The battery arrived in camp Friday night, following a successful trip and proceeded to prepare the area for the arrival of the main body of the regiment Monday afternoon. The field training period began Monday.

At midnight, Saturday, August 12th, the highways leading to Plattsburg, N. Y. took on the added load of the largest military motor truck movement in this country at any time, as the main movement to Plattsburg, N. Y., for the First Army Maneuver got under way. Branford Scouts Visit Chalet

Miss Mary Hawken and Miss Anne Minter of Camp Morton, Branford, Connecticut, were among the visitors who registered at the Girl Scout Chalet in the children's World, during a visit to the New York World's Fair recently. The chalet is a reproduction of "Our Chalet", international meeting place for Girl Scouts and Girl Guides from all parts of the world, at Adelboden, Switzerland.

The original building, high in the Swiss Alps, was the gift of Mrs. James J. Storrow, of Boston, Mass., to the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts. The replica at the World's Fair, which is the exhibit of the Girl Scout national organization, has been visited by many notables since its dedication on March 11. At that time Mrs. Herbert Hoover, of Palo Alto, Calif., honorary vice-president of the Girl Scouts, Mrs. F. Louis Slade, of New York City, acting chairman of the national board of directors, and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr. Oyster Bay, N.Y., vice-president, participated in the ceremonies.

Guilford Colony How Has Fifteen First Families

For more than a year, the committee charged with working out the details for the 300th anniversary of the founding of Guilford and Madison, Connecticut, has been hard at it working up a suitable program of events to commemorate the occasion. Perhaps there is no town in the country with more right to a fitting celebration, for in Guilford and Madison still stand over 250 homes that were built between 1639 and 1810, and in Guilford fifteen of the first families are direct descendants of the twenty-five families that came over from England in 1639 to settle the town.

ROLLING HOSTEL STOPS IN FOXON

The rolling Youth Hostel from California stopped this week in Foxon with five guests. Forty-two guests in all registered. Among them were five from Grove School, Madison, A. E. Geering, London, England; Ernest Hanover and Kurt Stone, Germany; Everett Calvin, Indiana; Dr. S. Gordon, Atlanta; Edna Blossomneau and Audrey Saunders, Toronto, Ont. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kramer, Swarthmore, Pa. The rest were from Long Island New York and New Jersey.

Plans are underway to discon- tinue the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad passenger station here.

Necessary repairs, caused largely by the hurricane are said to be the immediate reason for the decision, although some such action has been contemplated before. It is the intention of the company to wreck the present station and erect in its stead a shelter, similar to the one at Leete's Island. Business has decreased so that the large building is no longer considered necessary. But two passenger trains stop daily, one in the morning and another at night.

It is possible that the Railway Express Agency, operated by William Rice of Montowese Street may be moved to the freight depot, on Montowese Street, but plans are still incomplete. Wrecking companies have visited the depot this week with an eye to bidding on demolishing it.

