting the importation of garbage) and give Melillo the Town garbage contract."

Anastasio said his proposal would immediately cease use of East Haven as a "dumping ground" for an area "seven times as populous as East Haven" and would take care of the problem of disposal of the Town's garbage. The GOP leader said he knew "damn well" that the people of Foxon won't complain. He said that this scheme would mean that the amount of garbage disposed at the farm would be reduced to one-seventh its present level. Anastasio claimed that the Foxon Park residents were opposed to the transportation of garbage through the streets and that his proposal would reduce this "nuisance."

He was asked if he would favor granting Melillo a permit to set up a garbage cookery (such a permit has already been denied) to process the garbage. He replied, "Yes, if it is used only to handle East Haven garbage." He thought that ought to be specified in such a permit if it was granted.

The GOP town chairman listed his "points" briefly. 1. Clancy was once opposed to using East Haven as a dumping ground. 2. If Melillo's welfare is at issue, let the Town award its garbage contract to him. 3. If Clancy's party saw fit to criticize a previous administration for failing to act on garbage, let him act to correct the situation. Let him "practice what he preaches."

Only one out-of-town official showed up at a conference called by First Selectman Clancy last Friday for the purpose of studying the garbage problem affecting this and neighboring communities. Branford's first selectman, Dominic Bontalusso, joined Clancy and Democratic Selectman, Dominic Ferraro in a "tour" of East Haven and Branford pig farms. The trio examined the feeding processes at farms where raw garbage is fed to swine and where cookeries are employed to process the garbage. The cooking plants are now required by state law.

Selectmen from North Branford and North Haven were invited to make the tour but did not or could not honor Clancy's invitation, Clancy said that the Board of Selectmen would meet tonight for the purpose of considering the garbage problem. "We've got to act soon," he said. He was asked if he had considered any further his suggestion about appointing a citizens' committee. Clancy replied that the proposal would be presented for consideration at the meeting of the Board of Selectmen.

Report On Hiring "Problems" Is Kept Under Wraps

What effect does the East Haven loyalty oath have on the securing of new teachers, in view of the short supply of elementary school personnel? That question was posed to three persons this week by the EAST HAVEN NEWS.

None, adversely, replied Francis Walsh, chairman of the Board of Education. "See Mr. Walsh on that," said Schools Supt. R. Vernon Hays. "Some, certainly, but there are no statistics to show how much," replied Paul Lowe, director of placement at New Haven State Teachers' College.

The question was prompted by a release last week by the Board of Education announcing a "readjustment" in teacher salaries and referring to "problems" in securing new teachers for the local school system. Estimates are that 20 additional teachers will be needed for next year, not counting replacements.

Chairman Walsh told the NEWS that "We have not experienced any teachers refusing to come here because of the loyalty oath." He said that "At least I haven't honestly found any evidence that the oath is interfering with the securing of new teachers." "Our feeling," he said, apparently speaking for the school board, "is that if our pay schedules are insufficient then we will have some difficulty in securing new teachers."

Declining Release of Report. Walsh was asked why he declined to release a report by Supt. Hays outlining the "problems" in securing new teachers. He gave as his reason what can be generally reported in this way: until the Board of Education has a chance to review the entire salary schedule picture, which may effect the retention of present teachers, a release of the report would be unwise.

In an earlier interview Walsh had told the NEWS that a copy of the report might be secured from the superintendent of schools. That was last week, following the release of a statement by the school board. Walsh had also said at that time that he thought the superintendent could release information showing comparisons between salary schedules of East Haven and other communities.

Yesterday a request for the superintendent's report brought the reply that release only of comparative statistics had been authorized. Asked to explain, Walsh said this morning that he had not changed his mind, but that he had agreed originally only to authorize release of the statistics.

When Supt. Hays was asked if he had any evidence that the loyalty oath may be interfering with the securing of additional teachers he referred this reporter to the board chairman.

