A LITTLE ABOUT THIS AND THAT
BY PAUL H. STEVENS

HAIL TO THE NEW BRANCH BANK

We take special pride in welcoming the new East Haven Branch of the First National Bank of New Haven which will open its doors to the public next Monday.

The establishment of such a financial institution on Main Street is truly a step forward in this growing community.

From the time of the birth of the East Haven News nearly four years ago, this Community Weekly has labored to energize and foster a Community Spirit that would make such projects as a new Post Office and Banking Institution realities for this Town. We pointed to such improvements as No. 1 needs for East Haven. Others yet to be achieved include the new pavement on Main Street, which is not now far off, and a sewage system, which will enable further growth of this community.

We believe that East Haven people will wholeheartedly support the new Branch Bank. We welcome the new manager, Alfred Bowden, a native East Havener, known to us all, and who has had 28 years of banking experience with the First National. We welcome the other members of the staff and hope and believe they will be kept busy.

A financial institution willing to become a part of our fast-growing community is worthy of the very best support which our townspeople can extend to it. The First National, with its two branches, one in West Haven, and the other here, has 202 employees. It first opened its doors July 1, eighty-five years ago and has been growing ever since. It is well known for its efficient service. Its size, as a banking institution in a city of many banks is well illustrated by the fact that on a sample day last week 3,121 separate deposits passed over its counters and on the same day 39,040 separate checks were cleared.

East Haven business and private accounts have long been scattered among many banks of the Greater New Haven area. Such diversion of funds cannot be good for any community seeking to progress. The local bank should and we know that it will, become the hub of our community enterprise.

And so we say—Hail to the East Haven Branch Bank.

SCHOOL PLANNING COMMITTEE

The School Planning Committee of thirty-two citizens, named by the Board of Education some months ago to study and recommend concerning school needs in East Haven, is well along in its task, we are informed, under the able chairmanship of Judge Arthur Connor.

We have been promised a series of articles dealing with the subjects which the committee has been at work upon and we hope that these articles will be read with interest by the citizens of East Haven. There is no more vital subject than the education of our school children, and the findings of this committee of our fellow townspeople will have much to do, we doubt not, in the shaping of our school policies for the future.

The committee through its subcommittees has been quietly at work in its survey of the local school system and its needs. They have been doing a lot of spadework in fields having to do with the condition of our schools, the opportunities for our children, and the needs. These studies have taken into account the shifts in population, the growth of the town, the increase in its juvenile population and other matters cogent to the whole educational problem locally.

Out of their study will come plans for new school building projects. They are going about the study in a scientific manner, and approaching it from a non-partisan standpoint. The members of the committee were chosen because of their personal abilities in the various lines of their occupational and professional interests. It is their desire to inform the public of their studies and findings which will eventually be dealt with at a Town Meeting when all their work has been completed. We hope for a large number of readers of these special articles from this busy committee.

SAFETY ALONG THE SHORE

We have long felt that East Haven, having as it does, a sizeable beach frontage on Long Island Sound, ought to, as a town, possess for park and public purposes a waterfront area. Our idea, however, does not seem to be held by very many others or else East Haven would long since have taken steps in this direction.

But whether we, as a town, own a part of the waterfront or not, it would seem that, as a community, we do have a share in the responsibility for the safety of those who use the bathing facilities whether they be public or private. We believe that accidents, such as the drowning of a 21 year old girl in the water off Mansfield's Grove this week, would not occur if there were life guards on hand along our waterfront to warn bathers against going into areas which because of holes, currents, undertows or other conditions, are unsafe.

Our fire and police departments perform valuable service in many drowning and near drowning cases. The fire department with the town inhalator is always quick to arrive on the scene. Often its services are effective, but sometimes as in the most recent accident, even hours of work with the inhalator are in vain.

Life guards in summer time would seem to be the answer. Unquestionably they would do much to prevent accidents of this kind. This would seem to be a matter well within the province of the Board of Public Safety, with through town employed life-guards or through local legislation that would compel hiring of life-guards by private owners who permit the use either for free or for cost, of their beaches by the public.