All In The Day's Work

By E. C. and N. L. CARPENTER

AFTER FIFTY YEARS

"My wife has gone to the country... That was part of a song that some of us sang... Well, mine has gone to the country for a few days... I decided that I could do as I pleased; shave or not shave; wash the dishes or leave them unwashed; let the kittens tear things to pieces all they wanted to; or go wherever my inclination led. I decided to visit Berlin, N. Y. It is about 140 miles from East Haven, thirty miles east of Albany, N. Y. When I was a young man I started out to earn some money so I could go to school. I tried to sell a book, but was not very successful. At last I found my self in Berlin, N. Y. There was a shop that made a business of ironing shirts for a factory in an adjoining town. I got a job and learned how to iron. Worked at it a year. I had never been brought up to go to church or Sunday School. In deed, usually there was none with reasonable reach, but I began attending the Methodist church in this town. The pastor was Rev. A. H. Eaton, an attractive man. He baptized me on April 17, 1887, and received me into the church on July 10, 1887. This pastor encouraged me to go to Troy Conference Academy, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. I graduated there in 1890, and from Wesleyan University in 1894, and have been a minister in the New York State conference ever since. I have not visited Berlin for about fifty years. It was a rare experience. The pastor received me cordially. He let me take the church keys and spend a few minutes alone in the church. It seemed like a very sacred place to me. I knelt again at the altar where I was baptized and received into the church. The building has not changed very much. I went back to the mountains, for that was my own name. Just as the pastor had recorded it fifty years ago. I wanted to see the old village. The old laundry building is now a garage and filling station. I went up a street where an elderly couple lived with whom I boarded for a time. What interested me most was the chamber window looking out toward the mountains. For that was my room. It was before that window I stood when I knelt one October night, and tried to give my heart to Christ. I had never been brought up to go to church or Sunday School. In deed, usually there was none with reasonable reach, but I began attending the Methodist church in this town. The pastor was Rev. A. H. Eaton, an attractive man. He baptized me on April 17, 1887, and received me into the church on July 10, 1887. This pastor encouraged me to go to Troy Conference Academy, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. I graduated there in 1890, and from Wes-

Woodlot Owners Problems May Be Considered

Hope is growing throughout Connecticut that the case of the woodlot owner whose standing timber has been sold for years before being sold to a tax collector will be heard before the joint Congressional committee on Forestry. The committee has planned to hold hearings at Albany, N. Y. soon after the adjournment of Congress. New Englanders are extremely anxious to bring it into New England where in a setting typical of this region the legislators may hear the problems peculiar to the woodlot owner from the lips of New Englanders themselves. What type of a program will take care of such hearings will depend on as expressed wishes of the woodlot owners concerned. Some proposals which have already been made would tend to increase the scope of Extension Service forestry; establish demonstration areas by addition to the State Forests; establish a leasing plan under which the government would preserve and market timber that might otherwise bring no yield to the owner or at best a very small one. Under this plan the Forest Service would manage the land much as National Forests are now handled, paying the owner an amount sufficient to cover taxes. Those who urge an effort to attract the Congressional committee into New England say that now as never before it is necessary that steps be taken in behalf of such a program of conservation of natural resources as other regions of the country have enjoyed for years. The New England needs legislative attention, foresters claim, because about 75% of its land area is classified as forest soil and it is importing 85% of its wood products. One of its major problems is to maintain established industries, prevent migration of industries to other regions, and find new industries to take the place of those which have already migrated or will migrate for certain uncontrollable reasons. The Congressional committee on Forestry which may examine the problem of forestry here is headed by Senator J.W. Buckhead of Alabama. Other members on the committee are: Messrs. W.J. Bulow of South Dakota, E.D. Smith of South Carolina, D.W. Clark of Idaho, and C.L. McNary of Oregon. Representatives on the committee are Messrs. H.L. Fulmer of South Carolina, Will Doxey of Mississippi, W.M. Pierce of Oregon, D.A. Reed of New York, and H.L. Engelbright of California.

Hot Weather And Heating Food

To hear the conversation at this time of year, one would think that there was one all min life and that was to keep cool. We are much more sensible than we used to be about clothing. During the last few years even men's clothes have come to have a summertime air. In this country, we use plenty of cold drinks in spite of the fact that certain authorities believe that hot tea and hot coffee are more cooling than the chilled beverages.

Iron For Rosy Cheeks And Peps

Those very commonplace foodstuffs green leafy vegetables, dried peas and dried beans, deserve a little praise now and then for the iron they contain. They're very commonplace foods and inexpensive but sometimes they get lost in the scramble of meal-planning. Another food that sometimes is very badly neglected by some, especially those who think they're fatening, is potatoes. Now it is a fact that potatoes owe a day or two of their fame to iron. They contain about four times as much iron as macaroni or spaghetti, which are so common in the diet. For iron, Americans are beginning to realize that too much refined bread and cereal isn't quite right. We lose iron when we wash our vegetables in cold water. A good rule to follow is to have at least one generous serving of whole grain food in the diet. While we're talking about iron, we ought to mention meat and eggs. They're recommended as part of a well-balanced diet because they contain iron, although you can't expect to get all your quota from one or two foods. The richest sources of iron in our diet are liver, beef, veal, beef or lamb liver. They are excellent and are well included once weekly in the family menu.

