EDUCATION BOARD ORDERS TWO THOUSAND HEALTH REPORTS FOR CITIZENS

Two thousand copies of the report of the Health Survey Committee will be printed and distributed by the Board of Education. It was decided at the semi-monthly meeting of the Board of Education held at the Board Room in the high school last Friday evening.

The report, over twenty five double spaced typewritten pages, deals with public health in East Haven, particularly in the public schools. Its contents were prepared by Dr. Ira V. Hiscock of the Public Health Department of Yale and was authorized by East Haven residents over a year ago, Mrs. Arthur Connor, a member of the Board of Education and a prime mover in the survey, said today.

The printing is being done by Joseph Sutherland of East Haven and will take about three weeks to prepare, Mrs. Connor said. Eventually it will be distributed through the Town Hall.

The report as head by Mrs. Connor last Friday, concerns itself with the general sanitation conditions of the town. Dr. Hiscock's report thoroughly reviews the health conditions of East Haven schools and some recommendations are offered for improving the public health nursing department.

It is hoped as a result of the report that a Health Council can be set up in town to work more closely with other health offices of the town.

Two new arrangements will probably be organized within the schools shortly. They call for the establishment of the offices of a school physician and a school nurse. It is understood that the preliminary moves to procure the necessary personnel have already been started.

Their work will provide a close association with the proposed Health Council, Mrs. Connor said. In general the report's contents were divulged by Dr. Hiscock early last Fall at a town meeting held here.

He was assisted in his efforts by Town Health Officer, Dr. Rocco Bove.

BUILDING BOOM RAGES HERE, RICCIO REVEALS IN DECEMBER REPORT

Arthur Riccio, Building Inspector for East Haven, said this morning that there is no lessening of the building boom according to the reports for December which were reviewed by the Zoning Commission last Thursday evening.

Building permits to cover estimated construction costs were approximately $40,000, the town officer revealed, about $22,000 more than for the same period a year ago when permits were issued to cover $17,700 of construction. In 1947, 29,000 worth of construction was included in the building permits. In 1948, $41,095; 1949, $33,150; in 1944, $350 and in 1943, $3,800.

Only in 1946 was there more building indicated than at present, Riccio said, and that was a post war boom year.

A further indication of increased construction here is his unofficial tabulation for January. He indicated that permits for $38,900 in estimated building costs have already been issued.

The report shows East Haven to be growing by leaps and bounds, he concluded. In other fields, Riccio's office allowed ten building permits for December and the following permits for other purposes: nine cesspool permits, seven cleanout permits, seven plumbing permits, one plumbing alteration permit, twenty five electrical permits, twenty permits, fourteen permits for street lighting, four electrician's licenses and twenty seven plumbing licenses.

Funeral Rites For Rose Baby Held Saturday

Funeral services for Suzanne Rose were held from the W. S. Clancy Funeral Home in East Haven last Saturday morning. The child, only ten months old, was found dead by its mother who had left the child in a carriage on the front porch of her home in Branford, Thursday afternoon. Mrs. George Rose of 59 Tuttle Place, East Haven who had been visiting inside the house, found her daughter "lifeless and blue." Four policemen used an inhalator for more than an hour in a vain effort to revive the child.

Mrs. Rose left her child on the porch at about 1:30 P. M., and went in the home of her brother, Robert Doohan of Haycock Place, Indian Neck, according to Capt. Leo M. Havel of the Branford police. She found the baby still and apparently asphyxiated at about 3:30 police said.

Dr. Dana Blanchard, medical examiner, said that although cause of death was unknown the child might have been asphyxiated as a result of "a type of overwhelming infection" or a "heart condition." Police reported that Mrs. Rose called friends in East Haven who went to her at 1. On arriving they summoned Dr. Richard L. Rosenthal of Branford. Police were phoned at 4:03 and Sgt. Anthony Iffovick and Patrolmen Clinton Russell, Fred George and Dina Panaroni responded with the ambulance. Dr. Blanchard, who was also called to the scene of the tragedy, said that the child probably was dead when found by its mother.

Suzanne was the Rose's only child. Mr. Rose is employed by an East Haven grocery store.

