Facts About Nuts

Peanuts and pecans are native products grown in our Southern states, while Brazil nuts, almonds, cashews and pistachios are imported from foreign lands. Part of the confectioner's supply of walnuts is imported and the rest is grown in this country. English walnuts come from France and California, while black walnuts are raised in the United States. Almonds, although found in five continents, come chiefly from Spain and Italy. California also produces almonds, and Italy and Turkey supply almonds. Cashews come from India.

Most Valuable Poem

Phillippe Desportes died at sixty-one, having achieved immortal reputation as the highest paid poet in history. Desportes, an ecclesiastic and a diplomat apparently well deserving of the title of diplomat, was asked by King Henry III of France to write a verse with which the royal lover could pay tribute to his sweetheart. Desportes' poem had only three lines, but Henry III was so pleased he rewarded him with the title to four abbeys which brought in Desportes a total revenue of $3,300,000. In those days the abbeys derived a share of the income of every person in the district.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

Advertising in the right way is the medium through which merchants acquaint the Public with their stock in trade. When proper thought is given to an advertisement, with some attractive and unique touch added that will attract attention in addition to the cold statement of special wares and prices which are so essential, the well worded advertisement is an advantage and a business getter to the average merchant.

It is natural and to be expected that the merchants should support programs and such, when they are financially able to do so, and they deserve commendation for this kind of support. However, such ads are distributed to a small percentage of the commonwealth and usually appear not more than once or twice a year. Their value therefore as a business getter is more or less questionable.

A newspaper that is published regularly is a good medium for merchants to take advantage of and when advertisements are carried regularly and properly submitted, they are bound to impress the buying public sooner or later and result in increased business for the merchants.

Astronomers turn to the spider for one of the most necessary accessories of their meridian telescopes. For fine cross hairs, to stretch across the field of the telescope and mark the central line by which the passage of stars is to be gauged, there is nothing to excel a strand from a spider's web, says a writer in Coronet. Even the unpopular housefly may furnish a serviceable part for a research instrument. An astronomer found a fly's wing useful in the construction of a delicate device for measuring the heat of remote stars.

He will find such resolution removing difficulties, searching out or making means, giving courage for despondency, and strength for weakness, and like the star to the wise men of old, ever guiding him nearer and nearer to perfection.—Tryon Edwards.

The American Spirit

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

During the past year many Americans have been reading a book which describes various problems in the art of living that still await solution.

It is a cheerful book. It believes a large number of those problems will be solved, and that the solutions are not so far away. It believes that men and women striving with diligence, sincerity and self-confidence will find the answers—as did, for example, Thomas Edison and Luther Burbank in their separate and important fields.

During the same period have appeared other writings, either emanating from Europe or inspired by foreign pessimism. These take a different point of view.

They despair of the capacity of men and women, as such, to solve their problems. They urge that all initiative, all responsibility be surrendered to those who hold the reins of government—as in many foreign lands today—and that youth trade its hopes, its energies, its self-reliance, for a problematical and dull future of state care and state guidance.

Here are two divergent viewpoints. The first is American in approach and in method.

The second is foreign. It is the antithesis of the spirit which conquered our raw frontiers, and converted them into some of the most fruitful and pleasant home-sites on earth.

The new frontiers to be conquered are no longer geographical. But the spirit which will tame them and build thereon a fuller and happier life for men, is the same spirit of personal courage and confident enterprise that actuated our earlier pioneers.

It is the American spirit.

What's What In BUILDING CONSTRUCTION

An open forum for the discussion and explanation of construction and material problems
By Walter R. Shiner
Reg. Architect, State of Conn.

SUPERVISING SMALL HOME CONSTRUCTION

Many different finishes may be had for the finished plaster coat and the finish should be selected with due regard as to the type of room, whether the walls are to be papered, etc.

If the walls are to be papered, the finish coat should be hard white trowelled smooth, if a rough finish is desired a white sand finish may be used and if a nice rough finish is desired economically, the second coat of scratch may be wood floated. This finish or white sand finish is especially desirable for ceilings.

Then, again, the plaster finish may be done with color mixed in and the surface trowelled in different designs according to the style of architecture or the style in which the particular room is to be decorated as a whole.

This same idea may be carried out after the plastering is completed by using plastic paints (water or oil) and almost any finish, color, or combination of colors obtained. The previous plaster finish does not matter as plastic paints cover it up, cracks and all, if applied thickly enough.

