

Mr. R. L. Watson To Give Address At Christ Church

Will Talk on D. L. Moody

This Sunday, August 22, the congregation of Christ Episcopal Church will hear Mr. Richard L. Watson, of 476 Thompson Avenue, discourse on his personal reminiscences of Mr. Dwight L. Moody, noted evangelist and founder of the Northfield Seminary and the Mount Herman School at Northfield, Massachusetts, in connection with the 110th anniversary of his birth.

Mr. Watson has been connected with the Mount Herman School for over forty-five years, twelve of which were spent during Mr. Moody's life.

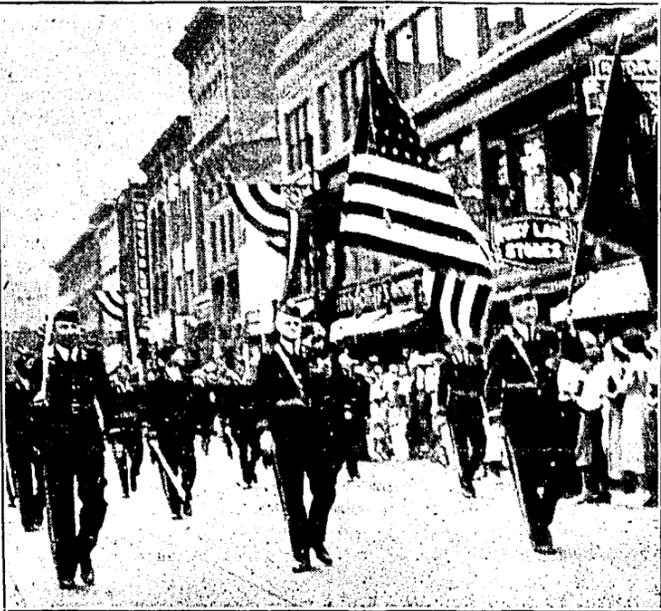

Mr. D. L. Moody

Mr. Dwight L. Moody was born at Northfield, Massachusetts, on February 5, 1837. He began his business career in Boston, in 1854, and in 1856 was admitted to church membership. Moving to Chicago, Ill., the same year, he established the "North Market Hall" Sunday School in 1858, and following his marriage to Miss Emma C. Revell in 1862, organized the "Illinois Street Church" in 1863. In 1867, he made his first visit to England. In 1869 he became president of the Y. M. C. A. in Chicago and in 1870 secured the services of Mr. Ira D. Sankey, prior to his second visit to England in 1872. His first extended campaign in Great Britain came between the years 1873-75, which were followed by his American evangelist campaign from 1875-77. In 1879, Mr. Moody established Northfield Seminary which was followed two years later by the founding of the Mount Herman School in 1881. During the summer of that year was held the first Northfield Summer Conference. From 1881-84, he conducted a second campaign in Great Britain. In 1886, he formed a student Y. M. C. A. Conference, and the following year, 1887, organized the Chicago Bible Institute. In 1891, he made his third tour of Great Britain and visited Palestine in 1892. In 1893, he conducted the World's Fair evangelistic campaign in Chicago, and his final public service was held in Kansas City, on November 16, 1899. Mr. Moody passed away at Northfield, on December 22, 1899.

In his autobiography, Mr. Moody writes: "Some day you will read in the papers that Dwight L. Moody of East Northfield is dead. Don't you believe a word of it! At that moment I shall be more alive than I am now. I shall have gone up higher, that's all; out of this old clay teenment into a house that is immortal—a body that death cannot touch, and sin cannot taint; a body fashioned like unto His own glorious body. I was born of the flesh in 1837. I was born of the Spirit in 1856. That which is born of the flesh may die: that which is born of the Spirit will live forever."

The Foreword of the book "en-What D. L. Moody Means To Me," speaks of this great man thusly:

"The memory of a man who exerted such an influence and lived such a life as Dwight L. Moody cannot die. We do not wonder that THE OUTLOOK at the time of Mr. Moody's death said: "It would be difficult to name any man in the present century who has done so much to give the power of spiritual vision to men who having eyes saw not, having ears heard not; to give hope to men who were living in dull despair or, even more fatally, dull self-content, and to give that love which is righteousness, and that righteousness which is love." The following testimonies from contemporaries as well as from those who have come under his continuing influence show the depth and extent of the appeal of Mr. Moody's life and work."