Baked Fish With Lemon

Rub lemon juice over fish to be baked, covering the inside as well as outside. Salt and stuff or not as desired. Put in well-greased pan, dot with butter and bake at moderate temperature until done (about 12 minutes for the pound). Serve garnished with parsley and lemon slices or quarters. These should be large, smooth, and plentiful enough to provide ample juice for flavor. Fish steaks may be baked in similar fashion. Rub both sides of steak with lemon juice. Broiled or fried fish should also be prepared by rubbing with lemon and served with lemon-garlic.

Frankfurter Turnovers

1/4 cup flour, 1 cup minced frankfurters, 1 cup shortening, 1/2 cup thick, white sauce mixed with 1 teaspoon yellow mustard, 1/2 teaspoon salt. Blend pastry thoroughly. Roll thin and cut in squares. Combine frankfurters with white sauce and place one tablespoon on each piece of pastry. Fold like a turnover, moistening edges to hold them together, and bake in a hot oven for 15 minutes or until delicately browned.

THE PRIVATE CAR OF JAY GOULD MUST BE MADE UP BY THE END OF THE 1860'S IS THE HOME OF A RAILROAD SARD-MASTER AND HIS FAMILY IN TEXAS.

One of Napoleon's lesser known habits was his almost constant whittling while deep in thought or listening to a lecture. One day many of the Little Emperor's chairs as seen today in famous collections bear evidence of the use of his knife—the arm pieces cut and laced. Thus the penknife is more enduring than the sword.

Summer Salad Dressings

These hot summer days are salad day. We crave the crispness and flavor of all the fresh foods we can get at this time of year, and salad twice a day finds favor with most of us. For dinner, pour a simple combination of lettuce and other greens with tomato or cucumber added. For luncheon a more substantial combination of vegetables or fruit may be served as the mainstay.

It's the dressing that makes the salad. You can make distinctive dressings in five minutes' time with sweetened condensed milk. Just add seasonings and lemon juice of vinegar, with egg yolk if you want, and altogether for a few minutes, and you have a smooth, creamy dressing that tosses off the fruit or vegetable salad to perfection.

Jelly Fruit Salad Dressing. 2-3 cup sweetened condensed milk, 1/2 cup vinegar or lemon juice, 1/2 cup salad oil or melted butter, 1 egg yolk, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1/2 teaspoon mustard, 1/2 cup tart red jelly such as currant or cranberry.

Cheese Dressing. 2-3 cup sweetened condensed milk, 1/2 cup vinegar or lemon juice, 1/2 cup salad oil or melted butter, 1 egg yolk, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1/2 teaspoon mustard, 1/2 cup tart red jelly such as currant or cranberry.

Delicious Prune Banana Whip. 1 banana, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1 cup cooked prunes, 1/2 teaspoon granulated gelatin, 1/2 cup cold water, 3 eggs whites, 2 cups granulated sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt.

TOWN OWNED BEACHES

Attention has been drawn this week to a suggestion that the Town of East Haven provide its residents with a town-owned waterfront park.

Rapidly the beaches along the eastern coast are being closed to the general public by shore front owners seeking privacy and desiring to get others from enjoyment of that for which the owners have made investment.

As is the case in most Connecticut seashore towns the time is fast approaching when there will be no available water frontages, and there is but little now, for those who cannot rent or own.

The problem of keeping transients and out-of-town visitors from town-owned beaches has been satisfactorily solved elsewhere by land purchases and simple methods of resident identification.

East Haven is one of the few towns along these shores that has not taken such a precaution to safeguard the future bathing privileges of its residents.

SABOTEURS

While rescue crews dug out wreckage of the luxurious "City of San Francisco" seeking dead or injured, railway investigators found definite evidence the tracks had been tampered with, demolishing the train.