Zoning Board And Planners Meet Tonight

Capping a week of intensive action the East Haven Zoning Board and the Town Planning Commission will meet jointly in the First Selectman's Office this evening to take further steps to rezone the town.

Following a joint session last Thursday at which time areas of the town were reviewed with an eye towards creating new industrial areas within the town limits.

On Sunday lauded the town seeking sites for both heavy and light manufacturing concerns, many of whom have indicated an interest in settling in East Haven. Areas in the Coe Avenue section, the West End and north of the Railroad tracks merited further consideration and tonight's session will center on those portions of the town.

Those who made the tour on Sunday were: First Selectman, Frank S. Clancy; George McManus of the Zoning Commission; and Vincent Gagliardi, Fred Wolfe, Judge Thomas Reilly and Daniel Parilla.

The Commission is still awaiting a final report from State Highway Commissioner, Albert G. Hill on the final location of proposed new highway through East Haven. He has promised a report by February 1.

East Haven's problem has first priority with his department. Hill indicated in a letter to the First Selectman last week.

EAST HAVEN TONSORIAL ARTIST UPHOLDS SHOP RETAIL SELLING

The following story was released in the January issue of the Barber's Journal. It was written by Frank Messina and tells of his advice on retail selling. The editor found the story fascinating and complete, starting when he was a little shaver.

By Frank Messina
I guess I was destined to become a barber from birth. You see, I was actually born in the rear of a barber shop thirty-six years ago. Don't get me wrong. The exact place of my birth was in a room definitely not a part of the shop, but in the same building housing the barber shop. Then, to make sure that I would not throw off that destiny, I was sent into a relative's shop to learn the trade at the age of nine years. Barely able to reach the stool for me to stand on. The sight of a little shrimp reaching up as far as he could to lather a reclining patron was always good for a laugh. That is, for everybody but me. I hoped and prayed for just a little more height so that I could get away from that distasteful old stool. It was due to time that day came and I went on learning more about barbering. Time went on I finished high school, preparing for college but missing it because of the depression, still operating the trusty scissors and comb. However, I was always alert for a chance to get away from the barber profession, as I detested it. I could not see myself being confined to such a seemingly stagnant trade. There was no future — only long hours and low pay. That was not for me. But, late that I did or otherwise. No matter what I did or how hard I tried, I just could not find a way out. I was chained to a barber chair so it seemed.

Decides to Open a Shop of His own. Then, in the warring days of 1938, I made a very hasty decision.

As long as I must remain as a barber, I would open my own shop. I found the spot, set up a business in shop and opened for business in January, 1939. Words can never describe the thrill I got out of the reception I was accorded from my friends on opening day, and the days that followed. Their loyalty and friendship drove me on until I believe it or not, I actually learned to love the barber profession. I have a warm spot in my heart for the barber. After all, didn't it give me my self-support and independence and the material things I have today?

Business was a success from the start, and it was not long before I found it necessary to put in a third chair for week-end use.

Many Changes Are Made
Now that I had my own place of business there were a few things I set out to do. Barber's for years monotonously followed in the footsteps of their predecessors and contented themselves with the old-fashioned, they never tried anything new. What was good for the old timers was good enough for the present generation. At least, that was the trend of thought. So, the first change in my shop was to omit the cuspidors. Why? What a relief, not to have those things around. Every shave was followed with a clean and (emphasis) hot towel, at no cost to the customer. Neck strips provided added protection during haircuts. There were other recall at present. I that do not recall the other shops in my locality did not incorporate these in their regular business day. Then, as each new improvement was introduced to our profession, I either bought or seriously considered it. It paid off. It showed my patrons that I was at least trying to give them the best that was available. Many

MA THEW ANASTASIO PLEADS FOR POLIO CAMPAIGN SUPPORT FROM EAST HAVEN RESIDENTS

Last year's record infantile paralysis epidemics virtually drained the nation of its March of Dimes epidemic aid resources, Mathew Anastasio, East Haven Campaign Director for the 1950 appeal, stated today.

Stressing the vital importance of a record March of Dimes this year Mr. Anastasio said that expenses for patient care in 1949 soared to $31,000,000 and by last October had wiped out treasuries of local chapters in 43 States and Alaska.