NEW BRANCH OF N. H. FIRST NATIONAL BANK OPENS DOORS MONDAY

Event Marks Step Forward In East Haven's March Of Progress—Complete Banking Service Now Available For East Haven And Vicinity Residents.

Monday, July 19, will be a Red Letter day in East Haven annals. The date will mark the opening for business of the new East Haven Branch of the First National Bank of New Haven.

The opening of the handsome new banking quarters at the corner of Main Street and Chidsey Avenue in the new block of business establishments built by Martin Olson, culminates a movement begun two years ago by the East Haven Business Association and other interested citizens to bring East Haven into line with other progressive communities.

Warren M. Crawford, vice president and cashier of the First National Bank, in a talk before the Rotary Club last week gave a preview of the services that will be obtainable at the new Branch Bank. It will be surprisingly complete with every kind of banking service offered with the exception of safe deposit boxes. These too, will be provided later, Mr. Crawford said, if the demand is great enough. The bank building is complete in every way. There are offices in the front of the spacious quarters for the branch officials. Counters run down either side of the center foyer and there is a large safe at the rear. The bank furniture and equipment is of the latest and most modern type.

East Haven has been without a local banking institution since 1932, when the previous East Haven Bank which occupied the quarters at Main and High Streets where the Holcombe Drug Company is now situated, was closed and its business transferred to the New Haven First National. That bank had been organized and chartered in 1929 and had opened its doors at a most inopportune time, just after the 1929 financial crash which brought on the depression of the 1930's.

The movement for a new bank here was started in the recent post-war period which has brought East Haven into the forefront of progressive towns. At first efforts were made to obtain a locally owned bank but interest lagged. Then came the project to have a branch bank established and the First National which has long maintained a branch bank in West Haven announced the gratifying news that it would provide such an institution here. Former President James J. Scanlon of the Business Association and other leading citizens spear-headed the movement which has now made the branch bank possible.

There will be checking, thirty-check, savings, change, travellers check, night repository, certification, foreign exchange and loan facilities at the Branch Bank, in fact all the many financial services so necessary in any busy community.

Statement On Bank Opening

The East Haven Branch of the First National Bank and Trust Company is to be opened on Monday, July 19th. The new branch is located in a modern building at the corner of Main Street and Chidsey Avenue. An extensive parking area adjacent to the site will be available for use by First National customers. This project was undertaken by the bank at the urgent request of the East Haven Business Association, the members of which have been a great help in the preparations. The area contains approximately twelve thousand people and, in addition, the branch will supply convenient banking services all along the East Shore. The most modern banking facilities will be offered including a night depository, available at all hours. Alfred B. Bowden, a veteran of nearly 28 years with the First National, will be the manager of the East Haven Branch. A resident of East Haven, Mr. Bowden started with the bank as a messenger shortly after his graduation from High School.

On Friday evening, July 15th, from seven-thirty to nine o'clock, there will be Open House at the East Haven Branch for inspection of the new quarters. Guests will be welcomed by the manager and his staff and by representatives from the main office. A large attendance is expected.

Record Sales Anticipated This Week-End

With ten handsome table radios to be given away without cost, simply by filling out forms to be had in the stores of cooperating merchants, and with a promotion which will carry word of the big bagan festival to all of the Greater New Haven Area, "East Haven Days" this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, promise to be Red Letter Days in East Haven's busy shopping center.

Full page advertisements are being carried this week in the East Haven News, the New Haven Register and the New Haven Journal-Courier in which 24 of the local business establishments are offering their "three star" bargain attractions. In addition many other stores and service people are co-operating and will have their places decorated with banners and pennants. A movie trailer and a sound truck are also advertising the big event.

