Drum Corps Entertained By Alexander McKernan After Senior Victory

Banquet At Oasis Given To Celebrate Winning Championship In Meriden Fife and Drum Corps State Convention—Held Junior Title Four Years.

by Mrs. Daniel Doody
Alexander McKernan who has been the financial support for the North Branford Fife and Drum Corps since its beginning eight years ago entertained the winners at a banquet at the Oasis on Tuesday night. For four consecutive years the local boys had been awarded junior championship in the ancient class and at the state convention held this year in Meriden they were acclaimed as champions in the senior ancient class. As a fitting recognition of this achievement, Mr. McKernan, invited the boys with their leader, Earl Colter, Sr. and a few friends to dine with him at a Victory dinner. In the colonial banquet room, reserved for them, a spirit of gaiety reigned as the banquet progressed. Music was enjoyed following the dinner and then acting as toastmaster, Anthony Daly, asked Mr. McKernan to respond to the rousing cheers. In his usual quiet manner Mr. Kernan told of the pride and joy that welled up within him as he sat there among his friends and Connecticut champions. He admonished them to remember that they had been a great credit to their town, North Branford, and that they should conduct themselves while in the uniform of their corps in such a manner that there would be no reflection upon their town. He urged them to continue to be

by A. T. P.
It gets you, that amusing twinkle that breaks suddenly into a grin and then somehow or other sparkles in Sam Byrd's eye. His affable manner, hovering smile and bit of Southland in his voice are enough to render mild the censure of the toughest critic. There isn't a faint shadowy semblance of merriment when he speaks enthusiastically of Curley in "Mice or Men" or of Dude in "To-hast Young Actor" Dude won for him "best road actor on Broadway" and to rate that honor he worked hard long and seriously. Monday was a damp rainy day if you remember, so instead of talking with me, for ten minutes on his porch overlooking Thimble Islands he invited me to luncheon. I was flattered no end that he was willing to give his time just to chat with me about his radio programs,

Boys At Camp Need Furniture For Day Room

The following letter sheds light on Camp Edwards "Day-room" need of furniture and the Review adds its hope that readers will respond to the writer's request. To the Editor of the Branford Review: Recently we visited some of our Battery H boys at Camp Edwards and spent the time in their "day-room" where they spend their recreation periods. They have a splendid new, clean building but they have so very little with which to furnish it that we wondered if some of us Branford people might not be glad to contribute some furniture which we no longer are using. They need comfortable chairs or davenport, lamps, tables (not too big), and a few card tables. So many of us have furniture in our attics which we would be glad to give to the boys if we knew of a way to get it to them. If we can get enough arranged for to pay for their time and trouble I was told by some of the boys that they can come in a truck and get it to take back to their "Day room". If anybody has any discarded comfortable chairs, etc which they want to give to the boys at Camp Edwards, if they will send me a card telling me what they have I will tell the boys so that they may come up with their truck and take what they can and need. Mrs. George R. Adams

The only time I thought he might be jesting was when he said he does not have enough responsibilities to keep him occupied. That is why he turned to producing; to fill in odd hours when he was neither writing, appearing on the stage giving a broadcast, or a dozen or more things. During those idle moments he sent for Paul Robeson to return

LABOR DAY

The Christian concern for democracy, based on Jesus' teaching of the dignity and essential brotherhood of all the children of God, long an advance in political institutions, has more recently been found expression in economic and industrial relations. This concern supports the right of the common man to a voice in determining the conditions under which he works. The labor union movement, like political democracy, has its imperfections; yet it is the major expression of the democratic principle in industry.

ELI WHITNEY AND HIS CRITICS

Critics who wait idly until the defense production would do well to remember the story of Eli Whitney, inventor of the cotton gin and father of the mass production technique. If they had their own position in the same embarrassing position that they are in.

In 1798 the War Department granted
Whitney a contract to make 10,000 muskets within two years. At the end of that time he had produced only a few hundred guns.
But he had done something far more important — something the critics didn't know about. He had invented machinery that could make interchangeable parts for those guns and make them in quantity.

CITIZENSHIP

This is something of an old story
but it affects the welfare of so many people that I like to give some publicity as I can, to some of the most important points. For one thing, when the government
now gives orders to the factories it is likely to stipulate that the work is to be done by citizens. This causes a great embarrassment for those who have put off their citizenship applications until they are well along in years, and may have forgotten some essential facts about their entry into the country. Nevertheless, it is possible to help great many such persons even if they think they are helpless.