Walsh said that "I know that Hays has not presented any information that would make us believe that the loyalty oath is interfering with the hiring of teachers." He added that "If it is shown to be so, I certainly plan to have the board take up consideration of the oath."

Director Sees 'Deterrant'. Earlier this week the NEWS asked the director of placement at New Haven State Teachers' whether he had any information that the East Haven oath was a deterrant.

However, on the basis of my personal observations I can say this: I have heard opinions expressed by both undergraduates and experienced teachers that the existence of a loyalty oath coupled with low salaries makes the situation (in East Haven) 'unattractive'."

College Internship Program Helps Recruit Teachers Here

While the shortage of elementary teachers is providing an acute problem for growing communities like East Haven, local school administrators are silently breathing their thanks for the existence of a "teacher-in-training" program conducted by the New Haven State Teachers College.

After the students of the "intern" program have completed the first two days, they are encouraged to work with a few pupils for short periods on a single subject. As she develops skill in "teaching," she is encouraged to work with the children. In this way, frequently, she can provide valuable service as a kind of "tutor" for these children who have special needs of a kind which would be difficult to handle in a regular classroom.

By the start of the fourth week, the student-teacher is ready to take over the classroom by herself. She is now able to plan educational programs for the day and learns to carry them out. All this is done under the direct supervision of the regular teacher.

In addition to giving the student actual experience and a first-hand acquaintance with a particular educational system, the program enables her to apply the test of practicality to the educational theory she has been learning in college. It also enables her to judge how well she is fitted for the particular grade limit to which she has been assigned.

Not under the strict requirements of the laboratory schools conducted by the college in New Haven, the students generally enjoy their off-campus training and are encouraged to bring to the college in recent years. Under the school system of several communities surrounding New Haven, the students are given an off-campus training which is a means of selecting future teachers.

Under his program local educational supervisors can use their own observations as a means of selecting future teachers.

Lead Interest

In addition, student-teachers often take a heightened note of interest to the local educational program. Often they can help the regular teacher to illuminate and illustrate subjects, for example by bringing in their own personal experiences.

Student teachers often have special interests and talents in music, art, science, and other fields. Thus they enrich the subjects being taught to the youngsters. One male student-teacher who attended an earlier session

Edward Doyle and Patricia Singleton, student-teachers, discuss with Mrs. Rosalie Pinkham, teacher-in-charge in the second grade at the Old Stone Church educational building. Preparation of the schedule is one of the activities that the student-teachers get practice in during their six-weeks visit to the local schools.

Miss Edith Joyce is shown going over her schedule for the next day with Mrs. Rosalie Pinkham, teacher-in-charge in the second grade at the Old Stone Church educational building. Preparation of the schedule is one of the activities that the student-teachers get practice in during their six-weeks visit to the local schools.

Miss Elizabeth Aratollian, student-teacher, is shown instructing the fourth grade at Union School as Mrs. Agnes McManus, the regular teacher, directs her attention to individual pupils.

Miss Joan Bagley plays the phonograph for a group of children in the second grade at the Old Stone Church educational building. Miss Dora Thy Jensen is the teacher under whose supervision Miss Bagley has been doing her "intern" work.

South End Assoc. To Accept Articles Of Incorporation

A special meeting of the South End Association will be held Monday at 8 o'clock for the purpose of accepting proposed articles of incorporation. The meeting will be held in the home of Salvatore Palmieri, of 78 Minor St., Hubert Chessman, president, announced.

At the regular meeting of the association last Thursday, Charles Miller, chairman of the Planning and Zoning Commission, delivered a talk on the progress being made on a "pilot plan" for the town.

Miller said that in about 60 days he would very probably be in a position to provide detail about zoning in the "neighborhood" of the south end area.

The next regular meeting of the association will be held on April 8. Next week's meeting will be the ground-work for future articles, Hubert Chessman, president, the president said.

The atmosphere is composed of a mixture of gases which envelop the earth.

Congratulations EHHS!