The "East Haven Days" are the largest sales promotion yet undertaken by the East Haven Business Association and final arrangements were made at the July meeting of the association Monday night in the Town Hall. Vincent Gagliardi, of Towne Clothes, is chairman of the committee which has planned for this big event which is expected to spread East Haven's advantages as a shopping center far and wide.

SCHOOL PLANNING COMMITTEE

Group Named By Board Of Education Issues First Of Articles Dealing With Work Being Undertaken

In February of this year there was created a School Planning Committee for the Town of East Haven. This Committee was appointed by the Board of Education to assist them in the many problems and numerous details that have resulted in the post war years. It will act as an advisory committee to the Board of Education and will prepare a complete survey of the School of the Town and will submit it to the Board when completed. This Committee is composed of many citizens of the Town who are skilled in various lines pertaining to education, administration, construction and finance.

The organization meeting of the Committee was held in March and at that meeting a chairman and a clerk were elected. Various working committees have been appointed to work on problems concerning School Buildings and Grounds, Planning of new Schools, administration, Teaching Personnel, Health, Recreation and Athletics, Finance and Legislation.

The Committee has been working quietly on this work and the various committees have been compiling lengthy and comprehensive reports. The Attendance at all of their meetings has been excellent and the various members of the Committee have been enthusiastic about their work.

The Board of Education is following out a plan adopted in other towns by creating this School Planning Committee. Such School Committees have been formed in Wallingford and Middlebury and a similar committee has been appointed in Guilford. In many of the large cities they have spent large sums of money for school surveys, but in some of the smaller towns they are now creating School Planning Committees to prepare such a survey and advise the Board of Education on any problem that the Board requests help and advice. It is something new in education and the results will be watched with great interest.

Further articles will appear from time to time as their work progresses and the citizens of the Town will be given further information of the work of this new committee.

Judge Arthur Connor is general chairman of the Committee and the working committees are composed as follows:
School Buildings and Grounds: Raymond S. Powelson, Chairman;

A member of our town Board of Finance did a little private financing the other day, we are told. A junior citizen riding along Main Street on his bike dropped a rather expensive bottle of medicine he was taking home. Instead of crying over spilt milk the youngster was crying over spilt medicine when along came the finance board member and solved the kid's difficulty out of his own pocketbook. Rather nice of him, don't you think?

We extend sympathy to Miss Bernice Hall of the High school faculty on the death of her father, L. Ernest Hall, this week at the Hall home in Tolland. Mr. Hall was 72 years old and his parents, both in their nineties survive him.

As Mr. Brinley Sees It

"My peace I give unto thee" and then He tells them, "This peace, is the peace of ages past and gone, and an eternity of peace to come, not the transitory peace of the human span, but the ages' peace of God," unlimited, not governed by time or space. Let not your heart be troubled, said He, only believe in me and rest in complete confidence and trust, that I will do for you what I am now promising. My peace, is not the peace of a disturbed worried world, deeper than the Sun, higher than the heavens, with no east nor West, boundless, blim for the troubled soul. Cultures for the feeble mind, mind poles for strained nerves, the tense body, the forbidding mind, my peace, I leave with you, I go now to prepare a place for you. When I hear the glorious words of the Benediction at the close of the Sunday Morning service, I often wonder how many carry away their words in their hearts, to feed upon, to receive spiritual and mental help from them for the trying days to come? I hear so many things in this feverish, hectic life, and some times, I think we fail to hold to the gold, and grasp after the cheap tinsel, we step into mines and rush around the country, but what do we see, and what does the mind retain of what it sees in the mad rush hither and yon? Always hope, never still, restless, never satisfied, we annoy our selves, we have not to have all the papers, and pour over their contents, and then cannot recall what we have read. We would miss the news on the radio, and yet, we cannot recall a word of what is said a few minutes ago.

East Haveners Enroll At State Teachers

Several East Haveners are among the 410 students enrolled for the fifth summer session at the New Haven State Teachers College. An elaborate program of trips and other recreational activities has been planned, including a tour of the Yale University, visits to the Peabody Museum, Yale Art Gallery and Payne Whitney Gymnasium; college parties and dances; and attendance at the Popa Concerts and college summer theatres.