We have sources of information that often straighten things out at night. Another source of help is that there is such a rush for citizenship papers that the government offices are overwhelmed and there is not time to get their citizenship restored with very little trouble and expense. After that, the authorities of wives who are citizens can

Why Should We Be Helping China

By WILLIAM B. WATSON

First of all, let it be understood that the Chinese are not some vague people on the other side of the earth; on the contrary, they are playing a vital part in the fight against aggressive dictators, especially, as all of us are aware,
against Japan who in turn is part of that notorious enemy combination referred to as the Axis. If there were no other reason for our aiding them, that all-important one would be sufficient but there are other contributing reasons.

In the minds of a good many Americans a Chinese can do little more than run a laundry or supply
the hair-raising thrills in a movie.
Anybody who has lived in China
will know that only the Chinese can do the things that are needed in the southern part of the country very apt to be laundrymen, and that all others are not by any means bandits or desperate criminals of some sort.

THE POCKETBOOK OF KNOWLEDGE

Treat Lawns Now To Protect Them From Japanese Beetle Grub Feeding

Wherever the Japanese beetle has been abundant this season, home owners should delay longer in treating their lawns with arsenate. Mr. J. Peter Johnson of the Experiment Station at New Haven says that some injury from grub feeding will appear this fall, but most of the damage will fall to show up before the spring.

The Experiment Station recommends application of lead arsenate at the rate of 10 pounds to 1000 feet of area approximately 20 by 60 feet. The material may be used dry or in liquid form. Dry lead arsenate is mixed with fifteen to twenty-five times its weight of slightly moist sand or soil and should be evenly distributed over the lawn by hand. The application may also be made with a hand fertilizer distributing machine. Afterwards, thorough watering will wash the dust from the grass blades.

Lead arsenate and arsenic acid is mixed in water at the rate of one pound to two gallons. It may be applied or distributed by means of a power sprayer. Properly applied, such a treatment should protect lawns for five years.

The beetle infestation this season has been unusual in some respects, according to Mr. Johnson. Adults appeared normally in late June and numbers increased through early July. This was followed by a decrease in population, with another rise about August 1. Beetles that hatched after a week. The grubs began feeding at once on grass roots and injury may appear by middle of September. The August tribe laid eggs later and injury from these grubs may be delayed until spring. Since lead arsenate remains effective in the soil from three to five years, treatment now will kill both fall and spring feeding larvae.

Although there may be some danger to pets if treatment is given to lawns in effect in the past.

It is now possible for unemployed men of good character and health, between the ages of 17 and 23½ to be sent into a Connecticut C C Camp for their physical examination immediately after completing their application papers at the office of the local CCC Sealing agency.

The Civilian Conservation Corps is a mighty force in the life of the Nation. Those thousands of enrollees who have come and gone from the camps are helping to build the more Nation and the man will get out of it. The CCC helps prepare inexperienced young men for that responsibility.

The CCC is building strong, healthy bodies.

The CCC is training young men to live, work and play together.

The CCC is teaching men good work habits, the dignity of labor, and the meaning of duty's work.

The CCCs promoting high standards of moral character.

"The CCC is a builder of men."

What Nots

Sled Jones back from Europe where he covered the news at the front says this is a small world. Escaping bullets at Barcelona, Spain he rode a couple of miles along shore for a swim. A stranger watching him from the beach approached and asked "Ray, isn't your name Jones and didn't you used to swim with the crowd at Monmouth?" Over a cup of coffee in Paris one morning he struck up a conversation with a man who had been living in Hamden and frequently sold cheese to Jones's mother. A war correspondent Ray Daniels, representing the New York Times in London recognized Jones one afternoon at a sidewalk cafe in Paris. Ray and Sled were boyhood pals and friends until recently. One day Jones was having a party at a familiar face he had passed on the street. The following day another fellow town boy, Metaglin from "The Maples", stopped at the bureau to pay his respects and to say he had recognized him in passing. Arnold T. Peterson is staying a couple of days at Lake Quonipaug with Walter J. McCarthy, Jr.

THIS BUSINESS OF Living

BY SUSAN THAYER

DISCIPLINE AND MORALE

The four-year-old dangled over his lunch, as little boys will, and his mother said, "Drink your milk; you'll soon be big enough to have a bicycle."

How different from the old formula for raising children, "Spare the rod and spoil the child." The school to which the modern mother sends her children does not have "reading", "ritin", and "ritin", taught to the time of the hickory stick.

Threats of gobins and boocoy men are things of the past. Instead of holding fear of punishment over the child's head, we hold hope of reward. We stress Co-operation, not compulsion. That applies not only in raising children, but in almost every phase of American life. In fact, this country is based on the idea of voluntary co-operation. A man who had just returned from Europe drew a sharp distinction between the Dictatorships and the Democracies. He said that the Dictatorships have discipline, but the Democracies have morale. That distinction is as sharp as the difference between living behind prison bars and being free.