Derailment spread terror, injury and death to passengers as the steam engine sped over a small bridge 20 miles west of Carlin, Nevada.

There seems strong evidence that this was no accident but had been caused deliberately, the work of a fiendish mind with murderous intent.

That one twisted mind may have formulated the plot is conceivable but investigation indicates that more than one person was involved.

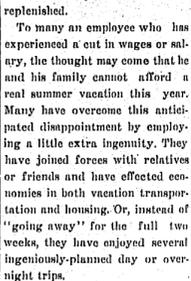

It was timed to catch the 99 1/2 hour Chicago-Oakland scheduled train where it would receive maximum damage doing 50-60 miles per hour.

This country is at peace. But minds filled with hatred are at war within this land of peace.

INVESTING IN LEISURE

The employer or employee who makes an investment in summer vacation usually finds that it yields high returns. An employer today customarily pays fifty-two weeks of wages or salary for only fifty weeks of work-hours. Yet he generally finds himself richly repaid for this benevolence. His employees return from their summer holidays reanimated and refresh-

THE WATCHMAN ON THE JOB

TOOT

To many an employee who has experienced a cut in wages or salary, the thought may come that he and his family cannot afford a real summer vacation this year.

Many have overcome this anticipated disappointment by employing a little extra ingenuity. They have joined forces with relatives or friends and have effected economies in both vacation transportation and housing. Or, instead of "going away" for the full two weeks, they have enjoyed several ingeniously-planned day or overnight trips.

Vacation time seems to call for the added refreshment of change of scene—often it may be found within a few miles of home—as well as freedom from accustomed tasks. But it is not a requirement that the vacationist be doing something energetic or going somewhere every hour. It is not even an inexorable requirement that he go anywhere. Many men and women have profited by devoting part of this holiday period to taking thoughtful inventory of their ideas, attitudes and ideas. This often proves to be the very factor in vacation investment that produces the high yield both for employer and employee—Christian Science Monitor.

QUIET LESSON IN ECONOMICS

When the Congress of the United States decides to pack its bags and go home, the last few hours are a jumble of confusion and haste, of vacation good wishes and last-minute name calling. The one this year was no exception. And it is just possible that, because of the confusion, one of the most trenchant and accurate statements concerning government spending and pump-priming theories was lost to the newspaper-reading public.

The statement, made by Representatives Woodrum, Virginia Democrat, is worth reviewing here, for it shows what an observer on the scene has actually discovered about the elaborate spend-lead theories until recently in vogue.

The Virginia congressman was attacking heavy government spending in general when he was interrupted by the remark that in these areas the Treasury and the various agencies were merely "making loans."

"Yes, I know," the Representative immediately shot back, "but once you take it out of the Treasury—good by."

"Those who believe, sincerely and mistakenly, that government projects for lending large sums of money are really self-liquidating, would do well to read those words over again and again till they register. For they are the product both of common sense and a careful observation of past schemes that were supposed to be self-liquidating—schemes which, the Representative well knows, have cost the country billions of dollars while yielding little in the way of tangible returns.

That same lesson is, of course, going to be impressed on all of us in the form of heavier taxes, but it will at least lessen the shock and cut down on its intensity if it is remembered clearly in the future that "once you take it out of the Treasury—good by!"

NORTH AND SOUTH POLES

Admiral Richard E. Byrd is the only living man who has commanded expeditions to both the North and South poles, and therefore it is natural that he should have been selected to head the American Government expedition which will depart in less than three months to lay official claim to millions of acres of territory in the Antarctic.

The expedition plans to establish Antarctic bases by January or February. There will be three bases, and they may become permanent. In any event the crews will be provided with ample food to last two years, and the definite purpose is to claim the South Pole regions for the United States Government.

