Housing Survey Will Determine Unit Vacancies

September Survey Showed Gross Vacancy Rate Was 1.6 Percent — Field Work Should Be Completed in Fortnight.

New Haven, East Haven, West Haven and Hamden, in which a Survey of Dwelling Unit Vacancies was last made in September 1941, comprise the key areas in which the WPA Division of Research and Statistics, in cooperation with local WPA officers, will continue periodic surveys, at the request of the National Housing Agency.

The survey will determine the proportion of unoccupied dwelling units in the area; the percentage available for rent; their condition, facilities, number of rooms, and monthly rentals; and other information needed by the National Housing Administrator, such as the number of single rooms for rent in occupied dwellings.

This information will be gathered by experienced interviewers, who will make personal calls at all the dwelling units visited in the previous survey. These units were selected in the original survey by a carefully chosen sample of every section in the area, sample survey will be as accurate as complete coverage of the area.

The previous survey made in September 1941 showed that the gross vacancy rate was 1.6 percent and that the habitable rental vacancy was 0.6 percent. It further showed that there were available about 1200 vacant rooms for rent throughout the area.

The field work is expected to be completed within two weeks and the results sent to the WPA Division of Research and Statistics in Washington, where it will be analyzed and final reports written. The National Housing Agency receives the reports which are essential to that office in affording up-to-date and comparable vacancy information for all of the key areas throughout the country.

These reports will be mailed to local officials and interested civic groups on written request to the WPA Division of Research and Statistics.

A PASTOR DIES

HE was all gold—Ernest Carpenter, his gift or giftless, made glorious his admiration of everything he believed right. Neighbors, politicians and fellow legislators will remember him as a man to be depended upon. He upheld an opponent's privilege to disagree with the loss of him because of disagreement. They followed, not because he lost but because the path he took crossed fewer brambles. Born of simple country-folk he never acquired a flower-in-the-bush polish. For that reason, it is no other boys at City Mission found him a great guy.

As weeks pass his chapel clock as he delighted in calling his congregation, will recall more and more the little unimportant calls he made that made some one's day brighter. Never one to hurry, Mr. Carpenter knew and helped his flock more than they themselves realized. During his brief calls he administered and gave comfort pills of religion and they were taken, and healed, and the patient knew it not.

Foreign born think of the God-given of Liberty and Ernest Carpenter simultaneously. Many a family united by his efforts to bring parents and children together under the same flag—the flag of the stars and stripes. Incalculable numbers held citizenship papers because of his tireless efforts for Americanization.

Two homespun qualities made his accomplishments possible. His faith in God and his goodness never wavered. Thoroughly sincere was that faith he brought from the Vermont home of his boyhood.

Another quality which made all things possible was his abundant wealth of stories for all occasions. If argument or persuasion failed he plucked an anecdote and the immediate problem became less difficult to solve.

WHERE MEDALS ARE DESERVED

THE following editorial appeared in the Kansas City Journal, and was signed by Editor Harry Newman. It is a finely-phrased tribute to an industry which is literally performing wonders in behalf of the American war effort.

"We know where we would hang a medal, if we were hanging medals.

CRASHING THROUGH

blems of traffic, both freight and passenger, and under emergency pressure, would collapse. "What a mistaken idea that was!"

"Unsung, unacknowledged, without fanfare or boasting, they are doing the greatest transportation job ever known in the history of the world."

"They are moving troops and materials over mountains, across the plains and deserts, and trying to cross lines together with an efficiency that is amazing."

"At the same time, passenger traffic is moving with greater comfort and speed than ever before, and nonwar freight is being handled as though that's all there was."

"If there ever was an institution completely and thoroughly in step with the war effort and needs of the United States, "It is the railroads."

LOOKING AHEAD

WE think primarily of oil as something which lubricates machinery and fuels engines. We think primarily of coal as a source of energy for industry and as a heating agent.

But these two natural resources are capable of other jobs as well—jobs which are mightily important to this nation in wartime and in peacetime alike.

The oil industry will supply the basic ingredient for the manufacture of artificial rubber. Now that we have lost our supply of natural rubber, the synthetic product must be developed with maximum speed.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

ABOR legislation is still very much in the limelight here. The recent decision of the War Labor Board directing that workers who dropped out of CIO union since last November 27 must rejoin the union has caused considerable comment, a great deal of it unfavorable.

In requiring that they rejoin, the ruling went beyond the usual maintenance of union membership principle. Many observers are convinced that the Board plans to make itself the "Supreme Court of Labor Relations" and, through its decisions, hopes to establish a national labor policy of its own.

