Frawley Reports On First Evening High School

Registrations for East Haven's first Evening High School were held on the evenings of October 10, 11, 17 and 18. Notices of these registration nights were published and were broadcast over the radio system of the High School. Pupils were urged to bring their parents and older brothers and sisters. The notices contained suggestions for courses that have proven popular in other night schools, such as Typing, Rugmaking, Sewing, Woodwork and the like.

Over 400 registrations were received for a wide variety of subjects. A schedule was arranged and the Board of Education approved it and appointed teachers for the following classes—Sewing, Rugmaking, Woodwork and Shop, Typing, Art, Shorthand, English, Mathematics, and Social Science and Science.

The first classes were held Monday evening November 5, 1951, and all of the above classes had 20 or more, with the exception of the social science, which had only 18. Since these people had registered to prepare for the high school equivalency exams the Board of Education approved the course.

The faculty appointed by the Board of Education were all members of the day school faculty with one exception and they used the same rooms and equipment as in the daytime. This fact caused the program to start smoothly and to run smoothly during the entire year. They were all matured, experienced and excellent teachers and I received many favorable reports from the townspeople concerning them.

Course Summary
SEWING: There were 147 registrations for the sewing classes. Since we had facilities for only one class an evening, six classes were arranged to meet every other week fairly large drop out because of the wide difference in the experience of the pupils from beginning sewing to advanced tailoring, and also due to the fact that with such large classes not very much individual time could be given by the teacher. After this drop out had occurred the classes were combined and each class met once a week. The object of the course was family sewing. Many of the students were young housewives with very little experience in sewing. Many of the projects were children's clothes. All students worked on an individual project bringing in their own patterns and materials. Evidence of the excellent work accomplished in these classes was shown in the public display held on the evening of May 26th.

ART: Students were allowed to choose their own mediums of expression. Work was done with charcoal, crayons, watercolors, inks of different kinds, textiles, tempera colors, pastels and pencil. About the middle of the year easel painting and oil painting were introduced.
RUGMAKING: (Hooked), 41 registrations in this course made it necessary to have two classes. The teacher felt that if the students created their own patterns instead of buying printed, bulky, there would be greater satisfaction to the students. When they were shown the finished rug, they were very proud of their own design and design for them to be buried. After the creation of the design, and the starting of the rug, very little help was needed from the teacher. Many of the students did most of the work at home. The attendance fell off fairly rapidly and the two classes were combined into one after the middle of the year. The teacher recommends the addition of several other activities to this course, from the art course, to stimulate further interest when the rug project is complete. Such things as tray painting and textile painting could be added very easily and the learning process would carry out to the end of the year. This would also relieve some of the wide variety in the art course. A better balance would be created, since the art students require much more individual attention. About 15 rugs were shown at the public exhibit, all original designs and they compared very favorably with some of the stamped designs shown at exhibits of night school classes in some of the surrounding towns.

WOODWORK AND SHOP: Two classes in woodwork and shop were scheduled for 53 registrants. Monday night class was combined woodwork and shop and the Thursday night was all woodwork. Nearly half of the students were women. Instruction was given in the use of all the power tools with emphasis on safety before students were allowed to start their individual projects. After this a short period at the beginning of each class was devoted to class instruction in the proper use of hand tools or in methods of making the various things. After this instruction period, students worked on their own individual projects. A wide variety of projects was exhibited ranging from small table lamps to a boat. As in the Sewing and Art classes, so much individual attention and instruction has to be given, that the class size cannot be too large to be effective.

Typing: Two classes in Typing were arranged for 55 registrants. About one-third were beginners and the remainder knew the keyboard but wished to regain and improve their speed. These two classes had the highest average attendance of all the evening classes. The teacher prepared new practice copy each week and the course ran very smoothly.

SHORTHAND: Thirty students registered for Shorthand. About one-third were beginners and the remainder wanted a shorthand review and the opportunity to increase their speed. Gregg method was used. Most of the beginners soon found that they could not learn this method very quickly with only one night a week. The remainder of the class found the pace set to accommodate the beginners too slow and so the drop out was fairly rapid after the first of the year. The course was not completed. A more homogeneous grouping is necessary to have this course effective. We did not have a qualified teacher in the shorter methods such as the Thomas method which is used in some of the other evening schools for the beginners. With the present facilities only review shorthand course should be offered next year.

ENGLISH: Thirty-four registered for this course. The education of the group ranged from the 7th grade completion to a Master's Degree. It was found that the majority wished to improve their written and oral English and the course was directed toward these objectives. Those interested only in literature soon dropped out and the membership leveled off at about 20. Emphasis was placed on grammar, pronunciation, sentence structure, spelling and spoken English. Good use was made of the tape recorder in correcting faults. The students enjoyed the course and felt that they accomplished much.