Admiral Byrd explained to a group of newspapermen in Washington the other day that the North Pole is covered with ice over a thousand feet of water, and that the Antarctic, or South Pole, is covered with mountains reaching a thousand feet, and more, above the sea level. A part of the Antarctic lies in the Western Hemisphere and is less than 500 miles from South America. Petrified trees and inextinguishable coal deposits prove, according to Byrd, that the South Pole was at one time a region where things grew. Sometimes, he says, it may again be a land that is settled. In the far-ahead future the Antarctic may be an important frontier.

Other nations are planning an expedition to the South Pole. Germany has already claimed its Swastika and laid claim to a small portion of the great area.

TWO-BY-FOUR

The action of the Federal Circuit Court in Chicago in nullifying an order of Secretary Wallace against a meat packing company is a pointed lesson that there are limits to the authority of Government Administrators. The company was charged with unfair discrimination in extending credits to different classes of customers.

A fair degree of discretion must be allowed managements and stockholders in running their own businesses. Mr. Wallace regarded the packing industry as a public utility, subject to such regulation as is imposed by the Interstate Commerce Commission on railroads.

The court said Mr. Wallace was wrong in presupposing that he possesses such powers and must keep within the law. Government by bureaucracy has made great strides in this country during the last few years. When it oversteps its bounds, it is good to know that there are courts to call it to account.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

By JAMES PRESTON

Congress has adjourned, but the camp-followers left behind in the exodus of adjournment are busy themselves with a critical perusal of the accomplishments of the session. There is already no doubt in their minds that the session reflected a distinct change in public thinking. Members of the House—who must stand for re-election every two years—are closer to the people than any other in Washington, even Senators. Those looking at the session find that it mirrored the public thinking. Business should be given a chance to move forward and create jobs and absorb the unemployed. The Executive Department's professional senders should be restrained or even halted.

The helping hand which Congress extended to business was indeed a shaky one and mainly involved wiping from the statute books the last vestige of the white-rabbit-out-of-the-hat Underbristled Surplus Tax. Then too, there was a lightening of the burden of taxes on payrolls—the so-called "bonus" tax.

Property damage due to war is placed before the public in a certain opinion grasp at these two steps to the right. And it is just possible that the most trenchant and accurate statement concerning government spending and pump-priming theories was lost to the newspaper-reading public.

The Virginia congressman was attacking heavy government spending in general when he was interrupted by the remark that in these areas the Treasury and the various agencies were merely "making loans."

THE PUBLIC GOES ON RECORD

After a hard battle, out in front and behind the scenes, the Hatch Bill to take politics out of relief has become law.

There will, naturally, be plenty of critics now to declare that the ideal expressed in this legislation is a contradiction in terms: that it is impossible to take politics out of something controlled by politicians.

Those taking this tack are guilty of missing the real point and significance of the Hatch measure. The real point is that an aroused public has succeeded, in spite of attempts to waver it, in putting its attitude on record. And it has done so through the democratic processes at its command.

The average American favors adequate work relief for those who need it, but he has grown extremely tired of seeing WPA padded and forth in an endless game of political football. Reliable polls of public opinion have shown this sentiment becoming steadily more pronounced. In April, 1936, to the question "Does politics influence relief to your locality?" 78 per cent of those responding said that it did. Two years later, the figure had risen to 84 per cent!

The public's resentment over the recent WPA "strikes against government" serves to indicate that the sentiment is even stronger today. But it is the case of the Hatch Act which finally drives the point home and leaves no room for further doubt. It shows what the American public expects of relief and its administration, nationally and locally, from this time on.

And the politicians know, better than any other group, that when public opinion wants to be heard it speaks with a voice of thunder.

A COURT REBUKES BUREAUCRATIC RULE

The action of the Federal Circuit Court in Chicago in nullifying an order of Secretary Wallace against a meat packing company is a pointed lesson that there are limits to the authority of Government Administrators. LET'S STAY OUT OF EUROPE. During the short time it takes to read this column another $375,000 will have been spent by various nations on war armaments. Over $800 is being spent while each single day is read by the time this column appears next week the world-wide armament race will have cost another $375,000,000. That is the world rolling merrily along the road to war.