Many of those who have been following the labor situation are wondering now whether this particular decision will force Congressional action on labor legislation in the immediate future. Behind-the-scenes comment this week indicates that it will.

In a minority opinion dissenting from the Board for its decision that individual's right to work for an employer upon his continued membership should be made a condition of employment.

"To arbitrarily impose these obligations without the consent of those affected, in our opinion, will tend to destroy the maximum to maximum production."

"In these war days management is to share the responsibility of producing the maximum to the extent that management is circumscribed by orders of an administration or even partial control of terms of employment and the hiring of workers, production will be hampered."

WASHINGTON officials predict that within a short time priorities will have to be established for rail traffic—freight and passenger alike. It merely means legislation that will eliminate unfair profits.

As weeks pass his chapel clock as he delighted in calling his congregation, will recall more and more the little unimportant calls he made that made some one's day brighter.

U. S. Smashes Hard At Hitler's Patent Barriers

By Richard L. Strout
Staff Correspondent
The Christian Science Monitor

The Antitrust Division of the Justice Department is continuing to smash through patent barriers erected about vital American production by pre-war cartel agreements signed with Hitler-dominated companies.

Incredible though it seems, through these patent pools Germany still restricts full American war production in crucial war products, Justice Department officials charge.

A consent decree against the Aluminum Company of America, Ltd., which the company and the Aluminum Company of America (ALCOA) held magnesium patents. Under an agreement worked out between them, Mr. Arnold charges, magnesium production in the United States was limited to 4000 tons a year. Shipments to England were limited to 300 tons.

Only a fortnight ago, synthetic rubber production was opened up on a big new front by a consent decree in the District Court of New York under which the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and affiliated companies paid fines aggregating $50,000 and three open, royalty-free for the duration of the war, several thousand patents. This cartel patent pool was also arranged with the I. G. Farbenindustrie.

700,000 Tons Next Year

Alfred by the consent decree, Jesse H. Jones estimated this week that the United States would be producing synthetic rubber at the rate of 700,000 tons annually by the end of 1942.

If a new consent decree frees the magnesium patents, it will aid in production of a metal which is one-third lighter than aluminum and vitally needed for war production. The terms of the decree will presumably carry the same clause as that in the synthetic rubber case which required Standard of New Jersey to issue manufacturing licenses for any purpose, royalty-free, for the duration of the war emergency, and at "reasonable royalties" thereafter.

Meanwhile, the whole international cartel system, by which Hitler-dominated German trusts were able to take a hand in production of basic products in America, and indirectly to restrict them, is being re-examined, by Congress, where members express indignation and promise to end the system.

Thurman Arnold, head of the Antitrust Division, testifying before the Truman Committee, emphasized that dozens of these cartels and international agreements designed to control markets, were arranged with Germany.

Magnesium, aluminum, tungsten, carbide, drugs, dyestuffs, "and a variety of other critical materials vital to the war" were cited by Mr. Arnold as subject to German cartels, besides synthetic rubber patents.

Basis of Cartel System

Basis of the cartel system, engineered in many instances by Germany with an apparent idea of crippling military adversaries, follows:

1. Germany concentrated the brilliant technique of its industry in production of new patents, chemicals and processes.

2. It signed agreements amounting to international treaties with private corporations in foreign countries, like the United States, providing for patent pools.

3. This gave Germany a protected market at home and the American company a protected market in America.

4. Outside world markets were carefully allocated, with restrictions on output and exports into various areas. In many instances American firms could not export vital war products to France or Britain, Germany's potential adversaries.

5. Under Germany's Nazi-dominated economy, production was pushed to the limits on these cartel-protected war products.

6. But under a "scarcity economy" in the United States, private firms given dominance by German patents and a protected market by the cartel, were tempted to limit their output, restrict production, and boost their prices.

Bound to Restrict Output

"It is impossible to accomplish the purpose of a cartel, namely, to maintain high prices, to keep a tight control over the market, to eliminate independent competition without restricting production," Mr. Arnold told the Committee.

Mr. Arnold has been denouncing cartels for years. Now the United States, with the synthetic rubber disclosures, the Standard Oil Con-

A three cent supper will be given by the April Committee of the Ladies Sewing Society of the Congregational Church in the Chapel on Wednesday. Serving will begin at six o'clock. Miss Beatrice Hyland, is the committee in charge.

While ALCOA takes exception to parts of the Arnold charges and the matter is still before the courts the magnesium plant, up to 1940, never exceeded 2500 tons, while the Germans in 1938 were producing 14,000 tons. In 1940, under the war pressure, the United States produced only 6000 tons, whereas German production jumped to 50,000 tons.