MATHEMATICS: Twenty-seven registered for Mathematics and here again the wide variety of previous experience was found. It was somewhat easier to meet the problem in math because they could be divided into two groups with one group working on problems while the other group was getting instruction. One group concentrated upon arithmetic and the other group went with Algebra, Geometry and some Trigonometry.

SOCIAL SCIENCE AND SCIENCE: This group has the lowest number of registrants and these two subjects were grouped together to complete the preparation for the State High School Equivalency Examination. This examination covers four areas and only three nights, a week were scheduled for this night session. The science course at the beginning was held every fourth school night, drawing from the English class the first week, the math class the second week and from the social science course the third week and in this way equal preparation would be given in the four areas. Only those pupils who wished to prepare for the State exam were drawn from the various classes. By the middle of March the social science group had dropped so low that it was dropped and the year completed with science.

ATTENDANCE: Drop outs are a very important problem in any adult education program. In a comparison of our record this year with records in surrounding towns, I believe we have done very well in holding our attendance. In an analysis of the various reasons for drop outs we find several important factors. The geographic position of East Haven is the first factor. Many people in the Foxon and Momauguin areas registered and started the courses but as soon as the cold weather arrived and transportation difficulties arose they stopped coming. There was only one from the Foxon area and

Board Of Education Approves New Assignments For Teachers

Board Votes Double Sessions At The Momauguin School

At the semi-monthly meeting of the Board of Education in the high school Friday evening, the board received various delegations from the local schools to discuss various problems.

Mrs. Gerald Cullen, representing Laurel School, was the first to be heard. Mrs. Cullen expressed the view that the parents are in complete agreement to sending their children to Union School for kindergarten classes in the Fall, the parents furnishing the transportation.

Mrs. William McNulty and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kane represented the parents of students from the Momauguin School. They communicated the parents' dissatisfaction with the Board of Education's decision to send the fourth and fifth grade pupils of Momauguin School to the old South School for classes. They expressed a preference for double sessions until a building program could be established. The board voted double sessions for all classes with the exception of first and sixth grades. The basement room will not be used for a class room and no classes will be assigned to the Old South School.

Mrs. A. Panagross, Mrs. J. Scarpace and Mrs. D. Cunningham represented the Foxon and Laurel School. They presented a petition signed by the parents of the eighth grade students, 16 in all, requesting the students be encephal at the high school in the Fall rather than attend Laurel School.

The board voted approval if space is available in the Fall. Charles Coyle, Frank Melillo, Harold Reed and James Farquharson of the custodial staff requested a three week vacation period after five years of service with the school system. The board voted to allow three weeks after 15 years service. The delegation also requested a $500 differential salary between four-room schools and those having more than four rooms. The board voted that the $200 differential in the original schedule be maintained. Charles Coyle, head of maintenance, asked to be placed on maximum salary immediately but the request was denied.

Dr. L. Chapman of New Haven was awarded the contract to waterproof the basement of Foxon School. Further action taken was the reading of four bids by the board for painting the interior of Tuttle School. The board authorized the building committee to award the contract to the lowest bidder.

Chairman Burton Reed presided at the meeting. Other members present were Mrs. John Tripak, W. Owen Parker, John Flanagan, Mrs. Alvin Thompson, James Estratado, Vincent Veirone, Charles Copeland and Vincent Cusano Jr., Supt. William E. Gillis and Secretary John Corbett were also present.

Instructors work together with large classes. So much individual attention is needed for these classes, one instructor can effectively work with a maximum of 12-15 students. Some financial provision should be made, year by year, for replacing worn out equipment and securing new equipment. We might consider a shop fee for breakage of equipment.

A great deal of interest has been shown in two areas not included in this year's program. The first is an adults recreation program in the gym, one night a week for the women and one night a week for the men. These courses are quite popular in the night schools of many other towns throughout the state. A variety of activities such as volleyball, basketball, badminton and many other similar games are possible with our present facilities. The second area is ceramics. We are not equipped at the present to offer this but a course could be started with approximately $250 worth of equipment and material. A twelve inch kiln can be purchased for $125. This would be large enough to accommodate one class making small objects. The small kiln has the advantage of being used daily. A larger kiln can be used only once or possibly twice a week because it takes 48 hours or more to cool off after each firing. About $125 worth of clay, glazes and colors would be needed to start and these would be purchased by the students as they used them. The other equipment needed is quite inexpensive and most of it could be made in the shop. Both Art and Industrial Art teachers are certified to teach this under Arts and Crafts and the equipment could be used by these classes in the day time. A corner of the shop near the present location of the mechanical drawing tables could be used for the laboratory.