The sum of twenty billion dollars a year is a staggering sum. When spent for the preparation of war it is still more staggering. "The world is certainly paying homage and respect to the nearness of the planet Mars. Practically every person in the world is being taxed to support his armament race. This huge sum is spent for constructive purposes would build thousands of schools, hospitals and homes all over the world. As it is, mankind is not getting any benefit from this money expended to satisfy the Gods of War. In fact the amount spent by armaments does not end here because the armaments are simply designed to ultimately destroy many billions of dollars of property, and so—few lives lost.

BEYOND THE VEIL

"An anchor sure and steadfast" Hope sees beyond the veil Stayed by God's oath-bound promise That refuge cannot fail.

"Surely blessing I will bless thee" Thine arms made strong shall be By the mighty Cross of Jacob: His hands shall strengthen thee.

To the utmost bound of the lasting hills And ancient mountains gray, With the precious things of heaven and earth And the fullness thereof for aye.

What lies beyond that mystic veil Of Israel's hallowed shrine, Where purple, blue, and scarlet Did with fine linen twine?

Within a sacred treasure-chest Exceeding fine, complete, And cherubim of beaten gold To guard the mercy-seat.

Inside, the tables of the law, And Aaron's budded rod, A golden pot of manna laid Imperishable, from God.

That veil before the Holy place Thus hidden from our view, Says—by the power of God unseen, "All things shall be made new."

In righteousness and holy peace Those who endure shall say: That sin and death have passed away And blessings come to stay.

Oh, purple, blue, and scarlet, And linen fine and clean—That faithful One passed through the veil And rent it with His twain.

So made for us an entrance there: When the mystic veil gave "Well done," The rod has blossomed forth God's law is that of love.

Margaret R. Constock.

When this day comes around There's an aching A wound left deep in our hearts There's a gap that has never completely been filled. Since that time death tore us apart.

You fooled us all dear Mother When you quietly slipped away To sleep that deep, all mortals must sleep Be it now or some other day.

You left us alone to carry our cross No one to whom we may confide No one to turn to in trouble No one to stand by our side

We try to seek consolation Oh, how we wish you were here To lay your hand upon our brow Thus making our way more clear

Of this however we feel assured Our watching over us All Extending your loving hand to guide that we may never fail That we may never fail

That we miss you so tremendously We feel God know the best He felt your work was ended So he called you home to rest.

Not a day will we ever neglect or You face will remain in our heart Regardless of time, we'll love you the same Until death do us part.

THE MOVIE GUYED

GOSSIP FROM HOLLYWOOD:

William Powell, proving that work agrees with him, by displaying weight card from a penny machine to fellow workers on the "Another Thin Man" set.....Garbo startling the entire Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot by driving to work in a new car. But it proved to be just a "loan" while her own sedan was being repaired.....George Murphy surprising everyone on the set of "Henry Goes Arizona" by conversing in Russian with Tenen Holtz. Murphy it seems learned to speak Russian years ago for a vaudeville act.

Nelson Eddy "up" on all of the latest gardening gadgets since landscaping has been started on his new Brentwood home..... Wallace Beery off on another fishing expedition, this one to Fish Lake near Richfield, Utah.....Ann Morris lost beneath the Texas sombrero, sent her by fans from that state. The hat was completely covered with signatures.....Dennis O'Keefe home from the hospital and recuperating from injuries received in an auto crash.....Ann Southern spending every spare moment in search of more antiques for her home..... Eleanor Powell rehearsing dance routines with Fred Astaire in preparation for the new "Broadway Melody" production.....Clark Gable attacking the various problems of ranching with a vengeance.

DO YOU KNOW:

That Director Jack Conway impersonated a hissing coffee pot off stage in "Lady of the Tropics."

That Robert Taylor has ten separate kissing scenes with Hedy Lamarr in "Lady of the Tropics" which is held over and now showing at the Loew Poll College Theatre for a 2nd Big Week.

This should settle once and for all the dispute over the color of Hedy Lamarr's eyes.