At long last! We say long because it has been a full year since East Haven had its chance to prove that it was only a freak that deprived it of the Class M crown in the C.I.A.C. finals last March. Now the "Eagles" as we like to call them, have the crown for their own to wear proudly before all admiring Connecticut.

We extend our very heartfelt congratulations to Coach Frank Cristofani who labored long and hard to achieve what many have been unable to do. Equally hearty congratulations also to the members of the team: to Tony Massari, who had the toughest job of all in meeting the great expectations his prior performances had generated; to Paul Wisninski, whose name we have consistently associated with East Haven; to "Red" O'Mara, whose razor-sharp and cool demeanor we have spent two seasons admiring; to Henry Heffernan, whom we watched grow from a "beehive" to a first-class player; and to Ted Sullivan, who emerged from near guard to become a leader of his team.

And we proffer garlands of victory, not one shade paler, to the boys who comprised the core of a tremendous reserve and without whom victory would have been impossible: Henry Luzzi, Mike Paolillo, Robert Davidson, Tom Bowden, Jim Narraeci, Ralph Castellino, Joel Gustafson, Richard Ezold, Jim Streeter and Joe Melillo.

Oddly, to us, at least, a bid for the Massachusetts-Connecticut title after this seems like an anti-climactic. Nevertheless, it is our fervent wish and hope that our Yellow Jackets will be able to come away with this additional distinction and honor.

In the language of the sports columnists, should East Haven "pop," this intercollegiate title, official or unofficial, we are sure that it "couldn't" happen to a more worthy bunch of guys. Good luck on Saturday!

The "New Look"

All the King's horses and all the King's men couldn't put Humpty-Dumpty together again. And all the explanations and declarations by the national Administration, whether they came from President Eisenhower, Vice President Richard Nixon, or Secretary of State Foster Dulles, have failed to dispel the disturbing question about the "new look" in national defense.

Letters To The Editor

We would like to address the following appeal to the people of East Haven for support for the Sisters of Mercy Intermountain Building Fund.

Massari Hits 24 Points To Lead Drive To Victory

Winsted, by a score of 55 to 36 to lay full claim to the title of Class M champion in the State of Connecticut.

Approximately 3000 roaring spectators, teen-agers and adults, saw East Haven under the magnificent leadership of a revived Tony Massari, take an early lead over its Winsted opponent and spend that lead to a fatal margin of 24 points by the end of the first half.

Table Talk. When the homemaker finds a food which offers variety, good food value, and economy to her purse, she is quick to take advantage of it. Fish fills the bill on these three points, says Janina M. Czajkowski, nutritionist with the Agricultural Experiment Station, University of Connecticut.

Counters filled with fresh and frozen fish, oysters, clams, scallops and many canned varieties answer the variety question and in addition allow the homemaker to make a choice to suit her pocket-book, whether it be fat or lean. She rests secure in the knowledge that even though she is economizing in money, she is not skimping in food value. Fish is about one-third of the recommended daily allowance for a physically active man. Sea food also provides iodine which is used for the healthy functioning of the thyroid gland. Because fish has less iron than meat, it is a good idea to serve leafy green vegetables with a fish dinner.

With the Lenten season fast approaching, the homemaker will depend upon fish more and more for attractive nutritious meals. Helen Clark, Home Demonstration Agent in Fairfield County suggests that trout and salmon steaks with crisp carrot and celery sticks may be just the "different" recipe you need to please the family.

Loyalty Oath —

singled out the teachers with regard to a question about their loyalty.

What percentage or how many there were in either category, Lowe said, he could not say. But there were enough who objected to it so that he felt safe in saying that the existence of such an oath limited the supply of teachers (as far as East Haven was concerned). If it were removed it would increase the number of teachers "available".