Provision should be made for an early start in the coming school year. Registrations should be held in the middle of September and school should start September 29th or on October 6th at the latest. This would eliminate scheduling classes Christmas and Easter weeks

This about excitement! Thursday night two young men came in to buy some and asked for a place to buy some food. Seemed they were on a yacht in the harbor. Practically all the boats in the harbor were far out and looked to be blue. The other was closer to the dock and was black and three masted. At the dock a boat with an outboard motor was secure and a young girl about fifteen or fourteen sat waiting for someone or something.

Well, by now everyone knows that June Allison and Dick Powell were here, that they too visited Betty's Store as well as Paul's, Hagelue, and Brainerd's Fish Market. I just thought you'd like to know that though absent, I did see the celebrities, I did see their beautiful yacht, their outboard, and Dick Powell's daughter. Everybody in town, practically, got their autograph that night.

Mr. and Mrs. Powell bought many postcards before leaving town. Imagine that!

Playgrounds
The summer playgrounds operated by the Branford Recreation Advisory Board opened their season this Monday with a large attendance. The playgrounds are under the direction of the following playground leaders: Hammer Field, Mary Margaret O'Brien and Walter Hawkes; Short Beach, Leonora Peterson; Indian Neck, Peggy Reinsant; Stony Creek, Harriet Gaetz.
Hammer Field
The Hammer Field playground opened its season with arts and crafts projects under the able leadership of Mary O'Brien. Some of the projects made by the playground children were lanyards and bracelets from gym materials, pot holders and the painting and decorating of clay models.
The boys program, under the leadership of Walter M. Hawkes, featured active, quiet and team games, tumbling and softball and baseball clinics.
The youngsters have been busy making pennants to decorate the area at Parker Park for the outdoor block dance and band concerts which will be held on the Fourth or July.

Stony Creek
A playground, police club was formed at the Stony Creek playground. The idea originated when the playground youngsters realized that some organization must be set up to make the Stony Creek playground a safe playground as well as a happy playground. The youngsters are under the care of Playground Leader Harriet Gaetz and volunteer worker Mrs. Michael Oryl who will supervise the project. The children themselves discussed and set up rules and regulations that must be followed by all the children who use the playground.
The following youngsters will act as safety leaders: Larry Donnelly, Mickey Oryl, John Sastrand, Nick Paltman, Michael Olivo, Leonard Murray, Howie Oryl, Gilbert Kent, David Valland, and will be under the supervision of Mrs. Oryl.
The youngsters under the fine direction of Mrs. Gaetz have made the following arts and crafts projects this week: Lanyards, gym bracelets, pot holders, painting of paper plates. Active, quiet, team and individual games were taught by Mrs. Gaetz who also taught the children tumbling.
A new Badminton court was installed at the playground and the children also took part in volleyball, horseshoe pitching, and badminton.

Indian Neck
The Indian Neck playground which is under the supervision of Peggy Reinsant, made the following arts and crafts projects: lanyards, gym bracelets, pot holders, macaroni jewelry, plaster molds.
Active, quiet and team games were taught to the children. Miss Reinsant is assisted by Junior leader Susanna Van Cleef. Miss Van Cleef recently attended the playground leadership training class held in the Community House and her assistance will greatly enhance the summer playground work.

Short Beach
The Short Beach playground started its season off with a bang. The playground is under the leadership of Leonora Peterson. Miss Peterson is assisted by the following volunteer mothers who have done a wonderful job this week of getting the playground activities rolling. They have assisted Miss Peterson with the arts and crafts program, games and story hour. The mothers who assisted this week are Mrs. Walter Lynch, Mrs. Frank Roland Hudaverdi, Mrs. Franklin Meek, Mrs. Louis Mison, Mrs. Dexter Goodwin, Mrs. Frank Schultze, Mrs. Marge Michael, Mrs. Frank

Woodman Mrs. Earl Blake, Mrs. Claire Pierson, Mrs. Ken Frankish, Mrs. Gordon Benson, Mrs. George Corbett.
Teddy Potter who has volunteered to assist Miss Peterson with boys' activities was on hand to teach the boys softball, volleyball and other games. Mr. Potter will also assist with other activities at the playground and it is due to his splendid help and cooperation that the boys will be assured of competent leadership in their activities.
Some of the projects undertaken at the Short Beach playground have been painting on glass, making lanyards, making pin holders and the coloring of paper plates. On Thursday the youngsters will make identification pins.