Persons who interview her continue to conflict on the color. Some say she has brown eyes. Others give her hazel eyes. She also has been reported to have gray, green and blue eyes.

They are all correct. Hedy Lamarr actually has brown, hazel, gray, green and blue eyes.

Miss Lamarr proved it during the filming of her new picture. She has Chameleon eyes that change color, depending upon the color of the gown she is wearing at the time.

The 2nd big feature on this wonderful hold over show is "Miracles For Sale" with Robert Young and Florence Rice.

Susan And God

him. Susan is even less successful in trying to fix her own life. She attempts to cure her husband of drunkenness without giving him the one thing he needs—her love and companionship. But, more fortunate than Irene, she sees the light, and rebuilds her marriage on a more firm foundation.

One reason for the phenomenal success of this play is that it is the perfect type of high comedy. It has character, believable situations, and honest drama, yet it sparkles continually with wit and good humor. The situations in which Susan involves herself and her friends are serious, yet her antics are so amusing that she keeps her audience continually in a good mood, and frequently convulses them with laughter. And each of the other perfectly rounded characters contributes his or her share, be it comic or dramatic, to one of the most beautifully constructed and written plays that the theater has seen in recent years.

Miss Ralston and Miss Brian are tremendously effective in the leading roles of Susan and Irene. They are perfect foils for each other. Miss Ralston is an angelic blonde, Miss Brian a striking brunette. Miss Ralston is naive, animated, bubbling with personality; Miss Brian is crisp, poised, and sophisticated. They are alike only in their marvelous acting ability, which enables them to their very different roles with an equal degree of excellence. It is really remarkable to see how these two have done so much screen work, have able to adapt themselves to the exacting demands of the stage. They act, not like movie stars on exhibition, but like experienced actresses of the theatre.

Mitchell Harris, who has built up a tremendous following in this vicinity with his comic roles, plays "straight" this week in the part of Susan's husband, and shows what he can do with a serious characterization. As a man who is fine and strong, but continually fighting one weakness, alcohol, "Mitch" does an impressive job. Olive Warren again proves versatility by taking the part of Susan's fifteen-year-old daughter with great charm and humor and a little pathos. Others notable in the supporting cast are Jean Platt, Elizabeth Stearns, and Alan Handley. Hardie Albright has directed the production in his customary smooth and skillful manner and Peter Wolf has designed the three sets, which are as beautiful and as convincing as any he has done all year.

Next week the Chapel Playhouse will present the preview of a brand new play, "She Didn't Know It Was Loaded", prior to its Broadway opening. The stars will be Louise Platt and Virginia Valli (Mrs. Charles Farrell). On Friday afternoon, August 18th, at 2:30 P.M., Charlotte Buchwald, the Chapel Playhouse Playgoer, will interview Esther Ralston on Station WICC.

Lester Nichols Completes 73rd Year At M. I. F.

Seventy three years ago today, as these notes go to press, a certain young man walked with a brisk step to board the Shore Line train leaving from New Haven for Branford. It was still early in the morning when the rattly, little train pulled into Branford, and the young man, with lunch box in hand, and morning newspaper in pocket, walked unknowingly toward the goal of his life's occupation. A small brick building, surrounded by a vastness of green meadows met his eyes, and one can easily imagine why his concern, at the moment was how steady the job was to be. But smoke was coming from the one, lone chimney and the glistening Branford River in the distance looked friendly enough, and exactly at seven thirty, Lester Nichols found himself serving his first hour of work with the M.I.F. by helping Mr. E.C. Hammer stencil small kegs of pipe fittings on the shipping room floor.

The events of today were not so essentially different to the same Lester Nichols, for this very morning, he started from his home, and went, with the same keen interest, to his goal of occupation. And one may easily believe that, having contributed greatly towards the building of a greater business, the approaching sight of a vastness of brick buildings now, instead of green meadows, gave him a sense of pride that most of us will never know. But the question of the steadiness of the job no longer troubles Mr. Nichols, we understand.