The dictator way of life is forced upon the people. Every man or woman living under it must comply, or face the firing squad or concentration camp. The democratic way is the net of the wishes of all the wishes of all the citizens, co-operating voluntarily. In this defense effort we are inspired by our devotion to the principles we are arming to defend. We want to preserve freedom, opportunity and hope. We have a real goal to which we aspire because of the Zen within us, and when the American mother sends her children to school this Fall she knows that they will not be taught by slaves of Dictatorship who are forced to censor facts and distort truth. In her own home she can talk freely with them and know that she is not being spied upon and that she will not be presented for teaching them her religious faith.

A youth who takes a job knows that his country has no placed any limitation on the height he can reach, and he knows that there is opportunity to rise, that there is scope of reward. He works, and thrives and grows because he is free.

Yes, Democracy and Freedom give a nation like America morale. From Europe, he produced "John Henry" by Roark Bradford, author of "Green Pastures", "White Men" and "Journeyman"; he also owns and has good faith in. The Nation by Edwin Greenwood for the present he is giving attention to "The Good Neighbor", Jack Levin's new script. My heart hoots it and is giving it a layout next week in the Stony Creek Theatre under Sinclair Lewis' direction.

Pleased with Mr. Lewis' direction of "John Henry", Byrd expressed his hope that the play will be given to the public. He has but one issue: apparently he has but one issue: ambition and ambition to edit a small town weekly newspaper. That is the only frail spot I discovered in his active brain of his.

While at college he was sent out to cover an execution. Only a kid, he experienced difficulty convincing his guards his attendance was justified. He paid strict attention to the gruesome details limiting his story to four columns. When the copy was on the editor's desk he entered the circulation department to order about 50 copies to distribute among his friends. He had the press the last page carried his story edited to read, "Fortune Ferguson, negro, was executed here yesterday. Byrd learned to benefit by that lesson."

After the second cup of tea he told about "Small Town South," Houghton's new play. He had the manuscript by the first part of October and the book is still far from finished. No editor is going to cut the head body from this simple, non-biographical story of two mythical small towns. The author has learned a lot since he described his first execution. If the story as he checked it, is half as amusing and tempting as the inviting chapter titles Mrs. Byrd's guards will be established in another field of endeavor. He gave me an outline of "Small Town South" but I am saving that to write about nearer its publication date.

My host did not smoke but he rose to show me his liquor cabinet. Showed it for the hand carving on the door. It was empty. As for swearing he said neither "gosh" nor "darn." Folks swear I expect because they lack vocabularies to forcibly express their views.

Crackers and cheese, nut bread and tea will never taste quite as good again—ever.

completely prepared. Germany will not fight us unless she is ready. He urged all possible aid to Britain and said it was a fight to a finish with Germany defeated.

War will not be declared on Germany some morning we will wake up and discover we are in it. He is before the speaker of the accuracy with which the Hitler machine operates. "Now," he said, "would be the time to tackle Germany, when she is occupied at the Russian front." He does not expect Hitler to make a "one big bluff" which would mean his defeat. He is too well organized.

He approves the current price-control bill aimed to regulate inflation credit to provide for 18-month limit on installment contracts. This he believes is a wise precaution against inflation, a depression which will not equal that through which the country has been struggling.

Aggravated by Germany's seizure of Czechoslovakia, France found herself at a serious disadvantage. In 1938 by reason of political disunity and industrial strikes Premier Edouard Daladier could risk no alternative but to go along with Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain in the Munich Pact of appeasement.

As foreign correspondent, Mr. Jones sat in at the Munich Pact. Events since proved the fallacy of that settlement.

He was in Warsaw when Germany invaded Poland in September. Americans he said would be wise to accept a cut of gasoline sales to 10 percent. We should benefit by the people's experiences. There are warnings but they passed unheeded which meant ration card distribution. Such rationing isn't a hardship, however, when administered he said.

"The United States is today the best provided for country in the world. She has a thing to squawk about."

NUTRITION NEWS
by Beatrice Hall
NUTRITION DIRECTOR
CONNECTICUT DAIRY AND FOOD COUNCIL - HARTFORD

NUTRITION AND NATIONAL DEFENSE

"Enriched" Bread
Are you supporting the National Nutrition Program by requesting "enriched" bread and flour each time you buy products at your bakery and grocery store. This is one service which every American homemaker can perform for national defense, for in so doing she creates a demand for a product which has nutritive qualities which will improve the average American diet. The National Committee on Food and Nutrition recommends that at least half of the bread or cereal we eat every day should be either whole wheat or "enriched".