E. H. Teachers Take Courses This Summer

Many members of the East Haven schools faculty are taking special courses toward degrees and special educational merits this summer. Those at Teachers College in New Haven include Kay Bank, Marguerite Bower, Florence Parker, and Rose DeFrancesco. At Yale are Laura Coulter, Mary Reed, Ebel Kennedy, and Zila Matthews. Wilhelmina Strandberg and Margaret Lowe are attending New York University and Nancy Fitzgerald is at the University of Connecticut. Alleen Boutlier is enrolled at the University of Maine and Allen Bonwell is at the Oswego State Teachers' College. Among those who completed graduate work or obtained their degrees during the past school year are Bernice Hall, Joan Hojsey, Hildur Swenson, Gertrude Eldridge, Roy Smith, and Harold Prowley.

NEW CLASS TO BE FORMED AT ST. ANDREW'S

The morning service of worship at St. Andrew's Methodist church, Grand's Corner, will be held at the usual time Sunday at 11 A. M. with the Rev. William Kirkland, preaching. Last Sunday Mr. Kirkland had for his sermon topic, "The Craving to be Known". The postponed meeting of the Official Board was held Monday night in the parsonage. This was the last meeting until September. Plans are now being made to receive a new class of adults into church membership in the early fall. The Youth Fellowship met Sunday night at the home of Miss Dorothy Watson, 151 Huntington avenue, where the members enjoyed a backyard picnic honoring especially the choir members in the Youth Fellowship.

PLUMBING SHOP TO OPEN IN MAIN ST.

John and Andrew Knezo are planning to open a plumbing business under the name of Knezo Brothers in one of the new stores now being completed for Frank Messina next to the Central Cleaners in Main Street. They expect to open in the new establishment in September.

MERRY TIME BY QUARTER CLUB AT RESTLAND
It was a grand affair, that annual outing of the "Quarter Club" held Sunday at Restland Farms in Northford, and some two hundred of the boys, more or less, enjoyed the food, the fun and the frolic to the full on a midsummer day when weather could not have been fairer. The balmy breeze which swept down from North Guilford Mountain cooled the heated heads where the atmosphere was made more mellow by the singing, good fellowship and athletic prowess that prevailed.

PITCHING STRIKES

BY BILL AHERN

The creation of baseball schools for youngsters, tryout schools for youths and general increased interest for baseball in these parts bring to mind the lad who has enjoyed the widest success in these parts, in a coaching way. He was never associated with professional coaching but has witnessed his baseball charges, particularly pitchers, become sensational hurlers in schools, colleges and in at least two cases, professionally.

Baptised William James Clancy, young Bill began throwing the apple almost as soon as he could walk. His mound was the hard shale atop the hill of the Clancy homestead, his dugan was an irregular piece of board and his receiver, his brother Stu, Dugan McCarthy or any kid, of the old fourth ward area, who could be teased, cajoled or threatened to putting on the mitt. Oft times, in the barrenness of catching prospects, W. S. Clancy, Bill, of the bare-handed days, father and coach, threw aside his years, even as he doffed his coat, and gathered in the slants of his second son—then threw the ball back with all the exciting twists and lore of his years of experience.

Pictures of the young Bill's pitching motion flood memories pages. The long overhead wind-up; the whip-like flick of the wrist; the follow through across his left knee. Then other scenes: The zipping fast ball; the hop as the batter swung and the sharp explosion as the ball nestled into the catcher's glove. His slow pitch, the cross-fire, and the sharp break on his out drop, make terrific thoughts.

Bill, after his sand-lot days, became a good high school hurler. There he picked up additional inside stuff from Dan Daly. From high school he went with the Branford Laurels for the one or two years they fielded a club around the turn of the second decade into the third of the twentieth century. In 1923 he joined the Branford Townies.