In starting the seventy four years of service in the M.I.F. Co. we heartily congratulate Mr. Nichols, and wish him the best of good wishes.

A recent visitor to the Plant had much favorable comment on the new enamelled signs which have recently been posted over inspector's benches and other points of operations. The signs read "We claim that we make the best fittings." Please help us prove our claim.

advantage of the Company's offer to the colored employees of a free piece of land for a new house. William plans to build a 22 foot square bungalow house in West End District and will start operations immediately. Good luck William!

Charles Padleo of Dep. 11, spent the week end at Old Orchard Maine. He says "There was plenty of pop corn and Rupperts on the beach, but he brought home only a mess of sand clams in bottles."

For years the Government has had to put lights and buoys on rocks in the sound so people couldn't hit them. Now along comes A.G. Goddalls with his super speed boat and hit so many of them and breaks them up and levels them below the water mark. Now boats can travel all over the sound without any danger. The Government should pay A.G. for his services.

"Crusher" Napoleon's car is given plenty of parking space down the Steel Foundry. His latest victim is in a garage being repaired. "Crusher's motto is "They shall not pass."

George Shemouny spent the week-end touring up state. Ap proached about the trip George said he enjoyed Chinatown in New York where he watched the Chinese eat Chop Suey. He also visited Poughkeepsie, New York.

Jean Bartlett and Don Sawtelle were seen conversing seriously in the Plant Yard. It may be that Jean wants to dispose of his old crate via the cupola. Be cautious Don. Remember our Slogan. "We Make the Best Fittings."

Anthony Domkoski says the draught does not worry him a bit. He claims he will have potatoes as large as watermelons. The secret of the thing is this says Tony. "When I plant my potatoes, I plant an onion along side of each potato. The onion makes the potatoes eyes water moistening the ground, thereby assuring a large crop."

EMERGENCY LANDING

Emergency landings have been made by flyers under conditions which have left the beholder breathless, but few of them have exceeded in dramatic thrills one made by Lieut. L.M.H. Sanderson, of the U.S. Marines, who risked life and limb to save his little single-seater plane.

While taking off on a return flight from Philadelphia to Quantico, Va., 150 miles away, his landing gear struck some obstacle, and as he climbed to a safe altitude he looked below to see the ground crew signalling frantically. He realized that the wheels of his plane were so badly damaged that either to continue his flight or attempt a landing would be extremely hazardous.

An ambulance and fire engine dashed onto the field, but Sanderson had no intention of using his parachute to bail out. To the astonishment of the watchers below he continued his flight southward.

Eventually he reached Aberdeen, Md., but by that time the wrecked gear, swinging like a pendulum, had so damaged his lower wing and the fuselage that a crack-up was imminent. The ship was being hampered to pieces. He would have to land it or leave it.

Emergency messages had been flashed to all Army and Navy stations to the south to be on the look-out for the stricken plane. A second rescue was standing by at Aberdeen Army Air Corps field, with the motor wide open he circled the field, dropping his money and his watch wrapped in a service cap-tied with his handkerchief.

Then he glided over the shoreline and brought his crippled craft down on Chesapeake Bay with a splash, yet without injury to the flyer or further damage to the plane. Even when the rescue crew had shifted from fire engine and ambulance to rowboat, and wanted to take him ashore he refused to leave until the salvaging of his airship was assured.

The executive committee of the North Guilford Parent Teacher Association met last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Little for the purpose of discussing plans for a float for the tercentenary parade.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wardle of Orange were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Hawley Lincoln, Jr. of Summer Island.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rice were at Kingston, N. Y. over the week-end. Their daughter Phyllis returned with them after a week's vacation.

"Carrie" went on a fishing trip recently for porgies and butter fish. George spent considerable time fishing and came home with a nice red face. It is assumed that the sun not only made his face red, but the fact that he only caught three small fish (and one he hooked on the side) helped a lot. He thinks from now on when he has an appetite for fish he will go to the market instead.
