EYESIGHT IS PRICELESS GOOD LIGHTING IS CHEAP

CHYLDREN, youths, grown-ups and old folks - all need the protection of good lighting to safeguard eyesight. Good lighting is a potent defense against the dangers of eyestrain.

ONE out of five children of grade school age and three out of five grownups already suffer from the handicap of defective eyesight. Our armed forces and our production armies are denied the services of thousands of otherwise eligible men and women because of defective vision.

Good Lighting Saves Health and Energy

GOOD lighting reduces the physical work of seeing; conserves precious energy for the whole family. Perhaps you never knew that reading, sewing or studying under poor light can be as tiring, physically, as digging a ditch.

IN THE peaceful days of early December, 1941, there appeared in this column a story about the blood banks of the American Red Cross. Then came the sudden, treacher, ous attack on Pearl Harbor. Blood plasma promptly saved the lives of many valiant Americans.

Plasma, that part of the blood remaining after removal of the red cells and white cells, has since helped to restore health to soldiers and sailors wounded in numerous battles. It will save many more lives in our armed forces.

More than 300,000 persons have donated blood for the production of this preclous plasma. Among this legion of patriotte donors not fatalities and no serious accidents have occurred. Only about 8 per cent of those offering blood have been found to be unsuited as donors.