Teaming up with George Fair and working over the Saturday, Sunday schedule, of those days, the pair took turns tossing to Mickey Cooke, Stu Clancy and Clarence Wannamaker. The latter was a member at one time of the New York Giants and was situated in New Haven as the Yale Hockey coach when he finally came to town to catch. Patient to the Nth degree, he worked night after night and game after game imparting all the tricks to the pair of pitching lights. The information fell not upon deaf ears.

In 1928, Bill hooked up with the old New Haven Profs. Three of that club were constant visitors to the table of Mrs. Clancy, who welcomed them as her own, they were Joe Cronin, now general manager of the Boston Red Sox, Tully Marshall, an outfielder, and Pat Loftus, now of Belcher Farms in Massachusetts, who has a couple of better than fair ball players in high school ranks, who are being wooed into the collegiate circle (whisper) by Holy Cross, among other colleges. They are not pitchers however.

Other members of that team were Jimmy Wilson, catcher, Tommy Padden, catcher; Don Haefner, second base; Jim Bowman, Jim Weaver, six foot six hurler, who once pitched for Pittsburg, Coke Woodman, Sam Hyman, who still tosses them in the amateur leagues in and about Hartford where he is a pharmacist; Nuts Nutler and for a while Frank McGowan. There were others and the whole shebang was handled by George Weiss, who is the top man with the New York Yankees, today.

Bill tossed a great game against Buffalo of the International League, in his inaugural year. So well, in fact, that Buffalo wanted to grab his contract. Mr. Weiss, astutely refused, believing that if Buffalo wanted him, he must be worth considerable. Later Mr. Weiss, farmed him to Lawrence of the New England League where he had a fine season. The year, in the spring of 1928, he went to Scottsdale, Pa., where in the four others, he was injured in an automobile accident.

Bill's calamity was not without his silver lining though for he took the place of an earlier Stone Business College training, to win a full post as an agent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. A ready smile and a genuine desire to assist everyone, made Bill Clancy's worth soon known to his employers and he took his first step up the ladder of the business world to the assistant manager's post in the Elm City.

In New Haven, a girl, Mary Carney, had been waiting out, the ball playing, the schooling and the business start and now took a major post in the Clancy world by marrying the Branford Bard (that's what the copy writers used to call him on the southern trips he made with the Profs) and becoming the mother of two great youngsters, Billy, 16, and Marle, 14. The former is now a regular first baseman with Notre Dame High in New Haven and a nifty first sacker, he is.

About the time that Joe Cronin went to the Red Sox as shortstop and team manager, his Branford buddy, went to Cambridge, Mass. as the manager of the Cambridge district.

There he entered and graduated from the Harvard Business School and gained correspondence diplomas from the business school of Boston University. In Cambridge, he became president of the Massachusetts Underwriters and now, since he returned to New Haven, in 1943, he holds a similar post among the Connecticut Underwriters. Today he is manager of the New Haven district of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. He heads many charitable and religious drives and a singular tribute was paid him, by the City of New Haven, a year ago when he was given a chair on the Board of Education in that city. The post is a hard one, fraught with political bickering and chained to antiquity's habits. His selection was lauded, on all sides, as a forward step to a definite end of educational hypocrisy and a start toward a new efficient school system in New Haven.

It was in 1945, in company with Frank McGowan, Branford's Belting Beauty, of major league fame, that Bill became associated with the Park-Roc baseball school in New Haven. Despite wide calls upon his time, the former pitcher, spent five nights a week in all sections of New Haven, teaching youngsters how to play the American game. The boys followed him to all sessions. They performed nobly in a series played at the end of the season at Lighthouse Point.

Out of that instruction came such players as Kenny Schramm who recently received a $2000 bonus for signing with Detroit. Lefty Heuzel who starred with the West Haven Legion Team, Art Ceccorelli, who less than a month ago signed a Brooklyn Dodgers contract. Bill Loos, ace hurler and outfielder of the University of Connecticut's crack 1948 baseball team. Larry DePalma, who tosses them for the Knights of Columbus nine in New Haven when he is not at Providence College, where he is considered an excellent prospect. There are more. A youngster is currently pitching for Notre Dame High, who is a definite prospect, Clancy thinks.