"Enriched" bread or flour is a white flour product to which certain B Vitamins and Iron have been added. The term "enriched" is not a commercial name which may be used indiscriminately. Any product bearing this name is meeting the standards set up by the National Committee on Food and Nutrition of the National Research Council which is an advisory body on nutrition to the national defense program. All "enriched" products must be labelled in accordance with the standards of the Federal Food and Drug Administration. Any concern guilty of misuse of the word "enriched" is subject to drastic action by the Federal Trade Commission.

Thus the consumer in asking for "enriched" bread is not supporting a commercial campaign, but is supporting a nutrition measure which is part of our national nutrition program is a vital factor in national defense.

In order to fully appreciate the "enriched" program, an explanation as to why this measure was adopted is essential. During the past generation, the American people have eaten less bread made from the whole grain and have substituted in its place bread made from white flour. While this is a perfectly whole some product, white flour according to the Council on Foods of the American Medical Association contains only 10 per cent or less of vitamin B of the entire whole wheat. Likewise white flour is lower in nicotinic acid and in iron than the entire whole wheat. Because these substances are not too abundant in other low cost foods, the restoration of these elements to white flour improves the nutritive qualities of this product. However, those of us who eat the whole bread and prefer it should continue to use it, as it is a desirable product. Those who prefer white bread, however, should eat "enriched" bread in the amounts recommended by the National Committee on Food and Nutrition.

John Goss Made Manufacturers New President

John H. Goss, of Pine Orchard President and General Manager of Scovill Manufacturing Company of Waterbury, Connecticut, and Vice-President of the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut, Incorporated, has just assumed, upon request of the Board of Directors, the duties of the presidency for the unexpired annual term of office of the late E. Kent Hubbard, who died August 7, after serving continuously as President of the Association since his election in 1917.

Upon invitation Mr. Goss attended the annual meeting of the Nominating Committee and declined to serve again as vice-president after being reelected to that post each year since 1914. He expressed the opinion that young men should now be called upon to serve in Association executive capacities. However, the committee prevailed upon him to accept the nomination for a four year term as director-at-large in order that the association might have the benefit of his long large in order that the Association experience in Association affairs.

Prominently identified with the Association's activities practically since the date of its incorporation in 1910, Mr. Goss has acquired through his work on various committees and as the Association's Vice-president for many years, a broad knowledge of the service needs of Connecticut's diversified industries. At the same time he has also acquired a wealth of knowledge of the organizational requirements necessary to service properly Connecticut's industries, both large and small.

Starting his life-long career, after his graduation from Yale in 1894, with the Scovill Manufacturing Company as a toolmaker's apprentice in September 1894, Mr. Goss steadily advanced in position until he became Superintendent and later General Manager of the plant. He succeeded his brother, E. O. Goss, as President in 1938.

In recognition of his abilities in the field of employee relations he was named by Governor Cross to the important post representing industry on the State Mediation and Arbitration Board, which has settled hundreds of labor disputes without "lost time" from strikes. During the World War Mr. Goss was made a member of the State Council of Defense and has recently been named by Governor Hurley to the new State Defense Council which he appointed in May as a result of legislation passed by the 1941 General Assembly.

Hanchak, son of Mrs. Michael Hanchak of 84 Harding Avenue, Branford.

The ceremony will take place Saturday, September 6th at 4 p. m. in the Old Stone Church.

FOOT NOTES

By Dr. James Cavallaro
Surgeon Chiroprapist

THE HUMAN FOOT

The human foot is composed of 26 small bones and with two accessory bones total 28. Normally these bones form several arches, held in shape by tendons and muscles. These foot tendons are connected with others which extend up through the legs. If the foot muscles grow weak and flabby and allow the arches to fall, there is pressure on sensitive nerves. The ankles tend to turn and cause the muscles of the legs and sides to do the work for which they were not intended.

There are dozens of different causes for weak and strained arches. Walking heavily on hard floors and sidewalks or standing on the feet for long hours without being able to walk and exercise the arches tends to strain them. An overweight condition or even under-nourishment can cause the trouble. Badly fitted shoes or short stockings are big factors in arch troubles.

But whatever the cause, the result is always discomfort somewhere in the body, possibly a pain-ploding walk, sometimes actual illness, for arch trouble causes a disruption throughout the entire system. Ninety percent of the people of this country suffer from some sort of foot trouble and not more than one person in ten knows just what the trouble is.

Fortunately very few foot troubles are extremely serious, but when they are they should be treated by your family chiroprapist without delay.

Mrs. Thomas Conroy (Marion McCarthy) of Hartford is visiting her father Mr. T. F. McCarthy.

Miss Mary Brancati was registered at the Ambassador Hotel, Atlantic City for the week end.