When America entered the war, Hitler's purpose had been accomplished: America had only limited magnesium production facilities. In production of a metal which is one-third lighter than aluminum and vitally needed for war production. The terms of the decree will presumably carry the same clause as that in the synthetic rubber case which required Standard of New Jersey to issue manufacturing licenses for any purpose, royalty-free, for the duration of the war emergency, and at "reasonable royalties" thereafter.

A state-wide poll of the women of the State will be made the week of May 4th in respect to labor in man Connecticut farms and to work on Connecticut farms. Women will be asked to signify their willingness to work and to tell the days they are available. Thousands of cards like the above will be combed by the U. S. Employment Service after they are returned and women matched with jobs which their training and abilities fit them to fill.

Registration Cards To Be Distributed

More than 200,000 registration cards for women of the state will be distributed in the next few days, it has been announced by Leonard J. Maloney, director of the U. S. Bureau for first state-wide mobilization of women power the week of May 4th.

In Branford the work will be done under the direction of Mrs. Ernest Craig and Mrs. Donald Sawtelle, co-chairmen of the Women's Emergency Mobilization Committee in Hartford, and of the District Chairmen of the Committee were present.

Two of the principal problems facing the committee are the establishment of child-caring centers in strategically useful areas, and the further development of machine training programs for women with native mechanical skill but no previous training.

Mrs. Ralph C. Lasbury, Jr., chairman of the Women's Division of the State Defense Council, stated that details of the child-caring program would be announced in a short time. "The committee is fully cognizant of the responsibility involved in the use of working mothers. The welfare of the children of working mothers is a matter of community concern in terms of human values and democratic principles, as well as in terms of public economy. We are confident that funds will be available for the establishment of properly-operated child-caring centers wherever the need arises and definite plans are now being made along these lines, so that no mother need worry about the apparent conflict between the interests of the child and the needs of a war production program."

Members of the Committee on Child Care are: M. S. Light, State Department of Education, chairman; Dr. Martha L. Clifford, State Department of Health; Mrs. Mary Dewey, U. S. Employment Service; William H. Johnson, Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut; Mrs. Serrish Packard, State Department of Public Welfare; and Miss Eleanor Little, Connecticut Conference on Social Work.

Americans Want VICTORY ... NOT THE CLOSED SHOP

UNCLE SAM HAS given American industry a job — to provide enough guns, tanks, planes and ships fast enough to win this War of Survival.

To do its job for national security — as well as it should — industry must be able to hire, promote, keep — the best American workers it can find.

Industry has a duty to tell the public and Congress that it can't be blamed for delays due to the imposition of the closed shop, or by long drawn-out delays while the government tries to build a national labor relations policy company by company, day by day, and month by month, instead of having an immediate and clear-cut Congressional labor policy that will speed production.

President Roosevelt, early in the war effort, said:

"We shall not demand special gains, or special privileges, or special advantages for any group or occupation."

Management agrees. It does not seek to nullify any existing organizational gains for labor. Nor should labor heads use this crisis for selfish advantage — to gain the closed shop or some other end they could not reach in a country at peace.

President Roosevelt, early in the war effort, said:

"We shall not demand special gains, or special privileges, or special advantages for any group or occupation."

Management agrees. It does not seek to nullify any existing organizational gains for labor. Nor should labor heads use this crisis for selfish advantage — to gain the closed shop or some other end they could not reach in a country at peace.

WHY "UNION SECURITY"

AN AMERICAN WORKER has a right to join a union if he wants to — and an equal right either not to join or to quit if he decides the union isn't worthwhile.

Employers have no right to destroy American freedom by compelling workers to join or stay in a union if they choose not to do so.

The War Labor Board says its policy follows democratic principles. Is it democratic to compel a worker to stay in a union or lose his job?

The freedom to work is so inherent a right in our democratic state that it has never, up to now, been seriously challenged.

Unions, like other organizations in a democratic nation, should exist on their merits — not by making membership and financial support compulsory.

The Board thinks that union security will not delay production. That's highly debatable. Experienced industrial managers think it will. In any event, with the country at war there is no time to argue or to experiment.

THE CLOSED SHOP vs. PRODUCTION

THE PRINCIPLE of the closed shop is the same, whether it is called "union security," "maintenance of membership" or some other sweet-sounding name.

When industry or a company has a closed shop forced on it, it can't hire and keep the best workers it can find.