Because he has made time to help the other fellow, Bill Clancy was been pitching strikes all his life. The really big men like his ability, his ambition and his avocation. He has taken his career with the same concentration that he displayed while learning to play. His pitches are true; from a mound of experience, across a plate of faith, to catchers of the future—the youth of New Haven, and its environs.

ONE OUT AWAY

Lightning, or no-hitter's, nearly struck twice for Tex Black, the Sportsmen's ace hurler when he went 6 and two thirds innings before giving up, a hit to the Mut and Jeff nine in New Haven on Wednesday evening. The Sportsmen won 1 to 0.

Pitching his first effort since his sterling no-hit no-run outing against the C. F. U., the tobacco chewing Texan was superb all the way and received fine support.

Callahan, the possessor of the lone bingle, admitted that he struck at a waste ball, the hit going over the head of the second baseman.

Croats Stage Batting Show At Stamford

Hammering out 22 hits for 21 runs, the local Croatan nine went on its greatest rampage of the season in Stamford last Sunday and at the same time played tight defensive ball in giving up one run and three hits on the joint pitching efforts of Bobo Prahovic and Joe Resjan.

Matt Markleski, who is rapidly developing into a top notch receiver in addition to his present rating of a classy batting star, wielded the heavy mace, twice pounding out home runs with the bases loaded.

Stamford used three hurlers in its souped up array which was expected to stop the locals cold but the carnage was terrific especially in the fourth frame when Branford dented the plate seven times on eight blows. In the sixth the shore-town lodge nearly equaled the earlier spree by counting five times on four bingles.

C. F. U. Will Face Biggest Threat Tomorrow Night

The pertinent question of just how good the Branford C. F. U softball team is will be answered Friday evening at Hammer Field when it opposes the Middletown Brass Rail team at 8:30.

The invaders will use Ed Mikucki, who recently tossed a no hit, no run game against the East Haven West Ends and racked up 16 strikeouts in the effort, on the hill.

Manager Jack Salvin will toss his ace "Bobo Prahovic" against the Middletown hitters in the hope of continuing the uptown kid's excellent season's record.

In outside play, the local unit has met very little top notch competition, having confined most of its efforts to Croatan competition against which they have had singular success in losing none of the three championship contests played to date.

Youngsters Loop Commences Play At Hammer Park

Play got underway in the Community Council Branford Review Baseball league on Monday afternoon in impressive fashion, paced by the Yankees, who scored an 11 to 2 win over the Indians who were handclapped when their pitcher, Robbins, suffered a sore arm in the opening innings.

Both teams showed lusty hitting at times although good fielding and hustle kept the Indian's hits to a minimum. Gordon pitched smartly for the Yankee nine and for three innings had a no hitter.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 at Hammer Field the Braves will meet the Cardinals in a contest that is expected to produce fireworks, now that the teams have gotten over the preliminary jitters and are working to place their men on the big squad which will meet New Haven, Hamden, East Haven and probably the West Haven school during August.

The Review School will continue apace on Saturday, when headcoach Walter Klarman will offer the lads instruction in their playing faults during the loop contests.

Outstanding errors revealed to date in the early games are the failure to back up the proper bases and to always be ready for the pitch. Both Joe Orsene and Klarman believe they have uncovered some outstanding material and at the present time are trying to divide the playing strength, to make all teams equal in ability.

Players listed on the teams of the Community Council Baseball League operating in conjunction with the Branford Review Baseball School have been designated as follows. Other youngsters, under fourteen but at least ten years of age may still enter the circuit providing their names are submitted to Community Director Joe Orsene before Monday afternoon.