"Moody's name and good works," said Dr. Lyman Abbott, the editor of THE OUTLOOK, "are known and loved throughout the civilized world. By his death the world has lost one of its greatest leaders. His marvelous energy and kindly spirit made friends for religion by the tens of thousands."

"In the death of Mr. Moody," said Dr. Francis L. Patton, then president of Princeton University, "the world has lost a man who though he had no academic education was one of the greatest powers for winning souls to Christ and the uplifting of his fellowmen."

Mr. Watson, class of '91, at Mount Herman, wrote the following upon meeting the great evangelist: "At the first opportunity after my arrival at Mount Herman, I introduced myself to Mr. Moody and said, 'I want to thank you, Mr. Moody, for the chance you have given me.' Mr. Moody said, 'You want to thank me, young man.' 'Yes, sir,' I replied. 'Prove it,' said Mr. Moody, and I have tried, not only at Herman but in my life to prove it.

Student Increase Due At High School

It was learned recently, through Mr. William E. Gillis, that there will be an increase of from thirty to forty students in the High School in September. The increase in the grade schools will not be known until school opens.

Mr. Gillis also stated that children entering school for the first time must have a vaccination certificate, and pupils from out of town who are planning to enter local schools, must have a birth certificate.

He also stated that the repair work on the roofs of Highland and Foxon schools is practically completed.

Relief Expenditures Show Decrease

It has been reported through the offices of the First Selectmen, that at the beginning of the month, 38 cases were reported on town aid at the Relief Office. Since that time, nine cases have been dropped from town aid. Five new cases have been added and one hospital case, thus making a total of 35 cases now on town aid, at the cost of $581.18.

The following institutional cases have been reported for the month of July. Two cases have been confined to the Mansfield Training School; one to Norwich. Five T. B. cases have been reported for the month and are as follows: One at Uncas-on the Thames; three at the Meriden T. B. Sanitarium and one at Shelton Sanitarium.

Seven cases are receiving the Widow's Aid.

Special prizes will be awarded to the best appearing baby float, including from 1 to 3 years, the most original costume, and the best decorated bicycle, which include from 3 to 13 years. The parade will be headed by the North Branford Drum Corps.

TOWN BRIEFS

Mr. Allan Knight and Mr. Richard Clark attended the State Firemen's Convention at Derby last week-end.

It was announced by Mr. William E. Fagerstrom, Principal of the East Haven High School, that the make-up exams are scheduled for Aug. 25 and 26.

There will be a meeting of the Library Board on Tuesday evening, August 24, in the Library.

The hearings for the Laurel Street water main is scheduled for Monday, August 23, in the Town Hall.

Residents of East Haven and the surrounding communities will have an opportunity next Tuesday evening, August 24, at eight o'clock, to hear a concert on East Haven Green, given by an eighty piece orchestra, the Bridgeport WPA Symphony, a unit of the Federal Music Project. Frank Foti, conductor of the orchestra will direct and has chosen an especially appropriate program for this occasion on which Concetta Dicerbo, of New Haven will be guest soloist.

The overture to "William Tell", Rossini's well known opera, will open the concert followed by the fantasy from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly." A solo by Miss Dicerbo will follow, after which the orchestra will present three dances by the composer, Smetana. The guest soloist will sing a second group of songs, one of which will be a duet in which she will be joined by Joseph Panza, New Haven baritone. From Romberg's "Student Prince" will come the next selection, and the "Dance of the Hours" from Ponchielli's opera "La Gioconda" will round out the evening's program.

The concert is the first occasion this summer which affords East Haven people opportunity to hear such a large symphonic group which has met with most favorable reception throughout the state. Under the direction of Frank Foti, the unit has been playing weekly concerts in Seaside Park, Bridgeport, followed on alternate Monday nights by increasingly well attended concerts at the Fairfield Green and the Sterling House grounds in Stratford.

Concetta Dicerbo, the guest soloist, is well known in New Haven where she studied with Luigi Casigli. She coached under Madame Romanoff in New York and has sung frequently in the churches of the state as well as over the air.