"Appeals for emergency funds poured into the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis from these chapters," he reported. "At the height of the epidemic, $100,000 was being spent every 24 hours for patient care alone."

"We all know that infantile paralysis is one of the most expensive diseases to fight, both in acute and convalescent stages. Continuing care for thousands this year who were stricken in 1949 is estimated at $20,000,000.

"Added to this will be the unknown cost of caring for the thousands unapparently destined to be stricken in 1950. We do not know how serious this year's epidemic will be, but we must be prepared for any eventuality. And we must prepare now by giving with increased generosity to the 1950 March of Dimes."

California and Texas, both hit heavily for the second successive year, and Minnesota, received the top amount of epidemic aid: almost $2,500,000, to these three states alone. North Carolina, which had a great number of cases in 1948 but was relatively spared last year, called for almost $1,000,000, primarily to pay the heavy bills for after-care. Mr. Anastasio explained that, although care of patients is imperative, research to find a means of preventing infantile paralysis also must be continued at all over-increasing pace.

"During the past 12 years," he continued, "the National Foundation has allocated more than ten million eight hundred thousand dollars for research."

Activities Listed
Funds also must be allotted for education of professional personnel, he said. "The disease seems to have changed its pattern and spread out to more areas, Anastasio explained, so that more medical experts were needed in more places than in 1949. March of Dimes funds provide scholarships and fellowships for the training of these professional workers, he said.

Mr. Anastasio also listed these activities of the National Foundation and its chapters:
Special polio aid teams are sped to epidemic areas at the request of local and state health authorities to help organize treatment at local polio centers.
Six National Foundation supply centers, strategically situated across the nation, keep vital equipment on hand and ready for shipment. In the first ten months of 1949, there were 847 special shipments of respirators, as compared to 143 in all of 1948. A total of 505 hot pack machines was rushed to these centers to hospitals up to mid-October, 1949, as compared to 146 in all of 1948.
Not one emergency request went unfilled. When equipment ran out, new machines were purchased. Last Year, the National Foundation purchased 139 new blenders, at an average cost of $1,500, and 279 hot pack machines at a cost of $300 each.

BOOSTER CLUB SPONSORS TOWN-WIDE MEETING AT AUDITORIUM FEB. 6th

A town-wide meeting, under the joint sponsorship of the High School faculty and the East Haven Booster Club, will be conducted in the auditorium of the East Haven Town Hall, Monday, February 6, at 8:15 P. M.

In answer to the appeal for added support and interest in high school athletics, this move is directed towards creating an organization with the power and ability to provide adequate backing to the activities of all youth programs in town, not merely in the high school system.

Mr. Carl Garvin, principal of the High School, has added his approval to the creation of a town group whose interest would work to the full advantage of all boys and girls of East Haven. Mr. Garvin has high hopes of seeing all former East Haven High students in answering this call, as up to now, no effort has been made to invite the high school alumni into a working group, with designs of keeping in contact with their former alma mater. This can be the opening needed for the formation of such a group.

Actually, the East Haven Booster Club is only fulfilling its obligation to its constitution in assisting in matters pertaining to the younger generation. Since its origination, three years ago, the Booster Club has centered its activity on boys under 14 years of age. Baseball has been the main sport, because of the lack of facilities and finances. However, this program has worked successfully for the two seasons in which it was run.

In ratio, a large organization would be able to do wonders in town, provided that the necessary finances was at hand. This is the object of the meeting February 6. Innumerable men have already signified intentions of adding their names to the list of supporters of the interest and welfare of our youth at heart. It is encouraging to note this, as these will form the nucleus of the proposed organization.

The complete functions of the embryonic group is left to be determined by the members. There would be something like this: assist in all matters pertaining to scholastic and athletic development of local youngsters; promote interest in high school sports; provide annual banquets and sports teams of the high school, at which time awards of trophies and letters are made to all (not just seniors) deserving participants. These are a few, but most important, of what a sizeable town organization can accomplish.

An effort is being made to contact every alumnus of the High School, asking for his attention concerning this meeting. If, by any chance, any are overlooked, an open invitation is extended to attend.