Yankees: Massey, Gordon, Cudgema, Washington, Royka, Vishno, Levy, Alblinger and Karlovich.
Indians: Erickson, Robbins, Clark, McGowan, Donofrio, Malliloux, Addison Long, Klarman and J. Knecht.
Braves: Kilmas, Moore, Zurkas, Dwyer, Purcell, Piscatelli, Kligerman, Dwyer.
Cardinals: Dumont, Anderson, Massey, Stanton, Nelson, Ablondi, Knecht, Ifkovic.

BROKEN WRIST

Disaster, in the form of a broken wrist, continued to plague the Community Softball league, when Alfred Arden, a member of the Pilgrim Brotherhood nine, suffered a collar fracture in a collision with a Stony Creek player last Thursday.

He was attended by Dr. John Riesman, of East Main Street, who was playing with one of the league teams. After first-aid treatment, the victim was taken to Dr. Dana L. Blanchard.

The game was won by Stony Creek.

The injury was the fourth involving broken bones in the Senior softball circuit this summer.

Joe Orsene Takes Post For Summer

Joseph Orsene, son of Mr and Mrs. Rocco Orsene of Ivy Street, will fill the post of Community Director for the Summer, Frank J. Kinney, Jr., president of the Community Council announced recently.

Orsene, who will enter his junior year at Manhattan College in September, is majoring in physical education at the New York institution and has a wide background of sports participation.

He started his job in an official capacity last Monday when he opened the first round of the Community Baseball League for boys under fourteen Monday afternoon. The Yankees won the opening clash behind the steady pitching of Butch Gordon, 11 to 2. Robbins was on the hill for the Indians but a sore arm developed shortly after the game started handicapped his effectiveness. The second game of the loop will be played on this Friday between the Braves and the Cardinals.

Orsene plans to inflate long morning and afternoon sessions devoted to all phases of sports and play.

A good turnout was present at Hammer Field Monday morning when Miss Anne Zarkos commenced the week-day sessions of recreation sponsored by the Community Council in conjunction with the Hammer Field Recreational

Townies Lose Twice Falling In Loop Ranks

The Townies continued their losing ways at Hammer Field last night and Sunday when they bowed to the Hornets 5 to 4 and to the Edgewood Boosters 9 to 2 before fair sized crowds.

Bobby Reid had things all his way, from a pitching angle as both Murphy and Sobolowski were hit hard by the rampaging New Haven ball team, in last Sunday's game.

Tettlebach, Yale outfielder, was the most consistent performer with the willow racking up three hits in four trips.

For Branford, only Allen Bradley was able to belt Reid about, getting two for four.

In the Wednesday contest, the game was close fought.

The Townies took a one-run lead in the third only to have the Hornets even the count in the first half of the fourth. The locals pushed across another tally in their half to take a 2-1 edge. The Elm City team scored four runs on two hits in the fifth, a lusty triple by Pepe doing the most damage. Branford counted once in the fifth and again in the seventh and last frame.

AT TRYOUT CAMP

David and Karl Marsh and Mel Bigelow were among the boys from this town who tried out at the New York Giants Baseball Camp in Waterbury this week. All have received favorable consideration.

Committee. Morning and afternoon classes will be the rule there on every day but Saturday.

One of the fastest games of the season is due on Sunday's docket at Hammer Field when the Knights of Columbus nine of the New Haven Baseball League meets the Townies at 3 P. M.

The Kaceys already hold a decision over the locals winning a 7-2 game on June 27.

The invaders will start their ace, Larry DePalma, in the pitcher's box and hope to have their hard hitting first sacker, Frank Dempsey, ready for the go, which if Branford wins, will make a profound difference in the battle for first place.

Murphy will do the tossing for Joe Orsene's men, who are hoping to surpass the nine hits they garnered against the Knights in the first setto.

Next Wednesday at Hammer Field the Branfordites will oppose the Hamden Townies, who also scalped Branford at an earlier date by a 5-4 count. Kissel will be on the hill for Hamden. Bigelow will get the nod for the locals.