The superintendent should see that the proper finish is decided upon before it is too late, and as it takes deliberation on the part of the owner, who must really decide what finish the rooms are to have before he can select the plaster finish, it is evident that "plaster thought" should begin even before the house is ready to be lathed.

Potter's Field Traced

to a Passage in Bible

Potter's field, which means a burial ground for the poor and for strangers, was suggested by the following passage in Matthew 27: "And the chief priests took the silver pieces, and said, It is not lawful for to put them into the treasury, because it is the price of blood. And they took counsel, and bought with them the potter's field, to bury strangers in. Wherefore that field was called, the field of blood, unto this day. Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jerome the prophet, saying, And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of him that was valued, whom they of the children of Israel did value; and gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord appointed me."

Just what this original potter's field was before it was converted into a cemetery for strangers is a matter of controversy, states a writer in the Indianapolis News. Some Bible commentators suggest that it may have been identified with the potter's house mentioned in Jeremiah 18:

"The word which came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying, Arise, and go down to the potter's house and there I will cause thee to hear my words. Then I went down to the potter's house, and behold, he wrought a work on the wheels. And the vessel that he made of clay was marred in the hand of the potter: so he made it again another vessel, as seemed good to the potter to make it."

Evidently the field purchased by the chief priests with the thirty pieces of silver for which Judas Iscariot betrayed Jesus and then cast down in the temple was either the site of a potter's workshop or the place where the potter obtained his clay.

Statues to Animals
Statues to animals, insects and birds exist in all parts of the world. Seattle has a monument to Segit, a record-breaking cow; at Adamsville, Rhode Island, there stands a monument to Rhode Island Red; Boonara, Queensland, erected a memorial hall to a caterpillar, and in Cheshire is a huge stone put up in memory of a famous foxhound, Blue Cap. This dog was the fleetest hound that ever lived, and a heavy drag was hung about his neck to handicap him.

First President in White House
President and Mrs. John Adams moved into the White House in November, 1800. Its cornerstone was laid in October, 1792, by George Washington. It is said that Mr. and Mrs. Washington inspected the White House a few days before he died. In 1814 the White House was partially burned by the British troops, but was restored and painted white—previously its walls had been of gray sandstone.

Camels' Use in Battle
Tribal battles between the Arabs of North Africa always end in a sudden retreat of the side which first discovers it has only one camel left for every three men, says Collier's Weekly. Three is all a "mehari," or racing camel, can save at one time, two riding on its back and one hanging onto its tail.

ETHIOPIA'S VICEROY
The duke of Aosta, cousin of King Victor Emmanuel Italy who has been appointed viceroy of Ethiopia, succeeding Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, who was relieved at his own request. The duke is married to the daughter of the duke of Guise, pretender to the throne of France. They have two children.

Jefferson Built "Monticello"
Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States (1801 to 1809), vice-president under John Adams, secretary of state under Washington, and author of the Declaration of Independence, built "Monticello." He lived there for 30 years. This beautiful red brick mansion is situated in the Blue Ridge mountains overlooking Charlottesville.

By Eddie Munson, Sports Editor

Mr. John Stempick, Coach of the East Haven Jeffs, announces a change in the team's schedule from Sunday evening to Saturday evening in the high school gym starting the first of the year. Dancing will follow each Saturday's game with music by Jack Reed's Orchestra.

Jeffs - Branford Grads

Instead of playing the New London five, last Sunday, the Jeffs took on the Branford Grads, of Branford High School, in a fast game, winning by a large margin of 45-26.

In the preliminary game, the Jeff Girls battled with a picked up team of boys (East Haven Wilcats) and beat them in an exciting game of basketball by the score of 26-25. (Not bad for girls, eh?)

E. H. H. S. To Meet Shelton

High school basketball will be resumed on Tuesday, January 4, at which time Shelton High will have a chance to even its score against the powerful East Haven five in the third game of the Housatonic League series, in the high school gym. In the previous match with Shelton, the local team took Shelton 22-18.

"Heavy" water has attracted wide scientific interest. Like ordinary water, it is composed of two parts hydrogen and one part oxygen, although its hydrogen has an atomic weight of two instead of one, the usual atomic weight of hydrogen. At first a scientific curiosity, it is produced on a commercial scale for the treatment of cancer, using special nickel steel and pure nickel in manufacturing equipment to safeguard its purity.