When an industry or a company has a so-called "union maintenance" or "union security" clause forced on it — it can't keep its best workers if they voluntarily decide they don't want to stay in the union.

American industry wants to do its war job — Is doing it — doing it without "ifs," "ands" or "buts." It wants to do it better!

Who else in the United States, except some union spokesmen, is demanding 100% union security before he will help win the war? Industrial management takes off its hat to the loyal rank and file of millions of workers for the superb job done to date in production for victory. These devoted men and women are lashed by the demands of their leaders and the threat of a labor uprising in war time.

WHAT'S THE ALTERNATIVE?

AMERICANS WANT VICTORY. WILL THE CLOSED SHOP BRING VICTORY? If it will, let's have it. If it won't, then in Victory's name, let's forget it for the duration... let's stop wasting precious hours and days in quibbling. Let Congress freeze the status quo until we've won the war!

Which is more important to a nation at war — national security or union security?

The Latest In Annuals

Yvonne Gillespie of Detroit with a silver medal winner in the All-America Selections for 1942.

GIANT Pink Queen Clematis, offspring of the well known spiderflower, is the latest in annuals for backgrounds and borders. The larger rounded flower heads which are borne at the end of each branch will remind the gardener of rhododendrons. The color is a delicate salmon pink that becomes lighter—almost white—at the base of the flower head. Originated by Ferry-Morse Seed Co., the new clematis is equally desirable for hedge effects or for interplanting among shrubs. It blooms continuously from mid-summer until frost. Contrary to the usual habit of flowers becoming raggy and disheveled in appearance when seeds form, the spider seed pods of this newcomer actually add to its exotic beauty. Having received a silver medal in the All-America Selections for 1942, the new clematis also is remarkably free from usual plant diseases and insects. It was tested under gardening conditions in 16 climatic sections of the United States and Canada.

Rev. Carpenter

He had received his early education at Troy Conference, a prep school in Vermont. He was graduated from Wesleyan University in 1894. After graduation he made this state his field of activity. He was once pastor of Summerfield Church, Dixwell and Shelton Avenues, and afterward pastor of churches in Bridgeport, New Canaan and other places in this state, before he went to the pastorate of the Union Chapel at Short Beach.

He gave up his pastorate in Canaan around 1919 to take up Americanization work. He organized classes in Bridgeport under the support of industrial concerns in that city and later in New Haven. The project in New Haven had financial aid from the City of New Haven.

Mr. Carpenter trained and prepared hundreds of persons for citizenship. He was executive secretary of the New Haven Americanization committee for several years.

Mr. Carpenter was the leader of a men's bible class at City Mission to which he devoted a great deal of his interest.

Several members of his bible class at City Mission went to the hospital Sunday and donated blood to their teacher in the hope his life would be saved.

Since he made his residence in East Haven, Mr. Carpenter became prominent in Republican affairs. He was one of the Republican representatives from the town also served in the lower House of the General Assembly, first in 1939 and again in 1941.

He was chaplain of the State Senate in the session of 1935.

For the past few years he has written a weekly letter to the Branford Review entitled "All in a Day's Work."

Motor Vehicles Office To Open All Day Saturday

All offices of the Motor Vehicles Department will remain open all day Saturday for the convenience of persons who have not yet renewed their driver's licenses, Commissioner John T. McCarthy said today.

All offices are open on week-days from 8.30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Current licenses expire at midnight on April 30th.

License renewals may be secured at any branch office or at the main office at Hartford, regardless of the address of the applicant. If applying by mail, however, time will be saved by sending one's application to the Hartford office.

IN NEW YORK Walter Burns, Robert Comford, Warren Cawley and Carl Swift were in New York on Sunday.

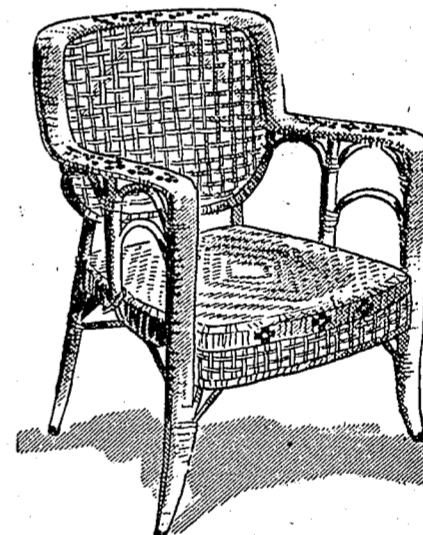

Miss Marlon Thatcher is confined to her home by illness.