Joseph Panza, baritone, has been frequently heard in this section, and has had extensive experience in church music, having been soloist at St. Michael's. He is a pupil of Larry Sullivan, and has often been heard in radio broadcasts.

It is anticipated that a large attendance will welcome orchestra and the guest soloists to East Haven. To make attendance at the concert as comfortable as possible, concert attendants are asked to bring rugs and cushions, as do the members of the audiences in other communities where these summer starlight musicales have been held. This concert is without charge to the public.

Chairman C. T. Warner, of the Democratic Outing Committee, requested today that all ticket returns should be in his hands at the town committee meeting on Monday, August 23.

The Auxilliary of the Harry R. Bartlett Post, 89, are the winners of the $15.00 dollar prize for having the largest number in line in the State Convention Parade at New Haven recently.

A SONG OF EARLY AUTUMN
When late in summer the streams run yellow,
Burst the bridges and spread into bays;
When berries are black and peaches are mellow,
And hills are hidden by rainy haze;

When the goldenrod is golden still,
But the heart of the sunflower is darker and sadder;
When the corn is in stacks on the slope of the hill,
And slides o'er the path the striped adder;

When butterflies flutter from clover to thicket,
Or wave their wings on the drooping leaf;
When the breeze comes shrill with the call of the cricket,
Grasshopper's rasp and rustle of sheaf;

When high in the field the fern-leaves wrinkle
And brown is the grass where the mowers have mown;
When low in the meadow the cowbells tinkle,
And small brooks crinkle o'er stock and stone;

When heavy and hollow the robin's whistle
And shadows are deep in the heat of noon;
When the air is white with the down of the thistle,
And the sky is red with the harvest moon;

O, then be chary, young Robert and Mary,
No time let slip, not a moment wait!
If the fiddle would play it must stop its tuning;
And they who would wed must be done with their mooning;
So let the churn rattle, see well to the cattle,
And pile the wood by the barn-yard gate!

What's What In BUILDING CONSTRUCTION

An open forum for the discussion and explanation of construction and material problems
By Walter R. Shiner
Reg. Architect, State of Conn.

SUPERVISING SMALL HOME CONSTRUCTION

The best way is to have the rough flooring laid diagonally but this cannot be done unless the specifications call for this, the contractor is willing to lay the floor that way without extra charge, or a price for extra labor and material is agreed upon with the contractor.

The frame is usually constructed of 2 x 4 inch studs spaced 16 inch on centers. This spacing was established years ago as a reliable one for strength and then the wood lath length was established at 48 inches long covering three spacings with proper nailings, on centers of the studs.

Modern material such as plaster board, wall board, rocklath, wall board lath, insulation, etc., is all made to widths using multiples of 16 inches, and widths of 32 and 48 inches, so that the material is accommodated to the nailing centers. Sometimes where 48 inch wall board is to be used for interior finish the studs may be placed 24 inches on centers instead of the usual 16 inches, but this must be approved by the local building inspector.

Frames should be diagonally braced at the corners, corner posts should be 4 x 6 inches, the ledger board carrying second floor joists 1 x 5 inches or 1 x 6 inches let in flush with the studs, the main plate carrying roof rafters a doubled 2 x 4 inch, one on top of the other and well spiked.

Rafters for the main roof should be 2 x 6 inch — 16 inches on centers, for some small porch roofs 2 x 4 inch if the span is not too long. First and second floor joists should be 2 x 8 in — 16 inches on centers if the span is not over 12 feet and 2 x 10 inch — 16 inches on centers if the span is over 12 feet and under 16 feet.

Second floor ceiling joists should be not less than 2 x 2 inch — 16 inches on centers where there are no rooms in the attic. If rooms, then the same conditions apply as stated for first and second floor joists. When the first rafter is in place check the pitch to be certain that the roof pitch corresponds with the drawings, if not, the appearance and proportion of the house will not be as intended or the attic height may be curtailed.

The above sizes of material are in general use, and given here only as a guide. The specifications given and material sizes and requirements differ in different localities; however, if specifications do not call for material sizes closely bordering on those above mentioned, an investigation by the owner is in order.