He noted that as far as the policy of the college, itself, was concerned: "We neither encourage or discourage applications from students at the college on the basis of the loyalty oath." The local college was set up to assist communities in meeting their needs, regardless of what policies their school boards may adopt, he said. Board Chairman Walsh was asked for comment on Lowe's observations. He replied that "I have no comment, except to say that if we have a problem (in the oath here) I am not aware of it." "If we experience such a condition, naturally I would bring it to the attention of the board. As yet, I can't say we have run into the obstacle."

Walsh admitted this week also that the Board's recommendation of a $150 increase in starting salaries and an increase of $100 in salary maximums was taken as a unilateral action two weeks ago. "It was not a negotiated increase," he said. As a readjustment designed to put East Haven on a more favorable basis with competing towns and to "keep" presently employed teachers within the system, the action was merely a stop-gap measure, Walsh said.

Walsh said that it was felt that because the present teachers were still under a three-year contract which had one year to run, that this "precluded" negotiation. He would not commit himself to anticipating a future increase, but said that the entire teacher salary question would have to be renegotiated at the end of the present contract.

Give Melillo —

In the meantime Joseph Kolesky, counsel for the Foxon Park group, reiterated a "threat" of suing the Town of East Haven for abetting a nuisance should the administration fail to take action on the ordinance. The "threat" was posed by Leon Beaudin, president of the Foxon Park Civic Association, at the public hearing, last week.

Anastasio noted the Richard Kelly, presently Town Counsel, had, as a member of a law firm of representing Foxon Park residents, submitted the ordinances which was passed in 1953, but was later declared invalid because it was acted upon by a town meeting. "Kelly said it was a good ordinance, then, so why shouldn't it be good now?" he declared.

Industrial Arts Scholarships Offered

NEW BRITAIN—A scholarship loan fund for students interested in Industrial Arts Education, has just been announced by the Connecticut Industrial Arts Association. The fund named in honor of the late Eugene Giannattone, for almost forty years director of the Manual Training Department of the Bristol Public Schools, will be available to any student majoring in Industrial Arts Education at the Teachers College of Connecticut, New Britain. Interested students should apply to the college for loans.

Saber in comparison with elated rooters, the East Haven first team moves out to Arena floor to greet substitutes like the uncontained player on the left who wound up the final game against Gilbert High.

On hand to cheer the Yellow-Jackets of East Haven and their rooters was the High School band in its first appearance at an athletic event. Myran Cohen, instructor in music, directs.

SURGERY AND AGE
Studies of more than 300 cases indicate that major surgical procedures can be carried out in patients over 70 years of age with reasonably low risks.

The studies were made by two surgeons associated with the University of Buffalo (N. Y.) Medical School, Dr. John D. Stewart and Dr. Guy S. Alano, and the results were published in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

One study included 290 major operations in a group of 204 elderly surgical patients, while the other study comprised histories of major abdominal surgery in a group of 43 patients.

The average age of the 43 patients was 74.4 years, the oldest being 88. Four of the patients (nine percent) succumbed and two of these deaths were due to heart conditions.

The average age of the 204 patients who underwent 290 general surgical procedures was 76.8 years, the oldest being 94. The over-all mortality rate was 13 percent, 30 patients. It is pointed out, however, that 21 of the deaths had little relation to the surgical procedure and that 17 of the 39 patients had advanced cancer. If these deaths were excluded, the mortality rate would be approximately eight percent.

There were no complications following 190 operations in the larger group, the doctors stated. When complications occurred in other groups, the commonest were those affecting the respiratory system, the surgical wound and the heart and blood vessels.

"Considering the ages of the patients in these studies and the severity of their diseases, one must conclude that the surgical operations were well tolerated," the author concludes.

Buick's Bid For the Body Beautiful

Every like line of the 1954 fashion figure has its counterpart in the body lines of the beautiful new Buick. Its necklines plunge to a new low—accentuating a gracefully curved silhouette—for a slim-waisted look; the bellline is lowered, calling attention to that beauty-in-motion. Like Dame Fashion, Buick designers decree a slightly raised hem-line to show more of the lovely means of locomotion. Every fashion point of the body beautiful highlights the Buick body.