As Mr. Brinley Sees It

"There is that which holdeth and tendeth towards poverty." God hath implanted within us gifts and talents, which we are to use to help others, and it must not for one moment be assumed that these talents or gifts, a divine or spirit, are all physical, some of the greatest gifts which God has given, are "spiritual" and the "spiritual" bridges the gap, between Death and eternity. If we have nothing to give others but physical things, we are indeed poverty stricken. We have brought nothing into this world, and it is certain, we shall bring nothing out with us when we die. Unless, in the living of this earthly life, we bear fruit, which can be changed into the coinage and currency of the heavenly Kingdom, we are of men most miserable. This world, is God's world. He will never destroy it. A million bombs far more destructive than those at present stored up, will not change anything which

God created or owns. Man will go just so far, and then Heaven will intervene and stop him. God is still on His Throne, in the heavens, and His earth will not be lampeted with, only as it allows it to be. He has offered knowledge, understanding, intelligence to man. When man abuses this power, beyond a certain point, then God speaks. The gifts and the talents which he has given us, are to be used for the benefit of our neighbors. If we do not express him through these gifts and those talents, then they are taken away, and given to another, who will use them to his glory. And then that which might have been riches becomes poverty. This rule has never been cancelled. There is that which holdeth and tendeth towards poverty." Harry W. Brinley

Here Is Another Time The Anti-Trust Lawyers Were Wrong!

Ever since the anti-trust lawyers filed their suit to put A&P out of business, they have been making, in the newspapers and over the radio, various "allegations" about how they think this company does business. Please remember that "allegations" are charges that have not been proved. In this case they will be disproved. There have been times in the past when the anti-trust lawyers made very damaging "allegations" about this company that the courts eventually decided were utterly without foundation. In our last advertisement we told you about the time the anti-trust lawyers charged that A&P, two of the food chains and two labor unions conspired to fix the price of bread in Washington, D. C. And yet, when this case came to trial, it was revealed that the defendants were actually selling bread cheaper than most other stores in Washington, and there was absolutely no evidence that they had ever engaged in any such "alleged" conspiracy. That was the time Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of "not guilty." It was the time he said to the anti-trust lawyers: "If you were to show this record to any experienced trial lawyer in the world, he would tell you that there was not any evidence at all. 'Honestly, I have never in my over forty years' experience seen tried a case that was as absolutely devoid of evidence as this. That is the honest truth. I have never seen one like it.'" But this was not the only time that the anti-trust lawyers made such serious "allegations" against A&P which were false. Again, and still again, they brought cases against A&P and suffered defeat. As we have said, we think you are entitled to know about these other cases. And how, we are going to tell you about the second time the anti-trust lawyers were wrong.

The North Carolina Potato Case

In December, 1941, the anti-trust lawyers brought a criminal suit in Wilson, North Carolina. They charged that A&P's fresh fruit and vegetable buying subsidiary, and other good American citizens, had conspired to fix and depress prices paid farmers for potatoes in North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland. Can anyone imagine any charge calculated to be more damaging to a retail grocery business that must rely on farmers, day after day, for the food we distribute to our customers? In this case the anti-trust lawyers gave a story to the newspapers, telling millions of farmers that we were the kind of people who would force their prices down, deprive them of a decent income, and lower their families' living standard. These charges were false. They made these charges despite the fact that it has always been A&P's policy to pay our farm suppliers fair market prices for all produce; to aid agriculture through better distribution of its products; to narrow the spread between farm and retail prices; and to help farmers build better markets for their products. That is why we say the anti-trust lawyers can be wrong and have been wrong. That is why we say that they are wrong again, just as they were wrong in the Washington bread case and the North Carolina potato case. We are going to show the American people that the suit to destroy A&P is really a suit against efficiency and against real competition. The real question involved in this suit is whether businessmen are going to be encouraged to do a better and more efficient job; or whether we are going to let the anti-trust lawyers in Washington blow the whistle on anybody who gets big by giving the people more for their money. No one can make us believe that it is a crime to try to sell the best quality food at the lowest possible price.

JUST A THOUGHT
 The most precious thing anyone can have is a friend. It is something as fragile as an orchid—and as beautiful; as precious as a gold nugget—and as hard to find; as powerful as a great turbine—and as hard to build; as wonderful as youth—and as hard to keep—Amos Parrish.