California — Here I Come

By LeRoy E. Scott

I suppose that most of us suffer—mentally—not so much from what we have as from what we have not, not so much from our actual environment as from the lack of those associations and conditions which for many reasons we may believe to be more kind, more beautiful, more healthful, and perhaps more economical. In other words, a man's mind may at once be both the stimulus of his being and the torment of his existence.

I have lived in California almost twelve years. I came here because I thought I was restless, because I felt that somewhere west of the Rockies lay the "promised land". Why I felt so I do not know. It seems that some people get such feelings and some do not, or if they do they suppress them. Whether it is an admirable and courageous thing to obey such forces I do not know. In any event I would not wish you to infer that it takes less courage to remain and fight an imaginary foe than it does to run away from one—and often the former is considered more loyal. If you were to ask me to state the specific cause of such unrest or any of its supposed effects I fear I could not be specific. Like the fellow says, worry will not kill a man but his uncertainty as to whether he is worrying about the right thing will be more than he can stand.

In the first place things which often burden the life of one person may offer peace and opportunity to another. If it were not so, we might all prefer weak tea and parsnips for breakfast and tons of good food would go to waste. If we all preferred the roar of a subway to the drone of the cery spooks who swish through the lazy pines and chant the war-cries of long-dead Indians much of nature's beauty would go unused. And too, if our imaginations left us seeking but a bare existence from a dust-choked desert there would be no such words as progress and civilization in our language—even though many men have faced the awful silence of a boundless desert and found a peace which perhaps "passeth understanding".

But cheer up, for though I have pages of such philosophy I will not force it upon my reader for in a larger sense we are all philosophers and I have not much use for the man who does not like his own philosophy best. Still one who remains always in the security of his birthplace grows to depend more upon security than upon philosophy. However, security is perishable; it is temporal. Thieves can break in and take it. Time can cause it to decay and disappear. But never so with philosophy. Philosophy is immortal; it can not perish.

So it is with California. California offers little security. California is greedy, ambitious, arrogant. It is rugged, bold, self-assured. It fears no man, no state, and sometimes no God. But it is loyal. It is vibrant, glamorous. It lives and breathes a life few other states dare. Like a woman it both loves and hates. Like a man it rewards the fairest and buries its dead very deep. California will take all you've got and hold for more but overnight it will open its heart and pay you a hundred fold.

Many sporting events will take place including four 50 yard dashes, two running broad jumps, a three-legged race, a shot put, a half mile race, a sack race, a relay race, horse shoes, quoits, a rolling-pin contest for ladies only, a mystery race and a running high jump.

Many of these crowns will set deeper on the head, making it unnecessary to wear a hat elastic. It is assumed that many will welcome this gladly.

Crowns are still irregular in spite of the height, giving a jaunty appearance.

A long feather trim is used, and clusters of these feathers or quills in three or four colors, look gay and cheery on dark felts. Some have a flat bar pin trim and others a colored button trim.

Dark felts worn with summer dresses and white shoes, purse and gloves, is at the moment, very good style.

Black felt is now in the lead, being second to black velvet.

Flag Day, 1937

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

"It is a whole national history. It is the Constitution. It is the Government. It is the free people that stand in the Government, on the Constitution. Forget not what it means; and, for the sake of its meaning, be true to your country's flag."

That admonition was spoken by a great American, long decades before the observance of Flag Day on June 14 of each year became our national custom. It gains in significance as the years roll on.

For the American flag is known to the world as the symbol of human liberty. It was born in a struggle for freedom. It has carried that message wherever flown—not only over our own continent but on all the winds of the world.

Today much of the world could welcome its message. For freedom and democracy are still under fire; in many lands the rights of liberty of speech, of thought, and of endeavor—symbolized by the Stars and Stripes through its century and a half of existence—are still imperilled.

And from the political scrapheaps of those nations which exalt domination by the few over government by the many, are frequently imported ideas which, if accepted, could dilute or destroy our own clear concepts of liberty.

Flag Day, 1937, will serve a noble purpose if it reminds us of those things. It will serve a still higher one if it refreshes in all of us the determination to preserve for our own posterity that precious freedom which our fathers won for us, and which their flag and ours still proclaims to all the world.
